RAN UP?—It is not always easy to get a mouse to run up a clock for a photographer's benefit. This one, borrowed from the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum, preferred to run sideways, but he got the idea across, anyway. The vintage timepiece was borrowed from the Clock and Candle, San Rafael. He's Telling You Daylight Time Is Here

The mouse ran up the clock,
The clock struck one,
And down he . . .

Woops! If the mouse tries it tonight, he's likely to get bopped by the bell. For at 1 a.m., the time will become 2 a.m. You have to turn the clock ahead. (You can go to it earlier, of course, if you don't want to stay up until 1 a.m.)

That's on account of something called Daylight Saving Time takes effect as of 1 a.m. tomorrow.

It doesn't really save any daylight. All summer, just about everything except the railroads will be operating on this daylight saving time. And come the last Sunday in October, when the clocks are turned back again, there won't be any more daylight than there would have been otherwise.

Also, if that mouse tries running down the clock at 1 a.m. next Oct. 26, he's likely to get bopped a whole lot of times when somebody turns the clock back to midnight.

It just doesn't pay to be a mouse. Not even on daylight saving.

Steel Strike Postponed For One Company

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The United Steelworkers Union announced today the first contract extension with a steel company, postponing the May 1 strike deadline for Phoenix Steel Corp.

Union President David J. McDonald said the agreement will be signed formally Monday, covering some 1,000 steelworkers at the firm's plant in Phoenixville, Pa., and 2,000 workers at another plant in Claymont, Del.

McDonald said the company had accepted the union's offer of a strike postponement provided that it later gives contract improvements negotiated with the 11 major steel firms.

The announcement came shortly after McDonald said the union offered independent steel firms the same terms offered to the 11 major producers. It amounted to a strike threat.

I-J WINS TWO FIRST PRIZES FOR PROMOTION CAMPAIGNS

The Independent-Journal today won two first prizes and a merit certificate in the annual competition for newspaper promotion campaigns sponsored by the National Newspaper Promotion Assn. and Editor and Publisher Magazine.

I-J Business Manager Wishard A. Brown and Promotion Manager Ray M. Rogers will accept the awards Tuesday at the association's annual convention in Atlanta, Ga.

First places were won by the paper in the retail advertising and readership promotion campaigns, while the I-J's carrier promotion campaign won the certificate of merit.

These were the only categories which the paper entered, Rogers said. The I-J was competing against papers of up to 100,000 circulation, he said.

Only three newspapers succeeded in capturing three awards in the national competition. Besides the Independent-Journal, they were the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times and the Philadelphia Inquirer.

FBI Joins In Search For Suspected Slayer Of Girl

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has joined the search for 24-year-old Virgilio Restauro, charged with the murder of his girl friend, Nonita Vicera, 16, of Daly City, whose body was found near Muir Woods on Good Friday.

A fugitive warrant has been issued by U. S. Commissioner Richard Goldsmith charging Restauro with unlawful flight to avoid prosection. Bail on the warrant has been set at $50,000.

Investigators today were still trying to track down the murdered girl's activities after she was seen getting on a 10:50 a.m. Daly City bus for San Francisco April 16. She apparently transferred and efforts are being made to trace the driver of the next bus.

The girl's body was found Monday. Restauro's bloodstained sports car was discovered Tuesday in Golden Gate Park.

President Signs Indian Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson signed a bill today that will pump more money into job training for American Indians.

It authorizes $15 million a year to train Indians in institutions, on the job, and in apprenticeship programs. All these programs are going to be adapted especially to needs of Indian men and women.

India Reports Tank Attack

NEW DELHI (UPI)—An official Indian government spokesman said tonight Pakistan has launched massive attacks with thousands of troops and tanks against Indian territory in the Rann of Cutch.

"It is very near war when you start using tanks," he said.

He said Indian troops "returned the fire effectively."

The Rann of Cutch is a chief commissioner's state in West India which borders Pakistan and touches on the Arabian Sea. It is a treeless, barren and rocky area valued chiefly for its brine deposits.

U.S. Continues To Hammer North Viets

Support Being Sought On War From The Public

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) —An armada of 66 U.S. Air Force jets hammered at road convoys and a ferry installation in Communist North Viet Nam today in round-the-clock attacks.

A military spokesman reported that six U.S. Air Force B57 Canberra jet bombers blasted an anti-aircraft site and a truck convoy last night in North Viet Nam. He said all planes returned safely.

CALLED NONSENSE

In Washington, the State Department is trying to find ways to boost public support for the United States' Viet Nam policy and to dispel what Secretary of State Dean Rusk calls nonsense about the war there.

Prime targets of the campaign are the professors and students who have been outspokenly critical — sometimes with demonstrations — of the use of American military force in the Southeast Asian conflict.

Rusk spoke bluntly last night to the American Society of International law, whose membership includes many university professors. A former college teacher himself — at Mills College, Oakland, Calif. — the secretary of state said:

PLAIN FACT

"I continue to hear and see nonsense about the nature of the struggle there.

"I sometimes wonder at the gullibility of educated men and the stubborn disregard of plain facts by men who are supposed to be helping our young to learn — especially to learn how to think."

U.S. officials indicated, meanwhile, they are considering issuing another official "white paper" to spell out the government's view on Viet Nam. The State Department also is planning to send more speakers around the country in response to mounting requests for government spokesmen to discuss Viet Nam.

The daylight raids were carried out in two operations. Six Canberra jets attacked a road convoy in strafing attacks on routes 7, 8 and 12. A spokesman reported they knocked out the convoy and an antiaircraft site.

Later 35 F105s supported by 25 jet fighters struck a highway bridge and docking ramps at a ferry crossing near Vinh, 135 miles south of Hanoi, the North Viet Nam capital. The bridge was reported destroyed. There was no indication whether any planes were lost.

In the ground war, a large force of Communist Viet Cong

San Quentin Employee Is Slain By Prisoner

RALPH CANNING
Stabbed 18 times

Inmate Questioned In Stabbing Death

A San Quentin Prison inmate was being questioned today about the brutal stabbing murder yesterday of prison factory foreman Ralph Canning, 54, of Oakland.

A prison employee said Armando G. Sanchez, 33, of Los Angeles was being questioned by the Marin County District Attorney's Office in connection with the slaying. He is serving his fourth term on a narcotics peddling conviction.

Associate Warden James W. L. Park, however, declined to confirm whether Sanchez was the suspected killer.

Canning was stabbed at least 18 times while working in the prison's clothing factory at 2 p.m. yesterday. It was the first time in 13 years that a prison employee had been killed.

Park identified the murder weapon as a homemade knife—"a flat piece of steel, five and a half inches long which tapers to a sharp point."

He said Canning was stabbed in the chest, back and on both arms. Investigators said wounds on his left arm indicate he may have struggled with his assailant.

Bloodstains found on the floor indicate he staggered 57 feet to a glass enclosed office to call for help.

"We have interrogated some

Wind, Rain Tears Away River Dike

DUBUQUE, Iowa (UPI) — Harsh wind and rain tore away at a key dike protecting Dubuque today, and a contractor said that if it gives out, the city's entire levee system would be washed away.

Several sand boils developed in the flooding Mississippi along a two block stretch of the Hawthorne Street dike, and authorities appealed for sandbaggers and truck loads of raw dirt.

"You can feel the vibrations from the waves all along the dike," contractor Henry Kieffer said.

More than an inch of rain during the night turned the 15-foot mound of clay into a glob of slippery yellow mud which hampered trucks and volunteer workers.

At the Dodge Street ramp of the Julien Dubuque Bridge, the only highway span open for miles along the Mississippi, workers doubled the number of sandbags during the night. Trafric continued to move slowly through the sandbagged gulley that is keeping U.S. 20 open.

The sandbags were piled higher than the tops of cars on both sides of the street. High compression pumps churned away, returning seepage from behind the dikes back into the swollen river.

Shrieking winds knocked out power at a flood control headquarters near New Boston, Ill., about 100 miles south of here. The New Boston levee was reported damaged. Civil defense workers patrolled the levee rim,

Johnson Orders Tax Break For Military In Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) —President Johnson today exempted non-commissioned military personnel from federal income taxes while serving in the Viet Nam area and gave officers serving there an exemption of $200 a month.

Johnson, by executive order, made the tax relief retroactive to last Jan. 1.

It applies to all American military personnel serving in Viet Nam and adjacent waters, which extend roughly 100 miles from the entire coast of North Viet Nam.

The exemption applies to the time actually served in the Viet Nam area.

For example, a non-commissioned officer who served there for six months this year could exempt only one-half of his compensation from federal taxes.

For purposes of exemption, warrant officers, are regarded as non-commissioned personnel. They rank just under commissioned officers.

Acting under a section of the revenue code, Johnson, in effect, declared the Viet Nam area to be a combat zone.

There has been considerable agitation in Congress and elsewhere for a tax break for personnel serving in the Viet Nam area.

In addition to tax relief during the time military personnel serve in the Viet Nam area, the same tax exemptions will apply during any period of hospitalization resulting from such service.

"This is what we wanted to get done, to sit at a conference table to discuss their grievances and get out of the streets."

Span Board Mixed Over Bridge Bill

Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors yesterday viewed wtih mixed reaction a Senate bill which would permit the bridge district to construct a second bay crossing.

The bill (SB-905) was introduced on March 31 by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, and co-authored by Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael.

The legislative committee of the bridge district unanimously endorsed the bill and sent it to the full board for approval. However, Director Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco, who is not a member of the legislative committee, objected.

He said bridge directors have not studied the possibility of building a new bridge or consulted with boards of supervisors of their counties. The public, Leonoudakis declared, may conclude that the district is trying to perpetuate itself.

County Set For Its War On Poverty

Marin County will start rolling up heavy artillery in its phase of the "war on poverty" Monday when the board of supervisors is expected to back a $138,188 application for federal funds.

The application, under the 1964 Economic Opportunity Act, would finance special education programs for the poor, child care and pre-school training, help for married teen-agers and for unwed mothers.

The application also will increase the staff of the county community relations services to administer the program. It will be run by Walter Bremond, director of the Community Social Services in Marin.

To be added to his staff under the proposal would be an assistant, a research analyst, a statistical clerk, a payroll clerk and a clerk typist.

Part of the staff function will be to prepare a county-wide "profile" on poverty.

In addition to the professional staff the proposal envisions immediate hiring of three non-professional, neighborhood workers for "poverty communities."

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Teen Sweethearts Found Dead

SAYREVILLE, N.J. (UPI)—Authorities today attempted to confirm suspicious of double suicide by a teen-age boy and girl who died in each other's arms on a flame-swept New Jersey beach.

John

The fire roared through the tinder-dry weeds for more than an hour on a lonely man-made strip of land that juts into Raritan Bay, south of Staten Island, 30 miles from Times Square.

Firemen put the fire out Thursday night and left, unaware that out there in the center of the charred brushland a teen-age boy and his secret fiancee had died by fire in each other's arms. Police suspected it was a double suicide.

Tormented by her parents' objections to the romance, the girl had written a note and she left it in a wallet at her home here: "I want to be buried with Jack."

Virginia

The bodies of Virginia Zubrick, 16, a high school sophomore honor student, and John Connors, 18, a tall grave worker from nearby South Amboy, were found yesterday, clinging together on the lonely strip of burnt land.

"I love you Jack. I will always love you," said another note written by the girl. The couple, recently engaged, was planning to be married.

Prohibition Era Gangster Dies

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Owen Vincent (Owney) Madden, 73, prohibition era gangster and racketeer who ruled by terror in New York and New Jersey, died early today.

Madden

Death came from chronic emphysema, ending Madden's 30 years of quiet retirement.

Madden's blazing underworld career spanned two decades of bootlegging and racketeering.

Between 1910 and 1934, police accused Madden of six killings, but he served only two prison terms—one for "instigating" the slaying of Little Patsy Doyle and another for parole violation.

In November, 1922, Madden entered a night club in the district and told the patrons: "Put away your guns. I am unarmed." A few hours later, three men fired 12 bullets into Madden but he recovered.

Within a week of the shooting, his assailant had been killed. Authorities were unable to link Madden to the death.

While in New York's Sing Sing Prison, Madden admitted to operating a brewery at 10th Avenue and 24th Street in New York City that turned out 300,000 gallons of beer each day.

In 1935, he retired to Hot Springs in ill health, scarred by numerous bullets.

Some Imprisoned Yanks Get Mail

NEW YORK (AP) — The Red Cross is trying to open a channel of communication between relatives and 13 American servicemen imprisoned by the Communist Viet Cong.

The wife of a Navy pilot shot down last August has received 14 letters.

"I'm very thankful he is still alive and apparently well," said the wife of Navy Lt. (j.g.) Everett E. Alvarez Jr. in San Jose, Calif., yesterday.

The 26-year-old pilot was shot down in a raid in the Gulf of Tonkin.

"The letters are in his handwriting," she said. "He mentioned he has received my letters. He always expresses hope of coming home."

The International Red Cross forwards the mail.

Rita McClure of Chattanooga, Tenn., who was a bride of only nine days when her husband, Spec. 5 Claude E. McClure, was sent to Viet Nam in July 1963, has been writing to her husband since the Red Cross wrote her about the mail project last September.

"I stopped writing after a while because I received no replies," she said. "About a month ago, the Red Cross sent me another letter. Now when I write letters to him, I get a reply each time."

McClure, 25, entered the Army in 1959. His father is dead and his mother, Agnes H. McClure, lives in Yonkers, N.Y. He was captured by the Viet Cong on Nov. 24, 1963.

For the others, the last letters received from relatives came just before the Viet Cong captured them.

That is the case with Sgt. Harold Bennett of Perryville, Ark., sixth of nine children of Mrs. Gordon Bennett. He has been in the Army for seven years and went to Viet Nam in October.

The last word Mrs. Bennett had was a letter on Dec. 28, 1964. The letter said he had a fine Christmas. The same day she got word that he was missing.

"If he's a prisoner," Mrs. Bennett said, "then he must be all right. This is good news."

Air Force Lt. George E. Flynn III of New Orleans presumably doesn't even know that he has a baby girl, Georgia Aline, born Oct. 2, 1964.

Flynn arrived in Viet Nam in April 1964. The last word his wife received was on Sept. 23 when he wrote of an upcoming mission. His wife and three children live in New Orleans.

Staff Sgt. Kenneth Roraback, 33, of Fayetteville, N.C., was captured last Nov. 24 and his wife has not heard from him since. She said the Red Cross tried to reach him.

"They've tried, but I haven't heard," Mrs. Roraback said. Her husband is a 15-year Army veteran. His hometown is Baldwin, N.Y. His wife of 7½ years lives in Fayetteville with their four children. The oldest is 6.

Another North Carolinian held by the Viet Cong is Sgt. 1.C. Daniel L. Pitzer of Lake City. He is 34, a veteran of 15 years in the Army. His wife of 2½ years said the last letter she received from him was mailed before his capture on Oct. 29, 1964.

Three Killed In Auto Crash

VALLEJO (AP)—A 34-year-old Sonoma mother, her 14-year-old daughter and a friend were killed yesterday in a head-on collison on state route 37 eight miles north of Vallejo.

The Highway Patrol identified the victims as Mrs. Iowa Louise Tolle; her daughter, Louise, and Audrey B. Luchini, 51, a passenger in Mrs. Tolle's car.

A patrolman said Mrs. Tolle's westbound car struck an auto driven by Byron A. Piner, 54, of Los Angeles. Piner's car was eastbound and trying to pass another car when the collision occurred, patrolmen said.

GOP Group Claims Johnson Congress Is Rubber-Stamp

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Republican congressional group said today Congress is turning into a rubber stamp for President Johnson.

Its chairman, Rep. Bob Wilson of California, declared:

"There is a dangerous mood in Congress. Do what the President asks and don't argue."

Wilson added: "This session of Congress could well mark the beginning of the end of one of the most vital facets of our system of government — that of a deliberative, and I emphasize the word deliberative, legislative branch."

The committee was formed to help elect Republicans to the House.

Its newletter compared the performance of the 1965 Congress with the 100 days after President Franklin D. Roosevelt's inauguration in 1933, and reported a major difference.

It said Roosevelt "used the shotgun approach on the problems of his day, firing at many targets in hopes of hitting some."

In contrast, it said, Johnson and the congressional Democrats, who have the greatest majority since Roosevelt's New Deal, "have carefully plotted every move," thus turning the legislative branch into a rubber stamp.

The committee said the new health care bill was rushed through the House without public hearings on the measure in its present form; the $1.3-billion education bill was pushed through with only one amendment in the House and none in the Senate; the Appalachia aid measure was approved by a Senate committee after only two days of public hearings and the same committee held only one day's hearings on a water pollution measure.

The newsletter said Johnson "seems increasingly incensed at the reluctance of the press to give complete and uncritical support to all his policies."

Biracial Group Leaves Campus At 'Ole Miss'

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI) — A biracial group whose attendance at a literary festival touched off the first racial violence at the University of Mississippi in more than two years left the campus last night under police guard.

Police early yesterday dispersed a group of shouting students from in front of a domitory where a white professor and two white male students from predominantly Negro Tougaloo College were staying.

The university offered an apology to the group. Last night, Tougaloo English instructor Roy Rohrbaugh, the two white students and three Negro coeds left the campus "for our own personal safety."

George Owens, Negro president of Tougaloo, came to Oxford to drive them back. Campus police escorted them off the campus, Owen said, and a highway patrol car "was with us to the gate" at Tougaloo in Jackson.

"We were informed bigger and better things were planned for tonight," Rohrbaugh said. "They would not move us from the dormitory where everybody knew we were staying."

Thursday night students painted "nigger" on the side of the visitors' car, slashed its tires, hurled bottles at it, broke three windows and put sugar in the gas tank.

VICTIM COLLAPSED HERE—San Quentin Prison Warden Lawrence E. Wilson and Associate Warden James W. L. Park stand outside office to which prison employee Ralph Canning staggered yesterday afternoon, after being stabbed at least 18 times by a prison inmate in the textile factory shop. Canning was found by another employee, sprawled on the office floor. He died minutes later.

40 inmates who were in the vicinity," Park said, but he was unsure whether there had been any eye-witnesses to the stabbing.

Canning was found on the floor of the office by another factory employee, C. J. Maylin. He was taken into surgery at the prison hospital but "the wounds were too extensive," Park said. He died at 2:25 p.m. "We surmise the stabbing was the work of just one man," Park said today.

It was the first such killing since guards Charles D. Wiget and Vern A. Mackin were hacked to death with a hatchet by prisoners Eugen Burwell and James Alonzo Fogers during an escape attempt in January, 1952.

Burwell and Rogers were executed April 15, 1958.

Canning is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ena May Canning and a son, Lyall R. Canning. He came to San Quentin March 1, 1963 after working 10 years with a San Francisco clothing firm. He lived in Winnipeg, Canada, before that.

STABBING SCENE—San Quentin Prison Warden Lawrence E. Wilson examines bloodstains on the floor of the prison's textile factory shop. Investigators say these drops of blood indicate prison employee Ralph Canning was assaulted with a homemade knife here, next to the sewing machine, then fought his way to a glass enclosed office to call for help. Authorities are questioning an inmate suspected of wielding the murder weapon. (Independent-Journal photos)

The action began yesterday when several hundred Viet Cong attacked a base where a government junk force of 66 sailors and 14 militiamen were stationed on a Mekong River estuary. At the end, 32 defenders were killed or missing. The survivors, including seven wounded, managed to escape but lost 34 weapons.

During the night, a pilot reported seeing three metal junks, each one 50-to 60-feet long, accompanied by three smaller planes in the area. In air strikes during the night and today, two of the sampans were sunk, the Vietnamese reported.

The Viet Cong also overran a government post 15 miles south of Saigon yesterday killing 16 and wounding 15 of the 33 defenders and making off with 32 rifles and a machine gun. Government artillery hammered the enemy and the post was reoccupied Satirday, but the Viet Cong had moved out.

Teen-Age Safety Aide Late For Good Reason

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The President of the Kansas Teen-Age Safety Association, Gene Beatty, 17, of Wichita, was unable to preside at its annual safe-driving conference yesterday.

Hiker Tells Of Adventure In Trek Across Alaska

SEATTLE (UPI)— James Acheson, 23, a former Marine from Fairfax, agreed Saturday "it's no disgrace to lose to nature" after failing to complete his 800-mile hike from Nome to Fairbanks, Alaska.

Acheson's personal account of the venture in which he nearly lost his life in the rugged Alaskan wilderness arrived here by mail yesterday.

Acheson embarked on his lonely journey March 30 with only a rifle, a pistol and four days supply of food along with some outdoor gear.

He got into trouble when he ran into high open water on the Siroski River about 300 miles from this starting point.

Acheson planned to hike back to Fish Creek and down the Unalakleet River to a fishing cabin where he would spend the night hoping for a freeze which would lower the Siroski. Barring that, Acheson planned to hike towards the river's source where he hoped to find a spot to cross.

Crossing Fish Creek, Acheson ran out of luck.

"I had had a little trouble crossing on the way up because of rotten ice," he said. "Further thawing that night weakened the ice even more.

"I had trouble keeping my balance. The fresh ice would break when I stepped on it and the water-slick ice below kept me scrambling.

"As I stepped, I'd probe with my pole. Without warning the ice I was standing on broke. It tilted up like an overbalanced raft and I fell into the creek.

"I was close to willows so I instinctively grabbed a branch. I wanted to pull myself up but I couldn't make my arm work.

"Finally, by moving from willow to willow and then to semi-firm ice, I was able to brace myself enough to slip out of my pack. With my pack off I was able to crawl up onto the ice without it breaking.

"On the other side the first thing I did was change my clothes—everything. My only thought was getting to town. my pack and sleeping bag were soaked. I left them and carried only my weapons, matches and camera. I wanted to move fast.

"I made it to Unalakleet that night.

"I can't help but feel disappointment. But I did my best and like they say: That's life."

Heart Disease Plan Criticism Rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Surgeon General Luther L. Terry yesterday rejected criticism from the American Medical Association (AMA) of a plan for conquering heart disease, cancer and stroke.

The plan for medical study complexes, and other programs was recommended by a presidential study group. The AMA recently attacked it as a threat to medical education and medical care and said it would produce a "false and hollow expectation of success."

To Be Honored

Richard P. O'Connor, former Santa Venetia resident and 20-year employee in the San Rafael office of the Internal Revenue Service, will be honored for his 20 years of service May 21 at the annual gold and silver ball of the revenue service at the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco.

Tars Service Club Charter Is Revoked

Charter of the Tars Service Club at the College of Marin has been revoked by the students' executive council, but members of the club said yesterday they intend to fight the decision and have found a lawyer to help them.

The council revoked the new group's charter after it was learned new members were expected to carry a gold painted brick around the campus during the day, sweep the cafeteria, paint garbage cans and wear suits.

Club members claimed the rules were intended to promote spirit among apathetic students. Al Kelly, editor of the Tower Times, student newspaper, thought it was hazing, and hazing is specifically prohibited by state law.

The charter was revoked in a meeting of the executive board Tuesday. No member of the Tars had previously been notified, and the club has asked for a new hearing.

However, said Tars president Les Wisner, the group will not be allowed back into good graces on condition of dropping its "spirit-raising" activities. In fact, he contended, the executive council had no legal right to state what is and what is not hazing. An attorney should have done so.

Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino has been asked to give an opinion by Monday.

Terra Lindan Found Dead In Garage

Peter A. Martens, 63, of 765 Beachnut Court in Terra Linda was found dead this morning in the garage of his home, a victim of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Martens, a hardwood floor layer for a San Francisco firm, was found by his wife, Mildred, at 5 a.m. today after she awoke and smelled fumes in the house.

Mrs. Martens said she found her husband in their car, the engine still running and a vacuum hose extending from the exhaust pipe into a window of the auto.

Mrs. Marten said her husband had been despondent in recent years.

Asst. County Coroner William C. Bradley attributed the cause of death to carbon monoxide poisoning.

Martens, a resident of Marin for the last four years, had lived in California since 1921. He was born in Manchuria, China. Martens served in the Navy in World War II.

Sausalitan Injured As Auto Rolls Over

Daniel S. Henkel, 19, of 109 South Street, Sausalito, was in good condition in Marin General Hospital today with facial injuries and a possible concussion after his car ran off Paradise Drive near Tiburon at about 9:30 p.m. yesterday.

California Highway Patrol said the car rolled on its side. Henkel told officers he was not familiar with the road.

Sabula, Iowa, a low-lying town of 1,000 population 50 miles south of here, was threatened with inundation. About 200 persons including women and grammar school children turned out at dawn to reinforce the dike. Officials warned most of the town would become a lake if the dam broke.

More rain and thunderstorms were predicted.

Dubuque's dikes rode through the storm's first phases successfully despite 1.13 inches of rain. But Paul Becker, chief Weather Bureau forecaster, warned the dikes might break if rains and wind resumed as predicted.

"The high winds and rains will play havoc with the dikes," Becker said.

A civil defense official at Rock island, Ill., said the swollen Mississippi was rising at a rate of "about an inch an hour," threatening the populous quad cities of Rock Island and Moline, Ill., and Davenport and Bettendorf, Iowa.

Workers here rebuilt battered sections of a dike on U.S. 20, maintaining an access to the only cross-river bridge still open along a 175-mile stretch. Floodwaters washed over the highway during the night, temporarily closing the span, but it was pumped dry enough to permit reopening.

eral money and $5,714.30 (10 per cent) in county contributions.

The local obligations can be met in providing office space and loaning staff to the project. County Administrator Alan Bruce explained that the county share thus will not all be in straight cash outlay.

Under the education phase, to be administered by the Marin Council of Community Services, will be an after school study center.

The education portion will require $11,890, 10 per cent of which will be in office space, class room use and supplies from the council of community services.

The application also seeks $44,957 in federal funds for development of a child care center in Marin City. This will be administered by the county superintendent of schools office and will require contributions of 10 per cent.

There would also be a preschool education program to be administered by the Sausalito school district. Cost is still to be figured.

Under youth services, $13,629 would be requested for a program to benefit teen-age married couples. The Marin County YWCA would administer this and provide 10 per cent of the cost.

There would also be a program for unwed mothers. Application is for $10,420 in federal funds with the YWCA administering and contributing 10 per cent.

The application will be before the board in its afternoon session Monday. The board will convene at 2 p.m., but the program is item 41 on the agenda and probably will not come up until late in the day.

Marinite Wins Tailor Trix With Wedding Dress Change

By EUNICE FARMER

Mrs. Charles E. Ross of San Rafael is this week's winner of a Tailor Trix pressing board for her suggestion on redoing wedding gowns.

"Here's my suggestion on what to do with that beautiful (and expensive) white satin wedding gown. Shorten to dress length. Make a black lace dress, following the same pattern lines as the satin dress to go over the white satin. The top could be cut very low at the neckline or strapless so that the bare shoulders show through. Add a red rose to the waistline and you have a nice Spanish effect."

May I add—if the style of your gown is much too full, you may take it apart, re-cut the satin from a new pattern and cut the lace the same. Treat the two layers as one and construct the entire dress over. This is the year for lace, so this would be an inexpensive way to have the latest style.

The following four alterations are those you have asked for the most often in your letters. I shall include many more so write me about your fitting problems and we'll try to solve them.

1. Large, full bust, but hollow in the chest: Take a ¼ inch fold at center front of bodice (4 inches below shoulder). This fold tapers to nothing at the armhole. You will probably need extra length on the bodice front. Darts below bust and at the underarm should be made deeper.

2. Round shoulders: Cut bodice back about 3 inches below shoulders and spread ½ inch at center back to nothing at armhole. Also, add a small dart at each side of the center back on the neckline.

3. Swayback: There is too much fabric just below the waistband of your skirt because you are extremely flat at this place. Take a ¼ inch fold at the center back 3 inches below the waistline, tapering to nothing at the side seams. This will make more of a curve at the waistline and a shaped facing for the skirt will be more satisfactory than the ordinary waistband which is cut straight.

4. Extremely flat chested: Take a ¼ inch fold at center front of bodice, 4 inches below shoulders, tapering to nothing at armhole. Decrease the size of both the underarm dart and the dart under the bust.

I am planning to make some linen dresses for summer, but after the experience I had last summer I'm afraid to begin. I made a beautiful linen dress, had it cleaned and it came back at least one size smaller. Should linen be pre-shrunk like wool?

Mrs. P. McM.

Dear Mrs. P. McM.:

Linen is very unpredictable and it is certainly well worth the effort to avoid the same catastrophe. There is no way to tell just how much linen will shrink. It will also depend on whether it is dry cleaned or washed. For anything you intend washing, I would place it in hot water, dry and press before making your garment. If your garment is to be dry cleaned, I would send it to the cleaners and have them shrink it before construction. This will take a little extra time and probably cost a few cents but it's better to be safe than sorry.

I want to make the tiny loops on the back of my girl's wedding gown and need help. Do you buy these loops already finished or make them?

Mrs. H.E.K.

Dear Mrs. H.E.K.:

The loops you are referring to are rather traditional with wedding gowns. They can be purchased ready-made, and I have seen this type on very expensive gowns. However, the most beautiful gowns have tiny self-covered corded loops. These are made with a tiny string insert and won't pose too much of a problem if you will send for my leaflet "Spaghetti Straps." These simple, step by step instructions are easy to follow and you'll be happy with the results. Send 10 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Sew Simple, in care of the Independent-Journal.

Mrs. William Blair Wins Delta Zeta's Civic Award

Presentation of the civic achievement award to Mrs. William L. Blair of Fairfax was one of the highlights of the annual benefit luncheon given by Marin Delta Zeta Alumnae yesterday at the Marin Golf and Country Club.

Lucile, or Lou as she is known to friends, has been a leader in her own sorority on national, province and local levels, as well as in Panhellenic.

A charter member of the Marin Delta Zeta alumnae chapter, she served as president two years and was president six years of the Northern California Province and a member of the national constitution committee.

The current vice president of the Northern California Council of City Panhellenics, she was corresponding secretary last year. She is delegate from Delta Zeta to the Marin County Panhellenic Assn. of the national Panhellenic conference.

Mrs. Blair is the current president of the Cascade Unit (Fairfax) of the Marin Foundation and served previously as president and twice as secretary. When the foundation was known as Friends of Arequipa, she was president two years.

A member of the Fairfax Guild of Sunny Hills for many years, she is a past president, and for a number of years she has been on the Fairfax election board.

Mrs. Blair was presented with a jewel box with Delta Zeta crest and inscribed with the words "civic achievement award, Marin County Alumnae."

P-TA Plays Role In Aiding The Children In Appalachia

By FRANK S. JOSEPH

CHICAGO (AP)—Because Jennelle Moorhead felt that time doesn't wait for a child, a tide of books is pouring into Louisville, Ky.

The books are destined for the one- and two-room schoolhouses of Appalachia, "where the wind whistles through the cracks in the walls" and there are few libraries, Mrs. Moorhead said.

Mrs. Moorhead, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, said in an interview at P-TA headquarters in Chicago that she hopes the total of books will reach a million by June 15.

THE BOOKS INCLUDE children's classics and reference works "that will really open the eyes of youngsters to the outside world," she said.

The national P-TA has enlisted the cooperation of its 47,000 local units, the federal government, private enterprise and a group of 1,200 Kentucky college students who call themselves the Appalachian Volunteers.

MRS. MOORHEAD, of Eugene, Ore., said Books for Appalachia had become a reality when "I went to Washington Dec. 12 to talk to R. Sargent Shriver—chief of the Office of Economic Opportunity — about the role the P-TA might play in helping disadvantaged children."

"He talked to me about the need for books in Appalachia," said Mrs. Moorhead, 61.

"WHILE THE AID to Appalachia bill will aid the economy, time doesn't wait for a child. If they don't have books and supplies for today, then the days are gone very rapidly," she said.

Anti-Marincello Emotions Peril Hearings' Fairness

REASON SEEMS LONG since to have given way to emotion among opponents of the Frouge Corporation's planned community, Marincello.

It is most regrettable that unreasonable emotion has led to a vilification campaign of despicable dimension.

Individuals have been smeared falsely. Supervisor Kettenhofen was falsely accused of wrongful associations. He ran down the perpetrator of the falsity and obtained apologies. But attempting to right such wrongs is like trying to unring bells.

One doctored photograph used by the opposition has been shown to be a gross distortion of truth. But it continues to stir emotion against Frouge and Marincello despite its exposure for what it is.

In short, the conduct of some of the Marincello opponents has been unfair, abusive, misleading and otherwise unacceptable in a society of reasonable persons. It is time to call a halt to that sort of thing.

Responsible elements among Marincello opponents have an obligation to "blow the whistle" on their over-zealous colleagues whose belligerence leads them beyond the bounds of decency.

WHAT ARE THE facts?

Frouge Corp. holds a couple of thousands of acres of private property (west of 101 as you approach the Golden Gate Bridge) that inevitably will be developed for private use—for homes, businesses and perhaps some small industries.

Its development is inevitable because nobody seriously proposes taking it into public ownership. There is no compelling reason to do so.

Marincello is a planned community, planned by professional planners of recognized ability and repute. They have gone to great lengths to plan development in such a way as to preserve and in some instances enhance the natural beauties of the property.

They have prepared an overall master plan for development of all the property as a cohesive whole; it will NOT be a mishmash of 25-lot subdivisions each developed without regard for the other—as can be found in some areas of Marin.

DENSITY OF population?

Marincello is planned for less than half the population density of a development at Strawberry approved only a few weeks ago by the Board of Supervisors, without substantial public opposition.

Further, by judicious use of high-rise apartments, Frouge Corp. and Marincello planners hope to preserve comparatively large open areas. This is to be preferred to "wall-to-wall" single family residences on small lots, as are found elsewhere in Marin.

It is hard to think of any reasonable thing that Frouge Corp. could be expected to do in the way of planning that has not been done.

Why all the furor?

Nearly everybody who comes to Marin to live loves the beautiful scenery and is pained to see any of it changed.

A decade or two ago when John Oglesby, as county engineer of the era, sat on the county planning commission, he was wont to look over his spectacles upon occasion and observe, "Everybody in Marin seems to want to live opposite an undeveloped cow pasture —an they want somebody else to pay the taxes on the cow pasture without developing it."

Our county has progressed since then. Now you don't have to live across from the cow pasture in order to qualify as a militant opponent of any suggestion for its development.

Nobody lives across from Marincello. As envisioned, it could not be seen from Sausalito or from Highway 101.

There might be a way to see it from somewhere in San Francisco but it is hard to imagine just how that would be possible.

The only people whose sensibilities might be upset by having to look at it, are those with yachts big enough to cruise out through the Golden Gate and stand off Marin's southern ocean shore. They would have to be pretty affluent to be able to spend enough time out there to become "bugged" by the development, obviously.

But these facts haven't kept the active opposition—whatever its motivation—from whipping up a storm (and using the unsavory methods previously described).

WHAT CAN BE DONE?

Frouge Corp. and the Marincello plan deserve a fair hearing before the planning commission and thereafter before the Board of Supervisors. It is difficult to see how this is possible when the air has been so filled with misinformation, but they still are entitled to fairness.

In light of the public and private anti-Frouge and anti-Marincello comments by a couple of our County Supervisors, it is hard to see how that body could offer the assurance of a fair hearing on the matter.

Let us hope the uncommitted members of the planning commission and uncommitted supervisors are strong enough and numerous enough to insure a fair hearing and a fair verdict for Frouge Corporation's Marincello plans.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Elections Problems Call For Shakeups

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The fiasco of procedures for the April 20 election certainly calls for some drastic shakeups among the county employees responsible for it. . . . Mailing of two sample ballots was both stupid and expensive. I assume that the Registrar of Voters has the authority, as well as the responsibility, to run an election.

If so . . . he should advise, assist, cajole . . . and force if he must another county department to give all the information . . . to run an efficient election.

If he hasn't this authority, he should be given it; if he has, then he should be replaced, because he obviously doesn't know how to use it.

This sort of bungling defeats the democratic process; besides, it's damned expensive. . . .

I recall two elections ago, when the computers took over and hundreds of voters were deprived of their franchise because they either didn't know where their new polling places were, or literally couldn't get to them.

Drastic action is needed right now, to assure . . . proper planning . . . to give the electorate a fair shake . . . next time.

U.N. Failure Partly United States' Fault

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The tragic failure of the recent United Nations session is symbolic of what may well be the penultimate disaster for man on earth. As Americans, we bear a heavy portion of the blame for rendering the U. N. impotent at a time of greatest need.

Our original intent was a propaganda victory over Russia with respect to paying the cost of peace keeping. . . . We insisted on General Assembly power when we had control. We have lost that control by dilution. . . .

A study of the problem reveals that the U. N. charter envisaged only joint operations against "aggressors" and (unfortunately) made no provision for the vital role of "interposition" between combatants, which has been its primary function in Gaza, the Congo, Cyprus and elsewhere. Russia took the view that she would abide only by the charter's sharply defined provisions. We counted on the support of enough smaller nations in the General Assembly to comprise a one-third veto. No American official has expressed the view that we would help pay for a "peace operation" with which we disagreed.

What we thought would be a cheap and easy propaganda victory has been turned into a knife at the U. N.'s throat. . . .

The U. N. can still be saved as a tool to rescue mankind from suicide—but first we (and they) must recognize that rational and meaningful understanding are far more important than "cold war victories." The latter would lead inexorably to mutual destruction.

Scientific Reader Lauds Cancer Series

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Congratulations to the Independent-Journal on the cancer series, "The Savage Cell," a most informative and valuable group of articles. . . .

It is only the intelligently informed person who feels free to discuss rationally (rather than emotionally) with his physician the possibility of an ailment being cancerous, and who can recognize the need for immediate consideration instead of the delay in diagnosis so often the factor in fatal illness. And it is the intelligently informed citizens who, learning of the many specific sources of carcinogens and mutagens — the hydrocarbons and phenols in insecticides, food additives, and polluted air, and arsenicals in foods, drugs, and occurring with sodium fluoride in water supplies, can take . . . steps to avoid these hazards. . . .

Mr. McGrady, over 17 years as science editor for the American Cancer Society, has access to much inside information . . . of the scientific research on cancer.

. . . He is now free to speak out without censorship and thus report to the public concerning the exact state of our current knowledge of this disease.

The reaction of the tobacco industry to the statistical linkage of cigarette smoking with lung cancer, and the 15-year delay between the first publication of the statistical proofs and the eventual Surgeon General's report are evidence of the existing problem of communications. . . .

Mr. McGrady has admirably bridged this gap with his timely book. And the courage of the I-J to print a resume series is to be commended as a public service well done for the people of Marin County.

L. P. Aquilino Deserves Praise

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Bouquets to Mr. L. P. Aquilino of 5 Jordan Avenue, San Anselmo! For some years he has always been my "voting garage"—so I had no difficulty in locating my polling place. However, not only was his address omitted from the "polling place card," but his name was misspelled. Needless to say, this would make it practically impossible for anyone new to the area to find the address.

Mr. Aquilino called the Civic Center and asked that his address be given to inquiring voters, and found out later in the morning that his address was being given as 5 Jordan Court. This is going too far.

He then posted signs for four blocks, and in addition was himself posted to make sure that he could lead as many confused voters as possible.

My vote goes to put Mr. Aquilino in charge of the next printing.

Parking Deck Better Used As Heliport?

Editor, Independent-Journal:

After observing the barren upper deck of the Second Street parking lot, I wonder if anyone has thought of the wonderful Heliport it would make?

Convenient parking on the lower deck, and perhaps a nearby coffee shop and a travel bureau or two.

Seems a shame to see all that space go to waste.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

GOP's Many Moderate Groups Not Sign Of Splintered Party

WASHINGTON — Some Republicans are raising worried eyebrows over the numerous Republican groups springing up all over the map — each trying to add some energy and oomph to the GOP.

THEY TEND TO SEE this self-generating ferment as a fatal splintering of effort leading to division and disaster.

I submit these separately upsurging Republican action centers are going to be the life of the party, not its death.

From the Republican Citizens Committee and Republicans for Progress to the academic groups like the Ripon Society at M.I.T. and the Trumbull Society at Columbia to the National Negro Assembly which is trying to rebuild Negro support for the party (and vice versa), these self-starters are showing that there are Republicans who aren't waiting around to be asked or told what to do.

Of course, it isn't quite tidy. It creates some problems for National Chairman Ray Bliss. It would be nice if all of these activities were springing full-blown from a well-financed National Committee. But they aren't, and it is far better for the GOP to have some untidy animation bubbling up for the grass roots than to have orderly somnolence.

ACTUALLY there is already a good deal of coordination. Each of the nine separate GOP groups is represented on a Council of Republican Organizations which exists to keep everybody, including Bliss, informed about what everybody is doing. Nobody is giving orders from the top, but neither is anybody shooting off in all directions without telling the others.

These various, citizen-oriented Republican action centers came into being, in part, to get the blood flowing in the veins of the party after it went down for the long count last November.

But these organizations are not just concerned with the motion of the party; they are concerned with its direction.

WHAT IS OFTEN overlooked is that all of these spontaneous groups are either moderate in viewpoint or even slightly left-of-center. Their largest purpose is to return the moderates to maximum influence in the Republican Party and to persuade elected Republican officials to support moderate rather than far-right policies.

These groups felt they had to work outside the Republican National Committee, since at San Francisco and after the moderates had been sentenced to some Republican Siberia.

The moderate Republican view is regaining its ascendancy. When it does, these groups will logically merge and meld into the whole. They are a source of strength to the party, not a source of weakness.

IT IS REVEALING that the only post-election party group which has not associated itself with the Council of Republican Organizations is the Conservative Union organized by former Congressman Donald Bruce of Indiana. The Conservative Union is seeking to draw together the most ardent Goldwater supporters and others of the far right, and it is they, not the moderates, who in the long run will give Mr. Bliss his worst headaches.

BARKER ON CHINA

Who Is To Inherit China's Leadership?

By GEORGE BARKER

Teng Hsiao-ping and Lin Piao are generally considered the two most likely successors to the mantle of Mao in case of his death or retirement in the near future. They are the junior members of the politburo, though both are about 60.

As general secretary of the Communist Party, Teng is pretty much in control of the party apparatus. He appears to have the edge. Lin is a professional soldier and spokesman for the powerful Red army. Teng has made his career as a dedicated party man in a society where the party is now all-powerful.

TENG IS A COMPACT, bullet-headed, highly articulate man who looks younger than his years. Short in physical stature, even for a Chinese, he has been described as "a peppery Napoleon." He has an aggressive personality, laced with assurance and unencumbered with indecision.

One of the first Western officers to record a meeting with Teng was Maj. (later Brig. Gen.) Evans Carlson of the United States Marine Corps. Teng was a political commissar with the Eighth Route Army and Carlson was traveling in North China in July, 1938, observing the early stages of the Japanese invasion. Carlson described him as "short, chunky and physically tough, his mind as keen as mustard."

Teng's early background is obscure. Researchers have been unable to learn about his family. We do know that he is a native of Chiating, an important trade center located in southwestern Szechuan, and that he attended primary and middle school there. Some unknown force moved Teng to join a group of young Szechanese revolutionaries (including the present foreign minister, Chen Yi) in a work-study program in France, leaving Shanghai in 1920.

For five years in Paris, he remained an obscure figure, in contrast to the bright star of Chou En-lai, also studying in France. Teng joined the Chinese branch of the Communist Party, but his only known political activity in Paris was editing a Chinese Communist weekly sheet which earned him the nickname of "Doctor of Mimeographing."

TENG RETURNED to China but it was only with the breaking of the united front in 1927 and the unleashing of a violent anti-communist suppression that Teng began to stand out. He organized guerrillas, edited a Red newspaper and was an army instructor. He took part in the historic Long March and was personally aligned with the Mao group by the time they reached Yenan in 1935.

DURING THE NEXT 10 years he established his competence and reliability, working mostly as a political commissar, and was elected to the central committee. Since 1956 Teng Hsiao-ping has been general secretary and, as such, the party's executive officer. Yet his name is little known in the West. Except for his famous speech in Moscow in November, 1960, when, arguing with customary briskness, he called Khrushchev a liar before the comrades from 81 countries around the world, he seldom makes our headlines.

Teng is a man of considerable native intelligence and a hard-line Maoist. If he succeeds Mao as party chairman, there is little hope that the Chinese will soften in their attitude toward the West or to the Soviet Union.

A LITTLE GIRL—1963 model—had been on dozens of jet planes in her time, but this was her first overnight journey in an upper berth of a Pullman car. Somewhat frightened, she called out at regular intervals to her mother below, "Mommy, are you there?"

After many hours of this an irate gentleman across the aisle piped up, "Yes, mommy is here. And I'm here too. We're all trying to get a little sleep. So for heaven's sake, stop that confounded noise."

There was a moment of silence, and then a quavering little voice called out, "Mommy, was that God?"

STOMACH ILLS FOUND BY CAMERA

A tiny camera which can be swallowed and then takes color photos that spot stomach ulcers and cancers has been developed by Doctor Samuel Weiss of New York and his two doctor sons.

The diminutive camera, together with a flash unit the size of a string bean, are said to provide the most advanced method yet devised for detecting unsuspected stomach ailments.

Doctor Weiss said that the camera, with its 16 tiny lenses taking overlapping pictures of the entire lining of the stomach, has been used to examine 248 persons. Hidden cancers were found in three patients who might have died were it not for an early diagnosis.

Every effort should be made to uncover and root out infections, diseases or poisons that secrete themselves in both the human body and soul.

God endows man with all the talent and grace to overcome maladies, be they spiritual or physical. It is up to each of us to do all in our power to cooperate with Him.

Reds Still Have Big Schism

Russians Get Nowhere Trying To Woo Chinese

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Correspondent

The Soviet Communist party went to extreme lengths to mollify the Red Chinese. They got nowhere.

The schism remains wide and relations between the two have reached a stage of active competition for influence in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

The Soviet leadership came close even to humbling itself in efforts to mute the strident criticism from Peking, but failed to impress the suspicious Chinese. Today the Kremlin reflects little hope that the Chinese can be brought around, short of taking grave foreign policy risks which Moscow wants to shun.

Moscow does not lightly humiliate itself before a lesser power. There must have been motive behind it. The motive probably was to convince revolutionary elements around the world that the Russians did all possible to be reasonable, and that if there is no unity, the blame must rest with Peking.

Indeed, Communism is farther and farther away from unity as time goes by. There are 100-odd Communist parties in the world which can be considered operative. Of these, the Moscow party in a showdown could count on the support of about 65. The Chinese could count on the support of 11 parties and more than 15 splinter groups from the ranks of pro-Moscow parties. The remainder are wobbly or trying to remain on the fence.

An international Communist meeting in March, labelled "consultative" by the Russians, not only failed to show results, but brought denunciation from China. Peking said Moscow "ordered" 26 parties to attend. Only 19 did. China and five others ignored it, contending it was just another package of "Khrushchevism".

The meeting issued a call for still more meetings—bilateral, multilateral and "consultative" again, all supposed to look toward a new Communist world conference in the stlye of the 1960 Moscow meeting.

It is doubtful that any new world conference will come to pass. The Soviet press dropped the subject of the new meeting as soon as the delegates of the 19 parties left Moscow, as if indicating little hope for such a program.

The Chinese reaction was to brand the new Soviet leadership under Leonid Brezhnev as hypocrites pretending to oppose the United States while actually plotting for Soviet-American world domination.

As matters stand, there is every chance the schism will widen and the splintering process in the world movement will develop further.

Today there are two distinct parties in Belgium, Brazil, Ceylon, Colombia, Ecuador, India, Japan, Lebanon, Malaysia, Mexico, Nepal, Paraguay, Peru, Spain, Switzerland and Australia, and Burma has three parties, two of them pro-Chinese.

Backing the Chinese are parties in Albania, Cambodia, China, Indonesia, Japan (majority), Korea, Viet Nam, Laos, Malaysia, New Zealand, the Philippines and Thailand.

Wobbly or trying to remain neutral are parties in Algeria, Cuba, Pakistan, Turkey, Venezuela, Nigeria, Malagasy, Martinique, and a few others.

The Russians are supported by their European satellites—Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Romania (on some issues), East Germany, Hungary and Poland—by Jugoslavia and by parties in Australia (split), Argentina, Austria, Belgium (split), Bolivia, Canada, Ceylon (split), Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cyprus, Denmark, Ecuador (split), El Salvador, Finland, France, West Germany, Greece, Guatemala, Honduras, Iceland, India (split), Iran, Iraq, Ireland, Syria, Tunisia, Britain, Israel, Italy, Jordan, Lebanon (split), Luxembourg, Mexico (split), Morocco, Nepal, Holland, Nicaragua, Norway, Panama, Paraguay, Portugal, Senegal, South Africa, the Soviet Union, Spain (split), Sudan, Sweden, Switzerland (split), United States, Uruguay, Tanzania, and a few small African parties.

The Russians thus have a large number of parties behind them, but in numbers of Communists, the Chinese are strong. They dominate the Indonesian party, biggest outside the Red bloc and in a commanding position in its own nation. They have most of the influence in the big Japanese party, where the U.S.S.R. is heavily financing a splinter group struggling to be heard. In non-white, underdeveloped areas, the Chinese are making swift strides, using suspicion of white—including Russians—as a weapon.

Both the Soviet and Chinese parties remain opponent of America. The schism has turned Soviet policy-makers' attention westward in the hope that diplomacy will accomplish some of their aims through exploitation of divisions in the Western camp.

The schism now has gone to such lengths that probably only a brink-of-war crisis could mend it. Short of that, there will be spirited Chinese-Soviet competition for the loyalties of parties around the world.

PARKS, BEACHES FUND BREAKDOWN

How Governor Would Spend $68 Million This Year In Buying, Expanding Sites

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown has proposed authorization this year to spend $68,359,450 out of the $150 million beach and park bond issue for purchase of 37,160 acres of new properties.

Under the plan, there would be 7,461 family camping spaces; 5,719 family picnicking areas, and parking for 17,185 cars. Of the $85 million in the bond issue for land purchase, this would leave only $16.5 million remaining.

In addition, Brown proposed the spending of $2.5 million in bond funds for wildlife conservation projects—half of the $5 million authorized by the voters last November for this purpose.

Proposed projects:

1. Point Mugu, a 7,350-acre park in Santa Monica Mountains and along Los Angeles coast; 2,330 camping units, 800 picnic units, parking for 3,000 cars.

2. Rustic-Sullivan Canyons, $2,000 acres in Santa Monica Mountains above West Los Angeles.

3. Sugar Pine Point, 2,260 acres on west shore of Lake Tahoe at north edge of Meeks Bay for new park, 9,200 feet of lake frontage, 1,200 camping units, 10 group camps, 500 picnic units and additional parking for 300 cars.

4. Delta Meadows, 1,265 acres just off Sacramento River, 28 miles below Sacramento, including 14 miles of waterways, 245 camp units, 210 picnic areas.

5. Camp Pendleton-San Onofre Beach, northern San Diego county, mile-long public beach and 182 acres of upland camping area, with 400 camp sites, 100 picnic units.

6. Huntington State Beach expansion, Orange County, 30 miles from Los Angeles, 34 acres of land for parking facilities.

7. Lower Feather River, near Nicolaus, between Sacramento and Marysville, 5,830 acres with 14 miles of river, potential for 1,140 camping units and 640 picnic units.

8. Mount Tamalpais State Park expansion, Marin, 3,212 acres, including 4.5 miles of ocean front, with potential for 666 camp units and 400 picnic units.

9. Marin Headlands State Park expansion, purchase of 320 acres and lease of 2,964 acres, with 5,000 feet ocean front, 990 picnic units, 202 camp units.

10. Pfeiffer-Big Sur State Park expansion, 2,140 acres with three miles ocean front, 405 camp units, 240 picnic units.

11. Old Sacramento historic project, nine acres, with 700 feet of frontage on River.

12. Malibu Lagoon State Beach expansion, 11.6 acres, with 1,090 feet ocean front, connecting two separated state beaches, with 20 additional picnic units.

13. Fort Funston, ocean front southwest of San Francisco, 116 acres with 3,950 feet of beach front.

14. North Coast Redwoods, adding $10 million worth of redwood land to five existing parks on north coast, total of 11,356 acres, including 735 acres at Jedediah Smith Redwoods state park, 1,446 acres at Del Norte Coast Redwoods state park, 3,030 acres at Prairie Creek Redwoods state park, 235 acres at Grizzly Creek Redwood state park, 5,980 acres at Humboldt Redwoods state park.

15. Santa Monica State Beach, 3.5 acres to accommodate 560 cars.

Cigarette Tax Hikes Being Felt Everywhere

By ADVANCE NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON—A young man in Oregon wrapped up a carton of cigarettes, paid 26 cents postage, and mailed it to a friend in New York.

The cigarettes, less postage, cost $1.95 in Oregon. In New York City the same cigarettes would have cost $3.90.

This gesture of generosity, obviously not what the New York legislature intended when it doubled the tax to 10 cents a pack, illustrates the trend of cigarette taxation in the country—and what people are doing about it.

Taxes are going up, and the people are going around—when they can.

New York's 10-cent tax, effective April 1, put it ahead of the 47 other states that tax cigarettes. But this winter five states besides New York raised cigarette taxes, and increases are proposed in 12 more, including California.

The state taxes are added to federal tax of 8 cents a package and in many cases to city or county tobacco taxes.

The Tobacco Tax Council in Richmond, Va., looks glumly at the figures and the trend. The New York Tax, said executive director William O'Flaherty, is "unbelievable."

O'Flaherty believes cigarette taxes are increasing for two reasons. States are now demanding "an unbelievable amount of revenue at the state level," he said. And, once a cigarette tax is on the books, and the tax machinery is functioning, a raise becomes relatively easy.

"In most cases, it's strictly a revenue proposition," O'Flaherty said.

The Tobacco Tax Council contends high taxes place an unfair burden on cigarette smokers, who are estimated at 60 to 70 million people or half the adult population, and particularly on smokers in low-income groups. "The cigarette is their luxury," O'Flaherty says.

Smokers retaliate when they can. There probably won't be much shipment through the mails from Oregon to New York, but there already has been noticable activity among the commuters of New York City.

THIS WEEK In The World

No End To Bombings In Sight

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A week that started in a flurry of suggestions that this country suspend its air strikes against North Viet Nam ended with the heaviest blows against that country's supply lines since the air attacks began in February.

Yesterday more than 200 planes carried out 235 bombing sorties and destroyed seven North Vietnamese bridges and a ferry without the loss of a single plane, according to Air Force reports.

Last Sunday Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara echoed statements by President Johnson rejecting pleas by some neutral governments and American legislators that the bombing raids be halted.

"We have no indication," McNamara said, "that a cessation of the bombing would move the North Vietnamese to discussions leading to a termination of their aggression against the South."

McNamara added that any such move would discourage the people of South Viet Nam.

The Soviet Union, meanwhile, caught in a bind between its ideological conflict with Peking and its need for peace to achieve greater production, shook a finger at U.S. policy.

Premier Alexei N. Kosygin warned of possible retaliation for U.S. air raids over North Viet Nam and the alleged use of "poison gas" against the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam.

On the ground in South Viet Nam, a U.S. Marine patrol made its first solid contact with the Viet Cong rebels. Attacked by a guerrilla band, the Marines fought back with small arms in a brief engagement which ended with the enemy fleeing and one Marine slightly wounded.

Around The World Around The Clock

Pittsburgh—The possibility of a steel strike May 1 intensified with the rejection by the United Steelworkers Union of a new industry contract proposal.

New York — Vice President Hubert Humphrey led a procession of dignitaries who helped launch the opening day of the second season of the World's Fair. More than 150,000 people crowded into the Fair Grounds, about three times as many as opening day last year.

Birmingham—Gary T. Rowe, one of four men accused in the slaying of civil rights volunteer Mrs. Viola Liuzzo, was revealed to be an undercover agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

New York—Paul Jung, well-known clown who also produced routines and props for other performers, was found bludgeoned to death in his hotel room a half-block away from Madison Square Garden where the Ringling Bros. circus was making its annual appearance. His murderer is still at large.

Dubuque, Iowa—High winds and torrential rains created new problems for workers trying to stem the flooding Mississippi River menacing Dubuque's leaking levees. At least 15 persons have died in the Midwest floods, which caused property damage upwards of $100 million.

Mariner 4 Apparently In Good Shape

By GENE BYLINSKI
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — America's Mariner 4 spacecraft now speeding toward a July 14 rendezvous with Mars is weathering a hail of cosmic dust.

Scientists report the craft appears in good shape for the history-making photographic mission. But there is no way to tell now whether its television cameras will work.

The spacecraft was hit by at least 19,000 microscopic dust particles during the first half of its 228-day flight to Mars. However, fewer than 500 were big enough to penetrate the thin protective glass covering its solar cell panels.

Dr. W. M. Alexander of the space agency's Goddard Space Flight Center indicated these hits had not damaged the solar cell system supplying electricity to Mariner's electronic equipment.

Mariner still has approximately 100 million miles to cover in its journey spanning 325-million miles. Its television cameras will be turned on when the craft is six to 10 hours from its closest approach to Mars, about 5,400 miles.

If all goes well—and "a fantastic number of things could go wrong," warns one scientist—the cameras will snap 22 closeup pictures showing objects only two miles across. It will take more than eight hours to transmit each picture back to earth.

A Soviet probe, Zond 2, is also on the way to Mars. It is expected to approach within 930 miles on Aug. 6. Jack N. James, Mariner project manager at the jet propulsion laboratory, said if Zond 2 works "we can expect some exciting things."

He said the close approach should enable the Russians to put Zond 2 into orbit around Mars and perhaps put down a life-detecting capsule on the planet's surface. The U. S. has no plans for such an experiment until 1971.

Were Mariner to approach within 1,000 miles of Mars, it too would be "captured" by the planet's gravitational pull. Adjustments by firing small rockets could put the craft into a circular orbit. Orbiting Mars is not part of the Mariner flight plan, however.

There are no plans to test Mariner's television system in advance of its meeting with Mars for fear that its tape recorder may malfunction. A lens cover will be blown off by command from earth when Mariner is ready to take pictures.

As it speed through the blackness of space at 38,455 miles an hour with respect to earth, the craft is sending a wealth of scientific data on cosmic rays, magnetic fields, and other phenomena.

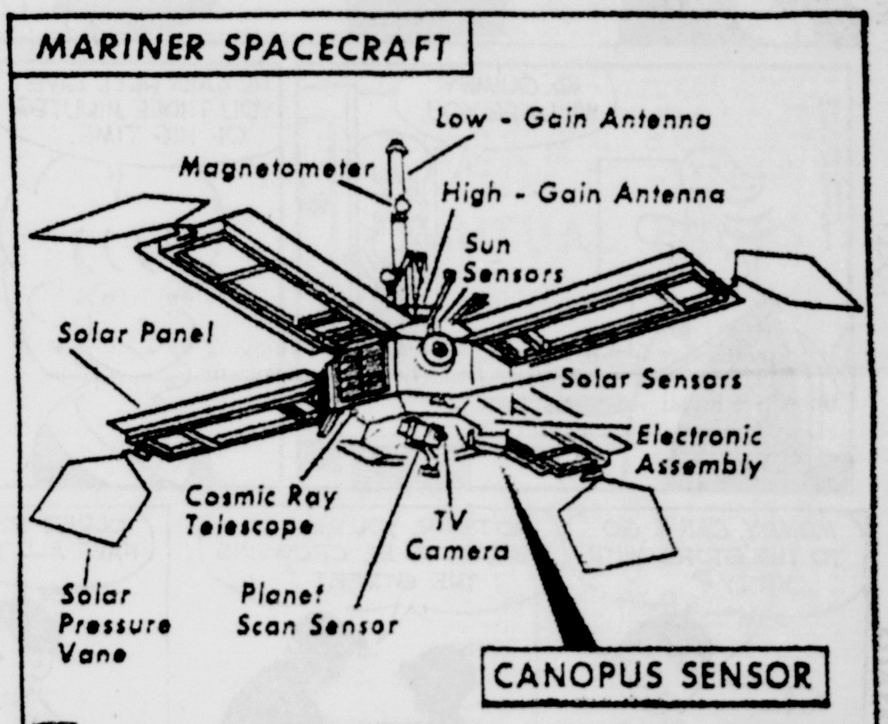
So far, the spacecraft has received a total radiation dose of about 20 to 30 Roentgens, or an equivalent of about 20 to 30 chest X-rays. A lethal X-ray dose is 400 Roentgens, but exposure to even 50 Roentgens can cause damage to vital organs.

Mariner's experience seems to indicate that men flying to the planets today would not be exposed to any serious radiation hazard.

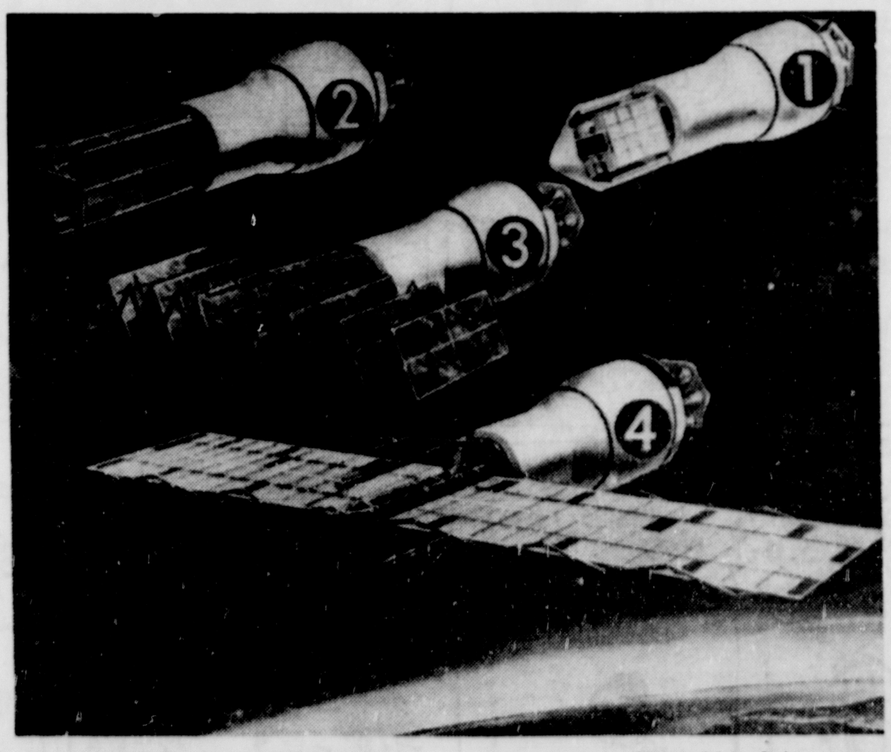
Sudden flares, or eruptions, on the sun can raise the radiation count substantially for short periods. One such flare last February is believed to have knocked out a Geiger counter aboard Mariner.

Other instruments on the spacecraft are working normally. They include detectors of cosmic rays, magnetism, and charged particles.

Scientists said Mariner observations so far agree well with data obtained in interplanetary space by the Mariner 2 spacecraft which measured the surface of Venus in December, 1962.



OUT IN SPACE—This is a diagram of the Mariner 4 spacecraft, now on its way to Mars. All the sensors systems, including the Canopus sensor, which has the craft locked on the star Canopus for help in guidance, can be damaged by cosmic dust. Scientists hope the dust will not damage the machine to the extent it will not be able to take photographs of the faraway planet.



DETECTORS—This shows a Pegasus which was launched early this year for the purpose of detecting space dust and meteoroids. Diagram shows how craft would look in space and how panels would unfold to record presence of objects. (AP Wirephoto)

It seems impossible to make a slam when the opponents have two sure winners, but it's just as impossible for the opponents to defeat your small slam if you win the first 12 tricks.

Opening lead — ♣ 10

West opens the ten of clubs, and dummy's king wins. Declarer leads a low trump to the queen, and West discards a diamond.

SOUTH SEES

Since a college student should know the difference between a heart and a diamond, South sees that he is sure to lose a trump trick.

Since the defenders also have a sure club trick, South seems doomed to defeat. Still, if South is nimble and quick he can avoid defeat.

South should lead a club to dummy first to make sure that East cannot discard the queen of clubs.

TOP DIAMOND

Then declarer cashes the top diamonds and ruffs a diamond. He follows with the top spades and a spade ruff.

South leads a trump to dummy's ace and returns dummy's last spade. East must follow suit, so South ruffs and cashes the king of trumps.

This gives him the first 12 tricks, and the defenders take their high club and the last trump on the same trick.

WELL OFF

South would be just as well off if East had only two or three spades. If East discards as a low spade is led from dummy, South ruffs with a low trump just as he does in the actual hand.

If East ruffs instead of discarding, South can dump his losing club and take the rest with natural trump tricks.

Whichever way it goes, South loses his low club and a trump on the very same trick.

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two spades.

If you count all the points, you may be tempted to make a stronger bid, but you should deduct a point or two because you have neither a king nor an ace. The point-count tends to overvalue queens and jacks, and you should make allowance for that.

MARIN'S TOP BOWLERS OPEN MASTERS EVENT

Some 75 top bowlers in the county will start competition tonight in the fourth annual Marin Masters Tournament, held this year at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael.

Half of the entrants will compete in the first squad games tonight starting at 7 o'clock, and the other half tomorrow, beginning at 1 p.m. Each bowler will roll four-game series in those opening qualifying rounds.

The top 15 bowlers, plus last year's Masters champ Mike Weddell, will then bowl the following weekend in a head-to-head double elimination series to determine the 1965 champion.

Mets Stun Giants In Wee Small Hours

By JACK STEVENSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "You're amazing, yep, the amazing Mets. Just amazing, tiring those fellows out."

Belying his 74 years, Casey Stengel was in bouncing good humor after his New York Mets rallied to score four runs in the ninth to tie the San Francisco Giants 8-8 and then go on to win 9-8 in the 11th early this morning.

Most amazing might be rookie Ron Swoboda who started the big rally with a pinch hit home run on the first pitch Gaylord Perry threw to him.

It was the 11th major league time at bat for the former University of Maryland athlete and his third homer.

Jesse Gonder followed with another round tripper on the next pitch and the Mets took advantage of two San Francisco errors with just one other hit for two more runs.

A television audience was scheduled to see today whether Casey's Mets had really tired the Giants. On the game-of-the-day program, Jack Sanford of the Giants was due to face young Tom Parsons in the second of the four-game series.

Swoboda couldn't hide his elation, saying, "I don't believe this, but it's great.

Gonder didn't start, but after the Giants scored six runs in the first two innings, Stengel made a strategic change to make him the catcher.

"I wanted my best hitter in there with the score so one-sided," Old Case explained.

"You know, I was going to take Joe Christopher out of there because he was limping around a little. It's a good thing I didn't."

Christopher scored the winning run, crashing into catcher Tom Haller and sending him sprawling as Willie Mays' throw came in from center field after Charlie Smith's long fly.

Christopher had drawn a walk from Jim Duffalo, the fifth Giant pitcher. He stole second and when Haller's throw went into center field, Joe continued to third.

"I just didn't get a good grip on the ball," said Haller of the play.

Perry worked until the back-to-back homers opened the ninth and then came a series of San Francisco relievers.

The Giants had driven Mets starter Gary Kroll out in the first and Jim Ray Hart greeted his reliever, Jim Bethke with a

U. S. Cagers Clobber Russians In S. F. Contest

Stallworth, Goodrich Spark 72-53 Victory

The United States basketball team has grabbed a 2-1 lead over the Russian cagers in their current cross-country exhibition series.

Dave Stallworth, former Wichita University All - American, paced the U.S. players with 26 points as they beat the Russians 72-53 last night in San Francisco Civic Auditorium. The Americans led 38-24 at half.

It was the first contest between the two teams that counts toward the world championship in basketball. The clubs played two non - championship games earlier and meet next on Sunday in Los Angeles.

Stallworth was all over the court, led scorers and rebounders. His three quick baskets midway in the third quarter ended a cold shooting spell and started the victory drive.

The Russians, whose aggressive fast-break play brought them a 70-62 victory Wednesday at Seattle after a 67-61 loss earlier in Las Vegas, Nev., for the third straight time lost four players beause of five fouls.

Albert Valtin, the Russians' 6-8 forward, scored 15 points in leading his side's scoring.

Stallworth's fine individual effort was assisted by All America Gail Goodrich of UCLA, who teamed with Stallworth for 29 of the Americans' 38 first half points and finished with 21 points.

Brazilian referee Renato Regatto was helped from the floor during the game after he doubled over in pain while running down court. A doctor said he suffered an acute disc injury.

ALONG MARIN'S SPORTS TRAIL

By JIM GILMARTIN
I-J Sports Editor

ALL SORTS OF SPORTS SHORTS:

The reason golf pro Bobby Finn jumped from Peacock Gap to the Marin Country Club was that green stuff you ask for by name. Where Peacock controls the pro shop—and the sales therein—Marin allows its pro to operate the merchandising as a personal venture.

BOB BOHANNA

Also rumored on the way out of Peacock: Ex-nat'l champeen Darlene Hard, the tennis pro who apparently hasn't found enough work at the old Gap. The parting would be mutually satisfactory, I hear, because shy gal Darlene's reticence hasn't won her any popularity awards with the personality kids of Peacock.

Peacock, by the way, will stage a top-flight pro tennis tourney late in May, featuring stars from the International Pro Tennis Players Assn. featuring Aussie wow boy Ken Rosewall who signed this week as Peacock's touring pro. A Gap-acity crowd is expected.

ANOTHER RUMOR: PGA chmp Bobby Nichols "secretly" signed as touring pro for the Marin Country Club. Since touring pros are strictly publicity gimmicks for clubs, why the big secret, if it's true? It's like a salesman hiding his identity and merchandise.

LOCH LOMOND Yacht Club Commodore Bob Bohanna and past-cmdr. Carroll Stoerker, co-owners of a 27-foot, twin-screw Owens cruiser beautifully named "Joint Venture," has worked out quite a satisfactory arrangement for use of their craft. Carroll "owns" it on the odd-numbered days and Bob's the boss on the even days. If they go out together, the date determines who is the skipper for the day.

P.S. I like that cute nickname LLYC's junior membership — "The Serpenteens," the club emblem being a serpent.

COMEDIAN JIMMY Durante and his long-time sidekick, Eddie Jackson, will be ringsiders at Monday night's Roger Rischer-Thad Spencer 12-round heavyweight fight at San Francisco's Civic Auditorium. Durante should feel right at home among the busted-beak fraternity. Only his ain't busted — it was born that way.

THE LINEUPS for the first Kiwanis North-South All-Star Football Game will be announced at a luncheon on May 5 at Woodland's Restaurant in Kentfield—just a good punt from the College of Marin gridiron where the game will be played next Aug. 26.

The game will match graduated stars from North Marin (Novato, Terra Linda, San Rafael, San Rafael Military Academy) against the South (Drake, Tam, Redwood, Marin Catholic).

MIKE KELLY, junior golf star from Redwood High, has had some pretty fair experience on the fairways, having caddied for the likes of Arnold Palmer, Gary Player et al at the California Golf Club in South San Francisco.

Mike, who wants to pattern his game after his favorite — Gary Player—is moving in the right direction. He recently won the low net trophy at the Marin Junior Championships at Peacock Gap and then on Thursday knocked off Marin Junior Champ Ray Leach on Leach's home course, Novato's Indian Valley, with a nine-hole card of six pars, two birds and a bogey.

WALT GILLIAM, winner of the 1965 San Francisco city golf championship, was named March "Athlete of the Month" by the Doggie Diner chain of eateries whose owner, Al Ross, added, "Runner-up was Masanori Murakami for his deft agility in avoiding everything."

Doggie Diners will heap prizes on Gilliam, including $25 worth of hot dogs. As runner-up, Murakami will get a barrel of soy sauce if he ever gets a yen to return to the Giants.

THE WAY San Rafael High's swimmers are breaking records and winning all meets, they must be drinking gas. Let's call them the Ethyl Mermen. I'm only fueling.

HILLARD WITT of Larkspur was elected captain of the University of Pacific freshman basketball team just after the recently concluded season. He's also a member of the Pacific tennis team.

PODRES SPARKLES—AND DODGERS FLYING HIGH

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Johnny Podres, taking a cue from Sandy Koufax, has elbowed his way back into the Los Angeles Dodgers' strongarm corps — most fearsome pitching array in the major leagues today.

Podres, who underwent elbow surgery last summer and was considered a bigger question mark than the arthritic-elbowed Koufax, made his first appearance since last May last night and blanked Philadelphia 4-0 on four hits.

The veteran southpaw's comeback, on the heels of Koufax' second complete-game victory — a 4-hit 2-1 decision over the New York Mets Thursday night — enabled the Dodgers to stay atop the National League with six victories in their first eight starts.

The New York Mets rallied for four runs in the ninth inning and another in the 11th to nip San Francisco 9-8; the Houston Astros edged Pittsburgh 4-3 in 12 innings for their first indoor victory and the St. Louis Cardinals, paced by Curt Flood, defeated Cincinnati 6-3 in other N.L. night games. The Milwaukee-Chicago Cubs matinee was rained out.

The Chicago White Sox topped Washington 5-3; Baltimore beat Boston 4-2; Cleveland trimmed Kansas City 6-2 and Minnesota outscored Detroit 8-6 in 10 innings in American League night action. Rain washed out the scheduled afternoon game between the Los Angeles Angels and New York Yankees.

Podres, who had not pitched an N.L. inning since last May and had not won since September, 1963, gave the Dodger staff its fifth complete game. Koufax, Don Drysdale, Claude Osteen, Podres and the supporting cast have given up only 12 runs, 10 of them earned, in 71 innings —an ERA of 1.27. They've held the opposition to a .145 batting average.

Walter Alston, the L.A. pilot, said he was surprised Podres had lasted more than six innings after a 12-day layoff since his last exhibition effort. The 32-year-old one-time Brooklyn Dodger had admitted before the game that he'd "been off so long now I feel weak.'

"I was as keyed up for this one as I've ever been for a World Series game," said Podres, who has won 134 games, including four in Series play.

He gave up a first-inning double to Richie Allen but didn't yield another hit until the sixth. He walked two, struck out four and allowed only two Phillies to reach second base in registering his first shutout and first complete game since July, 1963.

Willie Davis led the Dodgers' nine-hit attack with two doubles and a single as the hustling Californians beat Jim Bunning, now 1-2.

The Astros blew a 3-0 lead in the eighth inning before Rusty Staub's run-scoring single off Al McBean in the 11th gave them their first victory at their new domed stadium. Pittsburgh, blanked by Bob Bruce for seven innings, had tied it as Gene Freese capped a three-run rally by scoring from second on Willie Stargell's infield hit.

Flood led off the Cardinal-Red game with a home run against loser John Tsitouris and drove in two fifth inning runs with a single, helping Bob Gibson beat Cincinnati for the second time this season. Reserves Phil Gagliano and Tito Francona also had two hits each for the Cardinals, who played without MVP Ken Boyer. The third baseman complained of pains in his left side before the game.

Celts Win; Gun For Clincher Tomorrow

LOS ANGELES (AP) —The Los Angeles Lakers are in the unenviable position today of needing a victory over the Celtics on the Boston court to stay alive in the National Basketball Association championship playoffs.

The Celts took another step toward their seventh consecutive NBA title last night with a 112 - 99 comback victory at Los Angeles and now lead 3-1 in the best - of - seven series.

The teams will meet in a nationally televised contest tomorrow afternoon and seldom do the visitors enjoy much success in the Boston Garden.

Celtic coach Red Auerbach was expansive as he puffed on his traditional victory cigar.

"We've finally got out of our rut after playing miserably Wednesday night," Auerbach said. "We didn't do anything different, we just played better."

The Celtics won the first two games of the series and then lost the third, playing poorly in a 126-105 defeat.

Laker coach Fred Schaus said "We played pretty well even though we lost."

He was not critical of usually high - scoring Jerry West, who was held to 22 points, making just six of 27 attempts from the floor.

"West played nine great playoff games for us against Baltimore and Boston," Schaus said. "He can't play a great game every night. I wouldn't criticize him even if he had scored no points.

"If he's criticized by others, he is merely paying the price of being a superstar who scored only 22 points," Schaus added.

Boston's victory came on the strength of a strong second half effort that overcame a 61 - 55 Laker lead.

Superior rebounding, a deadly fast break and a balanced scoring attack were factors in the Celtics favor.

Outrebounded by the Lakers' Gene Wiley Wednesday, Bill Russell grabbed 23 rebounds to keep the fast break moving.

Sam Jones led the point production with 37, Tom Heinsohn added 17, Tom Sanders, 15, K. C. Jones, 14, John Havlicek, 12, and Russell, 12.

GIANT TRAINER MISSES WORK, WHICH IS NEWS

Trainer Frank Bowman of the San Francisco Giants has missed his first working day in 43 years.

He had to remain in his hotel room last night with a stomach ailment.

The 68-year-old trainer, who joined the Giants in 1949, had served with several athletic squads including the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

Filling in for Bowman was another veteran trainer, Henry Schmidt, who formerly worked with the University of Santa Clara and the San Francisco 49ers football team.

DeRosa Returns To Builders '9'

With Bob DeRosa pitching his first game since rejoining the Billings-Hutchinson semi-pro baseball team, the Builders will travel to San Francisco tomorrow to take on the S. F. Clippers, runners-up for the AAA title last winter.

The game, starting at 11:30 a.m., will be played on Hennessey Field at Funston Playground.

Leading the B-H hitters this season have been Jesse Munyon, Ernie DeMattei, Don Lauters, Dick Spackman and Tim Reardon, all batting over the .400 mark.

The Builders have won 13 of their last 14 games.

Cold Weather Golf Is Out For Venturi

United States Open golf champion Ken Venturi, plagued by a circulation ailment in his hands, said yesterday he won't ever be able to play again in cold weather.

"Since the cold affects the afflicted blood vessels in my hands, the doctors tell me I'll never be able to play tournament golf under cold weather conditions," Venturi told a news conference in San Francisco.

He does expect to play in the U. S. Open this summer.

Venturi returned to his Hillsborough home Thursday from the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., where he underwent a series of tests.

The 33-year-old San Francisco native shook himself out of a four-year slump to win the U. S. Open in Washington, D.C., the Insurance City Open and the American Golf Classic last summer.

He won further honors as the Comeback Athlete of the Year and the Professional Golfers' Association Player of the Year.

Late in the fall his hands began bothering him, and although he finished the Bing Crosby event at Pebble Beach in January, he played in agony.

He underwent diagnostic surgery in Los Angeles the following week and rejoined the PGA tour in Florida in March After the Masters, he checked into the Mayo Clinic.

"There is a chance I may have to undergo surgery in November," Venturi told newsmen. This, he added, would be to cut nerves in his hands to stop spasms.

"However, the doctors believe they may be able to cure me with a new drug, Cyclospasmol, which I'm using."

Venturi won't play for four weeks and will return to the Mayo Clinic May 23.

He said he had been told to rest his hands and each night take a 30 - minute hot paraffin treatment, and then take hand and finger exercises to increase the flow of blood to the fingers.

"I expect to play my first golf on National Golf Day, May 31," he said. "My first competitive tournament will be in the Buick Open the first week in June and I'll also play in the Cleveland Open the next week.

"That will give me two competitive warmups before I defend my national open championship in St. Louis."

He said he would not be able to play in the British Open in July because he believes the weather would be too cold. He also doesn't plan to play in such winter tour events as the Crosby and San Francisco's Lucky International because of weather conditions.

Undefeated Trojans Nip Marin, 8-6

Winning its third game without defeat in Marin Athletic League action, Terra Linda edged Marin Catholic 8-6 in eight innings yesterday in Kentfield.

Fred Daniele doubled in the top of the eighth for Terra Linda and reached third on a single by Mike Ainslie. Daniele scored on a fielder's choice and Ainslie moved to second. Ainslie then stole third and then home to give the Trojans their second run of the inning.

Marin was led by a pair of all-leaguers from last year, first baseman George King and shortstop Bob Lambardi. King had a homer and two singles, and Lombardi rapped a double and two singles.

two-run homer, his first of the year.

This time the 14,037 fans in Candlestick park thought things were wrapped up. Through seven innings the Giants led 8-2 as Jesus Alou had driven in three runs and scored once while his brother Matty had scored three times.

Then the Mets scored twice in the eighth and as Stengel observed, "Those two home runs in the ninth didn't hurt us any."

Redwood In Win Over San Rafael

Redwood bats exploded for a 6-1 triumph over San Rafael High School yesterday on the San Rafael field.

The Giants slugged out eight hits, five of them for extra bases, with second baseman Pat Puccinelli leading the way with a triple and double in three trips to the plate. Tom Gootherts and Steve Mattos walloped triples and Kevin Wilson also had a double.

Jim Garrett went all the way on the mound for Redwood to get the win and San Rafael's John Patterson suffered the loss.

Marin Fighters Enter AAU Show

Dave Townsel and Morlin Smith, both Marin City 18-year-olds, are entered in the May 6 Amateur Athletic Union boxing show sponsored by the Oakland Police at the Oakland Civic Auditorium.

Townsel, winner of the 139-pound novice Golden Gloves title in the recent San Francisco bouts, is scheduled to meet Steve Dildine who fought in the 147-pound junior division in the Golden Gloves.

Smith, who won his first bout in the S.F. bouts but then lost to Andy Martinez, gets a chance to reverse the defeat in Oakland, facing the 147-pounder again.

Smith weighs 145 pounds.

Drake Is Beaten In Marathon

Novato High School's Hornets scored four runs after two outs in the 12th inning against Drake High's Pirates yesterday in San Anselmo to break a deadlock and win 6-2.

Two Drake players were injured in the marathon game and had to be taken out. Pirates catcher Al Simontacchi, quarterback on last season's championship football team, was hit on the mouth by a teammate's thrown ball in the first inning and had to leave the game. He was treated for a cut lip and loose teeth. Shortstop Bill Ingram hurt an ankle sliding into second base on an attempted pickoff play in the 10th inning and had to leave the game.

10 Minutes Late, But Mets Give Spahn A Present

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "It was a happy birthday after all," said veteran pitcher Warren Spahn after the New York Mets finally beat the San Francisco Giants 9-8 in 11 innings.

Yesterday was the 44th birthday of the great left-handed hurler who acts as player-coach of the Mets. The first time he went on the field was to talk to a pitcher in trouble.

When the Mets finally won the game, it wasn't Spahnie's birthday anymore. It was 10 minutes past midnight.

MARIN LEAGUE

A Brilliant Swim Mark

San Rafael High School swimmers maintained their no-loss record yesterday, sweeping over Drake mermen 63-32.

San Rafael's Tom Knopf bettered his own school record in the 100-yard butterfly event, this time for an All-American time. He splashed to a brilliant 54.4 clocking.

Tamalpais and Terra Linda battled it out right down to the wire, finally having to admit a 47½—47½ tie, the first this season in Marin Athletic League swimming competition.

The lightweights from Tam couldn't pull off the same trick however, being pushed under 63-22.

The third meet in MAL competition found Redwood splashing through Novato's pool to take most of the honors and a winning 59-32 score.

In Class B it was a different story. The Novato mermen proved strong in the 200-yard medley relay and the 200-yard free relay and eased past Redwood 44-42.

Nun's March In Dixie—Answer To A Challenge

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The recent civil rights demonstrations in Selma, Ala., gave birth to a riddle which is now making the rounds. It asks:

"Who patrols southern streets in bands, wearing hoods and carrying crosses?"

The answer: Nuns.

The Sisters who marched in Selma focused national attention on a trend that has been underway for several years. Nuns are emerging from their cloistered life to find new ways of serving Christ and ministering to human needs.

Their new involvement in everyday life is reflected in changing attire. With the active encouragement of the Vatican, several religious orders have abandoned the long black habits and white coifs, which date back to the Middle Ages, in favor of a modest version of modern dress.

The vast majority of America's 175,000 nuns are still engaged in the traditional occupations of teaching and nursing. But more and more are taking up the challenge of Belgium's Cardinal Suenens, a top official of the Vatican Council who urged nuns to think of the whole world as their convent.

At the headquarters of the Job Corps in Washington, D.C., visitors encounter a smiling woman who wears street-length dresses and softly-curled hair. She is Sister M. Francetta Barberis, Ph.D., who resigned as president of Webster College, St. Louis, mo., to become a government official in the war on poverty.

In Chicago, more than 600 Sisters have formed a new "urban apostolate" to help the delinquet children and broken families who inhabit the asphalt jungles of the inner city.

In other areas, nuns are engaged in adult education, counseling college students, and making pastoral calls at the homes of Catholic families.

There are limits to what the "new nun" can do. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) recently received a letter from Sister Jane Edmund Callanan, who is working on her doctorate in science at Fordham University. She regretfully declined an invitation to apply for training as an astronaut.

"It would be nice to qualify," she wrote, "but I'm afraid that I am ineligible, since I do not have 20-20 vision."

Of all the new roles undertaken by Sisters, none has stirred so much public controversy as their participation in civil rights demonstrations at Selma and elsewhere. The Catholic archbishop of Alabama scholded the nuns who flocked into his bailiwick from all over the country. He said they were "out of place" marching in the streets. But Dr. Martin Luther King said the presence of the nuns helped greatly to awaken the nation's conscience to the fact that "civil rights is, at bottom, a moral issue."

THE CROSS, SWASTIKA AND TURMOIL

Crucifix, flanked by pictures and symbols of Christ and Adolf Hitler in seventh grade classrooms of the La Mennais school in Montreal, Canada, evoked storm of protest against the teacher, Brother Rene Lahaie, member of the Catholic Brothers of Christian Instruction. The Brother (right) was suspended for a year, when it was discovered that his students, mostly French-speaking youngsters, started their daily studies with morning prayers that ended with chorus of "Heil Christ."

'Death Row Chaplain' Will Speak In Novato

Rev. Byron E. Eshelman will be the guest minister of Novato's new Congregational Church (The United Church of Christ) tomorrow at 10:30 a.m.

Reverend Eshelman, head Protestant chaplain at San Quentin Prison, has been serving as chaplain to the inmates of Death Row (and the rest of the prison as well) since 1951.

In 1962, he wrote a book, "Death Row Chaplain." The book subsequently has been read throughout the world, as it presents a searching analysis of capital punishment and insight into many problems in penology. He has also edited the "Chaplains Newsletter" and contributed to various professional journals.

Having served as president of the American Protestant Correctional Chaplains Assn., 1951 to 1961, he was more recently a member of the board of directors of the Northern California Conference of the United Church of Christ, (1963-64) and president of the Alumni Assn. of Pacific School of Religion, (1962-64).

Before entering his present field, Reverend Eshelman served as pastor of the New Pilgrim Congregational Church in Oakland from 1943 to 1946. For the next three years he was a chaplain at Alcatraz and in 1949 he accepted the pastorate at the First Congregational Church in Oroville for two years. In April, 1951, Reverend Eshelman was named supervising chaplain for the California State Department of Corrections and head Protestant chaplain at San Quentin.

Reverend Eshelman resides with his wife and two children on the San Quentin reservation. He and his family attend the First Congregational Church in San Rafael whenever possible.

The new Congregational church in Novato is being served temporarily by ministers from the Northern California Conference of the United Church of Christ as well as by other Congregational ministers in this area. The Reverend Charles L. Burns, Jr., of the Conference church extension office, has been helping the new congregation with the organization of the church.

A site ocommittee is considering several possible building sites and a ministerial committee has been formed to select a permanent minister. The congregation now meets in the Druids' Hall at the corner of Grant and Reichert avenues.

Marin followers of the Baha'i faith will observe one of the religion's most important seasons tonight, with a Ridvan meeting at 8 p.m. in the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum, San Rafael.

Special guest speaker at tonight's public gathering will be Mrs. Nura Mobine, a resident of Iran and granddaughter of one of Baha'u'llah's 19 original disciples known as the Letters of the Living. Kerr Sees No Yielding To Demands

LOS ANGELES (AP)—University of California President Clark Kerr says he sees "no chance whatever" that university officials will yield to new demands in the current filthy word controversy at Berkeley.

Kerr, speaking to newsmen shortly after a Board of Regents meeting at UCLA yesterday, said an ultimatum sent to the board would be handled "through normal channels."

The demands, contained in a telegram read to the regents at the meeting, demanded cancellation of penalties against four students disciplined for action in the filthy speech controversy.

Kerr, regents chairman Edward Carter and several other regents agreed they saw no merit in the demands, which also included creation of a new committee to hear.

Main interest in the regents' meeting was submission of a report by the Theodore Meyer committee in which possible new standards for student conduct, political activities and discipline were revealed.

Major points covered by the proposed new rules area:

1. Conduct: Students must "conduct themselves in a manner compatible with the university's functions" and must "observe generally accepted standards of conduct."

2. Speech and political activities: in general, "students have the right of free expression and advocacy," with the university chancellors having the right to regulate time, place and manner of activities.

3. Fund raising: The chancellors regulate campus-wide fund raising, but there would be no interference with special collections for civil rights and other causes.

4. Discipline: Students are subject to university discipline whether violations occur on campus or not.

Early Bird Used

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Early Bird communications satellite and its ground stations have demonstrated their ability to handle transatlantic television traffic. From its stationary position 22,300 miles above the Atlantic between Brazil and Africa, the spacecraft relayed live and filmed television transmissions simultaneously between the United States and Europe yesterday in a six-hour experiment.

Students Honored

Redwood High School Seniors David Alton Lee, son of Alton S. Lee of 2040 Centro East Avenue, Tiburon, and Robert Miller Green, son of Norman N. Green of 603 Goodhill Road in Kentfield have been awarded certificates of honors at entrance at the University of California, Berkeley.

JAM SESSION TO BENEFIT U.N. FLAGS

A benefit jam session featuring Al Trobbe and his jazz combo will be held at 4 p.m. tomorrow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul S. Marrin of 40 Fairway Drive just outside San Rafael, sponsored by the Marin chapter, United World Federalists.

The session will aid the chapter's campaign to place United Nations flags in Marin County schoolrooms. Four have gone to Fairfax schools, while six will be presented to the Reed Union School District May 10, according to chapter president John J. Wiley.

To attend, an individual or couple must buy one of the flags at the door, Wiley said.

Legislature Given Bills Time Break

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The traditional last minute crush of bills is being processed in the legislature with lawmakers receiving a "grace period" for the introduction of additional measures.

Yesterday would have been the final deadline for unrestricted introduction of legislation. But the workload was so great it was agreed that any legislation registered with Legislative Counsel by 5 p.m. yesterday could be introduced Monday.

Counsel, the legislature's legal staff, processes all measures prior to introduction.

Over 400 bills were introduced in the Assembly and Senate yesterday. And thus far, about 5,000 bills, resolutions and constitutional amendments have piled up in both houses.

To initiate further legislation, however, lawmakers will need two-thirds approval in the house where the measure is introduced.

The pace is somewhat faster in the Assembly this year with 3,383 bills introduced through yesterday as compared with 3,-'30 for the 1963 general session.

The Senate has received 1,518 bills so far as compared with 1,631 bills introduced in 1963; however, with an extra day for bill introduction the 1963 mark could be surpassed.

Supervisors Set Monday Sessions

The Marin County Board of Supervisors, starting its Monday afternoon and evening schedule next week, will once more hear the issue of Wolfe Grade Road extension.

Hearing on the controversial road project is the second item on the evening portion of the meeting, scheduled to start at 8 p.m. at Civic Center.

The extension, part of the Kentfield Master Plan, was voted down earlier by the board on a 3-2 vote after a long, hot debate. Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen, who was in the dissenting minority, later asked that the matter be reheard.

He has met repeatedly with groups and individuals who opposed the extension in an effort to get community backing for Monday's hearing.

The afternoon session of the meeting will open at 2 p.m.

First item on the agenda will be consideration of an application for $900,000 in federal funds for a community mental health clinic to be built in conjunction with the Marin General Hospital addition.

The hospital and county each would provide $150,000, while another $150,000 would be collected through community contributions.

Consideration of the aplication was postponed last week at the request of Supervisor Byron W. Leydecker, absent at the time it would have been discussed.

The board also will hear a proposal from County Public Works Director Donald R. Frost that a self-contained power generator be considered for the planned hall-of-justice addition to the Civic Center. He is recommending an engineering study, to cost from $5,000 to $10,000.

Supervisors will consider a recommendation from County Administrator Alan Bruce that an ordinance establishing a hotel and motel room tax in the county, passed by the board last week, be recinded. The ordinance was adopted as a stopgap to prevent the state from moving into the taxing field. The state bill was killed in legislative committee Wednesday.

Under the new schedule, the board will meet at 9 a.m. on every first and third Tuesday and at 2 p.m. on Every second and fourth Monday. The supervisors' intent is that the Monday session, adjourning for supper and returning at 8 p.m., will make it easier for the working public to attend board hearings.

Maritime Academy Examination Set

The last entrance examination for men applying for fall entrance to the California Maritime Academy in Vallejo will be held at 9 a.m. May 1 at the academy.

The four-hour exam may be taken, without appointment, by candidates between the age of 17 and 22 who have graduated from high school and are unmarried.

Auto Is Stolen

A car, owned by George L. Hasik of 1211 Yukon Way, Novato, which was parked at the garage of Willi Kamm at 7080 Redwood Highway, Novato, was stripped of two tires and wheels between 6:30 p.m. Wednesday and 8 a.m. Thursday, according to Novato police.

Marinwood School Dedication Kicks Off Public Schools Week

Dedication at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow of a new Marinwood seventh-eight grade school, which has been designed to accommodate a new brand of teaching, will kick off Public Schools Week in Marin.

Miller Creek School in the Dixie School District won't be completely built for another three years, but it opened in September with a student body of 310 and the new education process called team teaching.

Nestled in a small glen off Las Gallinas Road, the school is now made up of two large classrooms, a library, a laboratory building and administration offices.

The large classrooms are the essential components of the team teaching. Each large room, housing just over 150 students, can be divided into five smaller rooms by sound-proof folding partitions.

Five teachers work in each of the large classrooms and the subject matter is centered around the course in social studies.

If the youngsters are studying Great Britain for the week, then their science, mathematics, reading, "language arts" and fine arts courses are all tied into the study of England.

If the children are assembled for a general lecture, the folding partitions are opened into one large classroom. After the lecture, they break up into smaller groups for specific instruction.

"One of the beauties of this program," said principal Raymond A. Riley, "is that the students can be taught according to their speed.

The students are grouped in each course according to their degree of advancement in the subject. A student who is slow in math but advanced in English works with different groups for each subject.

Three times a week the students are given research assignments to be done in the school's 2,000-book library.

The library, circular in design, has a sunken floor in the center. Surrounding this is a raised promenade deck on which the fiction material is stored.

"This arrangement allows students to browse for pleasure reading material without disturbing those students involved in the more serious business of researching a paper," Riley explained.

The school also has a laboratory building which houses a science lab, an arts and crafts room furnished with a kiln and potter's wheel, and a home economics room complete with stoves, sewing machines and a laundry.

In the next three years, plans call for addition of three more classroom units and a multi-use room.

Dedication ceremonies will be at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

Freeway Foes Get Hearing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Residents of famed Telegraph Hill dramatized their opposition to a proposed freeway in their area this week with a tape recording.

They brought the machine to a supervisors hearing and played the sounds in a residential neighborhood, complete with a bird chirping in the background. Then they played a recording made next to another freeway, complete with the rear of trucks horns and squealing brakes.

The supervisors are studying the problem.

Tam High Non-Smoking Territory May Expand

Territory where Tamalpais High School students are not permitted to smoke may be extended this fall.

Raymond J. Bell, vice principal, told parents at an orientation meeting Thursday night at Edna Maguire School that the rule now is no smoking on campus. However, he said, the administration is considering extending this rule to "within sight of the campus."

Asked how this rule would be determined, Bell said it depends upon who is enforcing the rule and how far he can see. Principal Robert H. Prather said, jokingly, it would not mean use of the tower in Wood Hall.

Strengthened rules against smoking were recommended by the accreditation commission of the Western Assn. of Schools and Colleges, which just completed a survey at Tamalpais.

TFX Plane Still Appears In The Woods

By WIILIAM E. HOWARD
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — Defense officials are keeping up a brave show of optimism about the TFX fighter plane—although it still appears to be in the woods technically.

They have issued the prime contractor, General Dynamics Corp., an initial contract to produce 431 of the speedy craft at a cost exceeding $1.5 billion.

But production is not likely to begin until several problems are ironed out, chiefly with the plane's jet engines. This could take many more months.

Two models of the TFX, designated the F-111A by the Air Force, have been flying for the past four months at the company's Fort Worth, Tex., plant. Pilots discovered on several runs, at both high and low speeds, that the compressor blades in the engines weren't getting enough air, making the engines stall.

The problem has been evident for more than two months. But it hasn't been solved. It seems associated with the air intakes tucked under the wings.

The Air Force, moreover, has disclosed that the engine manufacturer, the Pratt and Whitney Division of United Air Craft Corp., has so far been unable to meet an extremely rigorous test standard. The service insists that the engine run continuously for 150 hours at a variety of speeds.

On two such tests, engines conked out five hours and two hours before reaching the 150-hour mark.

One Air Force official claims the difficulties are "typical" of those encountered in any new engine and are not affecting the flight test program.

However, officials concede that in a score of flights neither test model of the plane has been able to reach maximum performance. The F-111 is supposed to hit a top speed in excess of 1,600 M.P.H. and altitudes above 70,000 feet.

Maximum reported speed obtained until now has been about 850 M.P.H. and maximum altitude about 40,000 feet.

It should be noted, though, that the plane's radically new flex wings have been performing perfectly. Many experts thought this would prove to be a real trouble spot. But the pilots have experienced no trouble in flight closing the wings against the fuselage for high speed and then extending them again for low speed maneuvers.

The Navy version of the politically controversial plane, the F-111B, was supposed to fly by mid-year. But it probably won't make the date.

Defense research experts are now admitting that a much-reported weight problem hasn't been licked and "quite a bit of additional development" may be necessary. The Navy wants the plane about 5,000 pounds lighter than the Air Force version to keep it from tearing up carrier flight decks. Slimming off this many pounds involves some substantial redesign.

Under the production contract, Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., Bethpage, N.Y., is the subcontractor to build 24 F-111B's for the Navy. In all, plans call for about 1,400 F-111's to be fabricated—about 200 of them Navy models.

But a high Navy official says his service has taken the position that there will be no production until the plans is completely proven in flight tests. That could delay the start of Grumman production for another year.

Some authorities are not so concerned about the delay in the plane. They are more worried about the development of a new air-to-air missile—the Phoenix—to go aboard the Navy's F-111B. The Phoenix is still in the early stages of research and development and may not be ready until long after the F-111Bs are accepted by the fleet.

The British government, after scrubbing its own high performance fighter, the TSR2, said it may buy the F-111. But it won't make a decision until January.

There really isn't any need for them to hurry. U.S. officials say it will take another three years to build the 1,400 planes wanted by the Pentagon. Foreign orders, including 24 F-111s for Austria, won't be filled until then.

Peace Corps Recruiting Lags Behind

By EDWIN J. SAFFORD
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — A recruiting program that did not grow as fast as hoped has forced the Peace Corps to lower its planned growth rate.

Reliable government sources have indicated the agency's director, Sargent Shriver, later this spring will ask Congress for less money than originally planned.

Although the new request, $115 million, is an increase of nearly $11 million over last year's congressional appropriation, it is still an admission that the corps cannot field as many volunteers in its next recruiting year as called for in a five-year schedule dictated by President Johnson.

Johnson wants 20,000 corpsmen in the field by 1969.

Currently the corps is striving to meet its target of 13,710 by the end of this August.

The Peace Corps recruiting year roughly coincides with the school year because many projects involve teachers.

If present estimates hold, the corps will have 15,110 volunteers abroad by August, 1966, the end of its next recruiting year. This means it will have to step up recruiting if it is to meet the president's target, Peace Corps officials acknowledge.

Spokesmen for the corps say recruiting is their number one problem. Shriver has made the entire professional staff of the agency's Washington office available to the recruiting division.

Almost every ranking staff member at one time or another has found himself on a college campus speaking to potential volunteesr and administering placement tests.

The corps' associate director for public affairs director, Robert L. Gale, says the corps gets an average of $23 million a week in free advertising from national advertising agencies and news media. In 1964, he said, the corps was the third largest recipient of public service advertising time and space.

Yet the acceptance rate on applications for the past 12 months is only slightly higher than for the previous 12 months. Corps officials concede they had hoped for a 20 per cent increase.

The quality of the new corpsmen, spokesmen stress, is higher than in previous years. They hold more college degrees, but have somewhat less professional experience than their predecessors. Their average age is lower, having dropped from 25 to 24.

But the original enthusiasm which President Kennedy generated seems to have dissipated. There is less excitement about the corps on college campuses—the main sourse of volunteers, recruiters report.

Recruiting also has been hurt by reports that returning corpsmen are having trouble finding jobs.

Although the problem exists and was publicly explored in a conference held in Washington this year, the corps says it was blown out of proportion. Most returned corpsmen are gainfully employed or have returned to school, corps officials say.

Potential male volunteers are still wary of the draft, not wanting to yield two more years of their lives. Although the vast majority of returnees have been exempted, a few have been drafted. One draft board, a corps spokesman noted sadly, has conscripted every eligible returnee.

And last October was a particularly grim month for Peace Corps recruiting. Applications dipped to 2,645 for the month, for below normal The only explanation corps officials could offer was that the possibility of Barry Goldwater's becoming president scared potential volunteers.

With Johnson's victory and a stepped-up recruiting drive, applications soared to 7,432 in November. At their present rate, applications will total about 60,000 in 1965, nearly 12,000 more than 1964. But that still will not be enough to satisfy Johnson's desire for 20,000 by 1969, corps officials concede.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Boston Is Building New Hospital To Care For Skid Row Derelicts

VAN DELLEN

According to the Medical Tribune, Boston is going to build an unusual hospital in the city's skid row. It will be a health and relocation center for alcoholics and derelicts. The area is slated for urban renewal and the hospital proposers hope to make the skid row residents more acceptable to prospective landlords and families when the present neighborhood is torn down.

It is estimated that 5,000 unattached persons live in this area; the majority are men. Some are not alcoholics and many are entirely isolated from society because of mental and physical ailments. The center should help them find new life and hope.

SEVERAL YEARS ago we wrote an article about the Boston Floating Hospital. It no longer floats, but the spirit of the original project continues. Before the turn of the century, several civic minded Bostonians rented the barge Clifford and took mothers and their babies into the bay for a day. The barge was anchored to get the benefit of the harbor breeze.

A medical staff went along to care for the tots. The plan was popular, because in those days heat was blamed for summer diarrhea among infants. This was a critical problem, as there was no remedy and the mortality rate from dysentery varied from 30 to 40 per cent. The cool air was refreshing and it gave the physicians an opportunity to conduct research on the cause of diarrhea and the response to various formulas.

THE THUMB is rated as half the hand. The loss of this digit is serious because the victim has trouble grasping or holding an object. Three surgeons from John Hopkins university school of medicine told of making thumbs out of fingers in 11 children who had lost or were born without this important digit. They used the index finger because it was the easiest to transpose. In addition, it is the most skillful of the remaining group. It works.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

DUTCH TREAT

J.E.B. writes: I have a wart on my back at the belt line. I have been advised to have it taken off. It isn't too painful. My friends tell me it is a Dutch wart. Tell me, what is a Dutch wart, and why do my friends persist in wanting to see it? I wonder if it should be cut, burned off, soothed with hot oil, or what? P.S. I am Dutch.

REPLY

I assume your friends have dubbed it Dutch because they consider it a treat to see the lesion. Consult your physician. This may be a wart, birthmark, or a more serious skin tumor. Removal is suggested, especially if it is irritated by the belt. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on warts.

CHEWING THE CUD

B.G. writes: What causes a ruminating stomach?

REPLY

In humans or ruminants? A double stomach is responsible in cattle, sheep, and giraffes. In humans the term refers to excessive belching and heartburn due to indigestion, gastritis, or gall bladder disease.

ARTIFICIAL SWEETENER

O.M. writes: Could an artificial sweetener cause pancreatitis?

REPLY

Pancreatitis is more likely to be associated with an infected gall bladder than with anything we eat or drink.

INADVISABLE

Mrs. V. writes: Is it safe for a five-and-one-half-month pregnant woman to wear a tight girdle?

REPLY

It is inadvisable.

STAMMERING

C. G. writes: What causes a 4-year-old child to stammer?

REPLY

Learning to talk is not easy and children between two and five tend to repeat sounds, syllables, whole words, and phrases in connected speech. A speech defect is in the making at this time if parents are too critical of mistakes. This cause is suspected when the stuttering occurs under stress or with excitement.

Scenes Of Yesteryear In Marin

Landmarks Are Kept On Film

With Marin's historical landmarks fast disappearing because of increasing development, the Ross Villey Camera Club has a campaign under way to capture the landmarks before they are gone.

Typical is the Point Reyes Lighthouse, shown at right, which was built in 1870 and is still operating. The original source of light was a circular oil wick that was rotated by power from a 175 pound weight which had to be hoisted by hand.

Of more recent vintage was the Richmond-San Rafael ferry (left), which was a flourishing means of transportation for many years. Even today there is talk of reviving ferries to alleviate the jammed commuter traffic.

Fast disappearing are the old railroad stations, once the bustling centers of Marin communities, and the camera club is attempting to gather they all on film before they are gone. But if photographers keep clicking, the residents of tomorrow will have a chance to look back at the Marin of today.

UNCHANGED BEAUTY—Tomales Bay (left), one of the few unspoiled areas of Marin, today remains much as it was in this 1910 photo of the oyster bed fences, and much of the area's natural beauty will be preserved at Point Reyes National Seashore. The proposed county master plan for recreation and parks lists the bay as a potential "boating paradise," and an "untapped recreational opportunity."

WINERY OF PAST—An attraction of the past was the Jean Escalle winery along Corte Madera Creek in Larkspur. The vineyard was behind the building and the wine was stored in a tunnel in the hillside.

City Manager Dan Andersen Thrives On Doing Unusual

By ALAN CUNNINGHAM

In many ways, Dan E. Andersen does not fit the image of a city manager.

Not, that is, if one sees members of the profession as well-scrubbed young collegians whose hearts were set on the career at age 16.

Andersen, who has held his post as San Rafael city manager longer than any of his Marin County counterparts, came into the field by a roundabout and highly unlikely route.

TO THOSE who know him well, however, this is in character, since Dan Andersen is fond of doing unlikely things.

Thirty years ago, after winning a scholarship for his singing ability, he majored in music at the College of Puget Sound in Tacoma, Wash. He studied piano, took harmony courses, and by his junior year was given the chance to study in New York.

"I thought I knew it all, so I didn't go," he says.

Does he regret it? No.

IN 1936, HE got his music degree and went to work.

As a musician? No.

Instead, Dan agreed to go to work for his father's small group of machine shops and auto parts stores in Tacoma.

"He made me sales manager, and you can imagine how much I knew about that," he recalls with a grin.

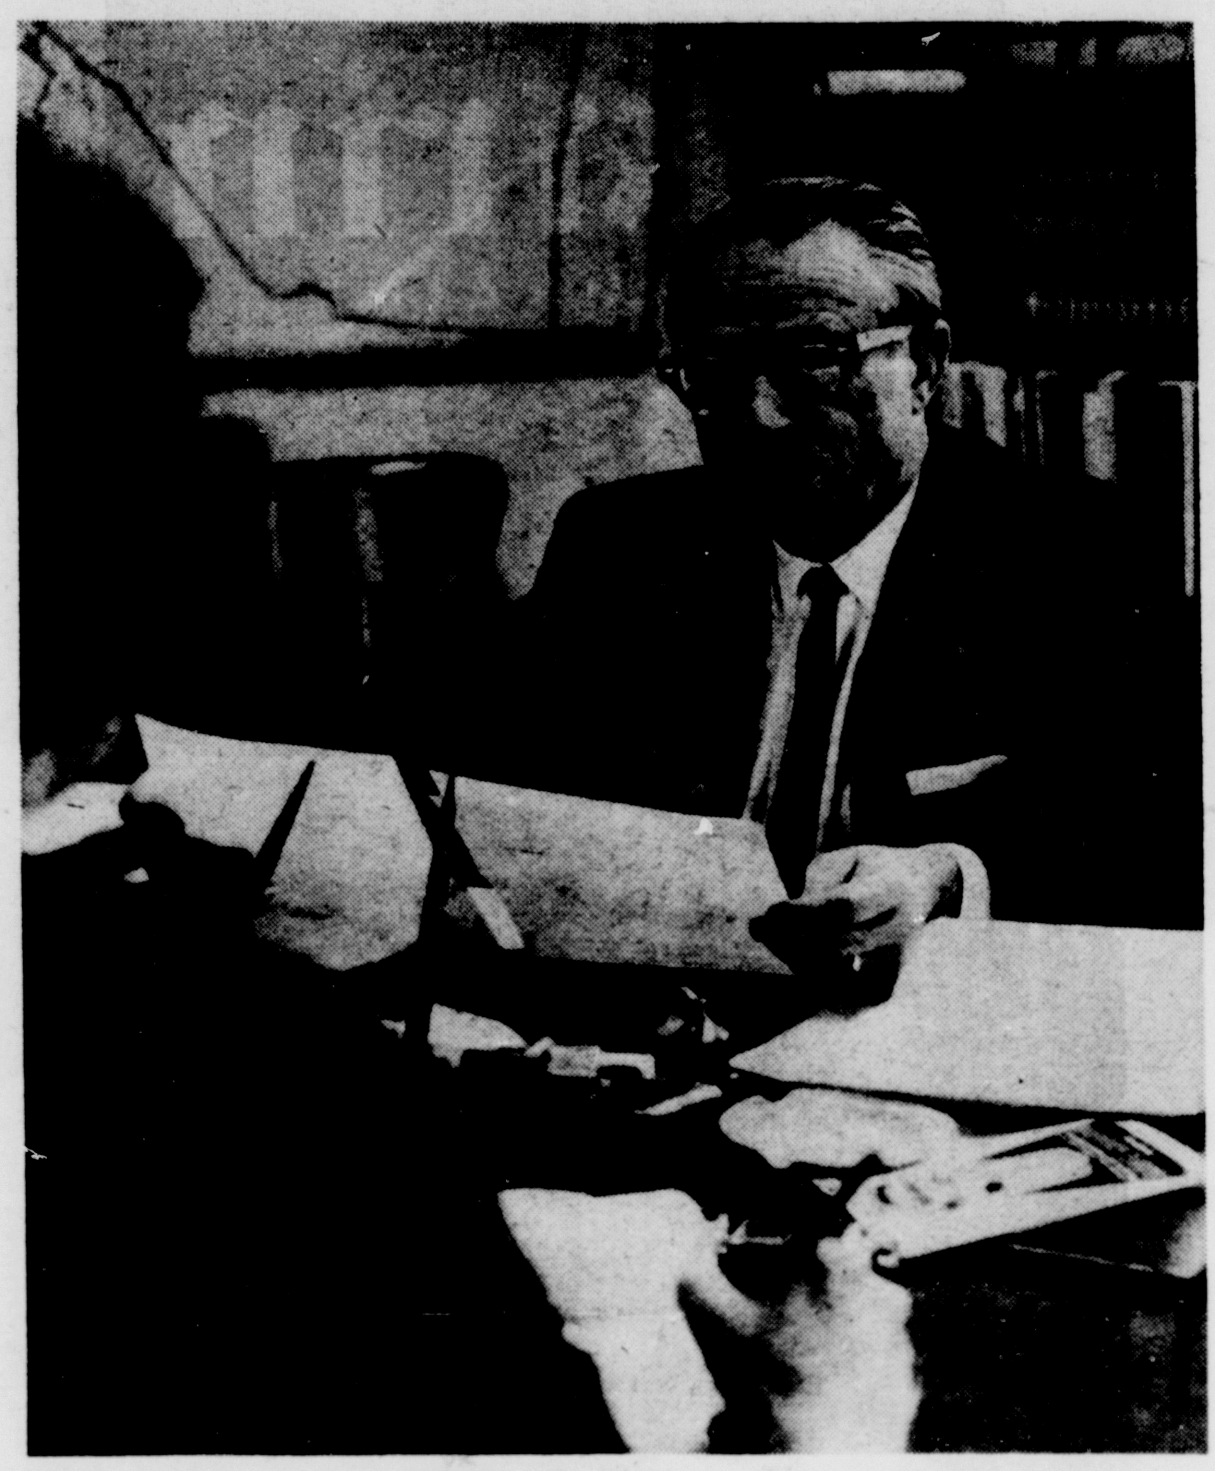
ANDERSEN soon found this was not his dish. Seeking new horizons, he came to California and went to work for a company which owned motion picture theaters and real estate holdings in San Francisco and on the peninsula.

It was an event-filled job. Owners of the chain liked to walk into their theaters unannounced and tell the managers, "Show us your books, because you are moving on to the next town tomorrow."

He weathered the uncertainty and won his employers' confidence. He was made a theater manager at 22 ("There was only one younger manager on the coast — and his father owned the chain."), and became well enough liked so that he, not his bosses, could say which town he would live in.

THE TOWN he came to know best in that period was Daly City, where he returned after serving in the Merchant Marine during World War II. As a theater manager, he became highly involved in civic affairs and when the city council sought an administrator in 1951, Dan Andersen got the job.

"It wasn't my idea. The council came to me and asked if I would consider city work, but I said no. About eight months later, they convinced me to give it a try, even though I took a salary loss to do it."



FROM HIS DESK in the city hall, San Rafael City Manager Dan E. Andersen carries on his administrative duties. It isn't the career that he had planned in his earlier years. But it is one he has enjoyed. (Independent-Journal photo)

Once again, his career had taken an unlikely turn, but once again he made the transition with relative ease, even though his relationship with the city later ended on less than happy terms. Finding himself on the outs with a new group of councilmen who vowed to "clean out city hall," he was asked to submit a letter of resignation.

HE DID JUST that, writing two words: "I resign."

Typically, he refused to hold a grudge and wound up better friends than ever with the city fathers. To prove it, 150 Daly City officials and businessmen piled in cars and chartered buses to throw a testimonial dinner for him in San Rafael shortly after he came here in November of 1957.

"If they'd done that sooner, we would have been afraid to hire him," quipped a San Rafael councilman who attended the fete.

Today there is no question that San Rafael is Dan Andersen's home, although he still had doubts at one point and seriously considered another city's offer.

"MY WIFE said that if I left, she was not coming with me." Now he, too, hopes to stay and retire here.

When he was first introduced to then San Rafael Mayor John F. McInnis, both were startled to discover they had grown up within a few blocks of each other in Tacoma, were two years apart in the same high school and had many mutual friends—but had never met.

He, his wife, Irene, and the youngest three of his six children, ages 4 through 8, live at 47 La Crescenta Way. For a hobby, he plays golf.

"I'M HORRIBLE," he says, "but it is a lot of fun. I am a very popular partner with the other fellows because they can all beat me."

His other three children are grown, and he has two tiny grandchildren.

He recently bought a piano for his youngsters, but he seldom plays it, and he has not sung for 20 years. If he had it all to do over again, Andersen "would get into this a lot earlier," and would forget about music, "a starvation business."

And what was it like, going into government with a business background?

"IT TOOK an awful lot of study. But I think anyone in government should have some private enterprise management experience. The best education I have had was the years I spent in business."

In addition to giving him a sense of fiscal responsibility, Andersen adds, his years in "show biz" gave him "tremendous training in dealing with the public," a valuable asset to any city official.

Two of San Rafael's most pressing needs, in the 49-year-old city manager's eyes, are for a better street system and a new city hall. Both of these needs, to his pleasure, will be met by programs now underway.

ONE OF THOSE who recently toured Fresno's downtown shopping mall, he would like to see something similar, on a smaller scale, tried here.

"They could set up maybe two blocks as a test without changing the paving or spending much money at all," he suggests.

Another problem which bothers him—and which he spends some time discussing before civic groups—is the conflict between downtown merchants and those in the Northgate Shopping Center.

"THEY'LL GO farther and do better when they learn to complement each other instead of working at odds," he says.

Likewise, he hopes "north of the hill" residents will overcome their apparent feeling that they are "not quite part of the city." To Andersen, the Terra Linda area "is an integral part of San Rafael," and he foresees that the Terra Linda and Marinwood community service districts will one day combine with city facilities.

As an after thought, Andersen mentions one other future project for the city, one in which he may have something more than a professional interest: He hopes to see San Rafael put in a self-supporting municipal golf course.

"WHERE DO MOTHS COME FROM?"

Of course they come from eggs laid by other moths, as you know. The real query behind this question is why they appear from nowhere when you think you do not have any.

It's truly amazing how a little lint can hide moths. Crevices and corners in your closets are ideal places for moths to lurk and, later, attack clothing, drapes and other fabrics. One excellent preventive is to include a vacumming of your clothes and linen closests in your Spring cleaning. Vacuum every crack and crevice to remove all traces of lint.

Another preventive is to have your clothing, drapes and slipcovers drycleaned at the time of your Spring cleaning. Your drycleaner will cleanse every fabric in a professional manner which destroys moths, and moth larvae. This is a money-saving measure you should take regularly.

THE GARDEN OF THE Edward Henshaws provides a beautiful setting for the attractive Kent Woodlands home. The multi-level yard totals approximately two and a half acres. From this vantage point, you acn admire the terracing effect, the rockwork, the flourishing succulents and the tropicals including Bird of Paradise.

A LOWER LEVEL VIEW in the Henshaw garden shows you Mount Tamalpais towering in the background, a wealth of rockrose and succulents in the foreground. The Henshaws, both enthusiastic gardeners, have developed the lower levels themselves. Thomas Church was the landscaper for the upper levels.

MRS. HENSHAW is especially proud of the fine specimen of Bull Pine that can be seen at left in this photo. Some of the huge boulders which lend distinction to the landscaping are also shown.

A GARDEN VIEW of Mount Tamalpais is especially prized by Marinites. And from just about any point in the Henshaw garden, you can admire the majesty of Mt. Tam. This vista is from the middle level.

A Birthday For KTIM

Marin Radio Station Went On The Air 18 Years Ago

The date was April 28, 1947, and the time was 8:55 a.m.

The voice was coming from the new radio station's studios at 1117 Fifth Avenue in downtown San Rafael, and it belonged to Mark Gerstle, KTIM's chief announcer.

IMMEDIATELY after Gerstle's opening words, the station proceeded with a regular schedule of programs that opened with a news broadcast sponsored by Albert's Department Store.

But between the sign-on and the newscast, Gerstle delivered the fledgling station's first commercial—for Hughes Jewelers.

Three days later, on May 1, 1947, the dedicatory program was held—a two-hour broadcast during which individuals from all walks of Marin County life appeared in person or on tape to congratulate the new station. Gov. Earl Warren's letter of congratulations was read. And J. Loy Maloney, managing editor of the Chicago Tribune, in Marin to visit a friend, spoke briefly.

SINCE THEN, for 18 years, Marin's station KTIM has been serving the people of its county with an ever-broadening program of civic, cultural and service shows and special events.

Its spot—1510—on the radio dial has become a habit with thousands of Marinites.

Those first programs originated from a remodeled residence which had been transformed into modern radio broadcasting facilities with reception room, offices, newsroom, and two studios—one with accommodations for an audience of 65.

Transmission equipment was located in the Tamalpais Centre Building on the College of Marin campus in Kentfield.

THE NEW station was the outgrowth of the organization of the Marin Broadcasting Co. in 1946 by Roy A. Brown, publisher of the San Rafael Independent, and Ernest L. Smith. Brown served as president of the company, Smith as vice president and general manager, and Wishard Brown as secretary.

In July of 1948, Smith was to sell his interest in the station to Hugh L. Turner, who has managed KTIM since then and is now president of the Marin Broadcasting Co.

But it was on Wednesday, Dec. 4, 1946, that the San Rafael Independent announced with banner headlines: "FCC Approves Marin Radio; Opening Broadcast Slated for Mid-February—New Station to be Affiliate of S.R. Independent."

CONSTRUCTION delays and equipment shortage made the initial broadcasting goal, Feb. 14, an impossibility. So it was not until April 28, according to a history of the station compiled by reporter Jack Eisen, that the new station went on the air, although several weeks earlier Smith had spoken a few words from the transmitter station at Kentfield during test broadcasts for the FCC.

It was the phrase—"This Is Marin"—which gave the new station its call letters, indicating the station's desire and determination to serve the interests of the people of Marin.

The initial staff along with general manager Smith included Bob Franklin as the program director, Alan Johnstone as commercial manager and Gordon Greb as continuity chief and staff announcer. Chief announcer Gerstle was a member of a family prominent in Marin history, returning to his home county from a station in Ogden, Utah.

Early-day shows Marinites will recall include Rev. E. G. Skultety's "Voice of Calvary," the noon-time "Ranch Review" of farming news; the "According to Hoy" show of recorded popular music sponsored by Hoy's Radio and Music Stores, Miss Trumbull's "Time for Little People" verse and story program for children; a 30-minute period of Bing Crosby records; the "Tomorrow's Leaders" half hour on Sundays introducing students from the San Rafael City Schools, an "Arrows in the Air" program of poetry produced by Margaret L. Albanese of the Creative Writing Group of the American Assn. of University Women, and always a heavy emphasis upon news coverage and upon comment and analysis of public events and issues.

IN ADDITION to those already named, many personalities and behind-the-scenes workers affiliated with KTIM have become household words through the years — Gene DeAlessi, Peter Miller, Virginia Steiner and her son "Lit'l Tim," Ollie Freeman the Gospel Traveler, Joyce Gamble (Lady Hamilton), jazz man Lee Crosby, Cliff Trotter, Wayne Thomas, sportscaster Ted Mitchel, Portuguese director Agnello Clementino, Bob Eldred, Karl Barron, Kitty Oppenheimer, Don Bennett, etc.

In October of 1948, KTIM engaged in the first rebroadcast of an FM station in the U.S., carrying KRCC programming that enabled Richmond listeners to hear their FM shows on the regular dial.

IN 1949, KTIM took over operation of the Richmond FM station, making it one of the first in the Bay Area to offer the AM-FM combination.

KRCC signed off the air in 1950, and KTIM established studios to serve the Richmond area in the Don Hotel. That operation was shut down in 1956 as Marin's growth forced KTIM to devote its entire attention to its home county.

It was in 1958 that KTIM moved into new studios on the third floor of the Independent-Journal Building at Fifth and B, the facilities it now occupies.

The transmitter was relocated from the Kentfield geographical center to the Marin population center on the Smith Brothers Ranch on Las Gallinas Creek in 1960.

In 1962, KTIM-FM went into operation from San Rafael Hill.

AND THE station presently has an application pending to increase the power of its FM operations so that Southern Marin listeners can enjoy perfected reception.

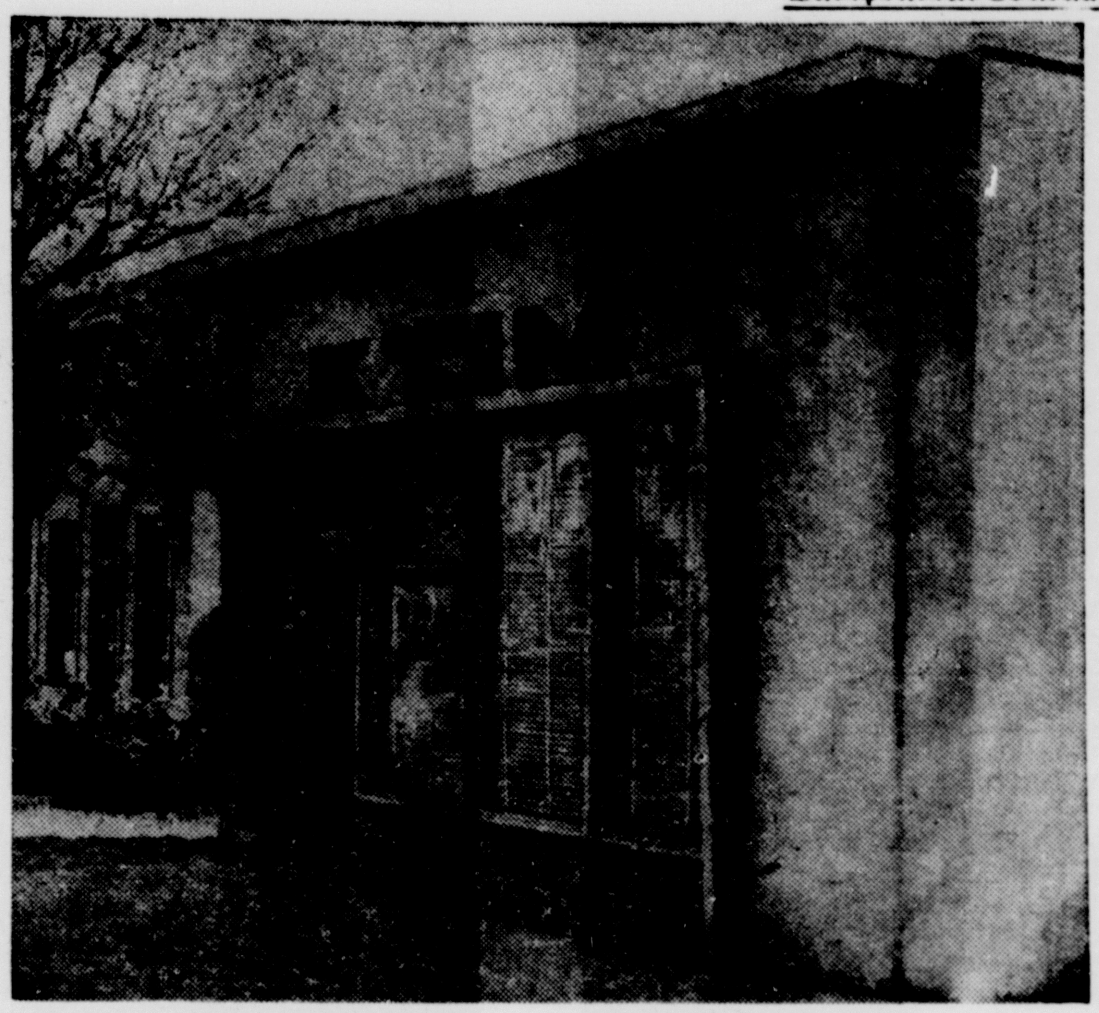
Back in 1947 as the new station went on the air, the San Rafael Independent had editorialized under the heading "A Great Day For Marin" as follows: "When you want to hear good music, want some spot news before the presses begin to roll in the afternoon or listen to the business messages of your favorite mercantile establishment, turn the dial of your home radio to 1510, or better still, leave it there from 6 to 6:30 every day of the week. A turn of the button and KTIM will be in your home."

Predicted the Marin Journal: "This new agency for the dissemination of news, information and entertainment through the air to the people of Marin County will prove to be a definite asset to the community...."



RADIO STATION KTIM'S first studio home when it went on the air in April of 1947 was in this building fronting on 1117 Fifth Avenue. Transmission equipment was on the College of Marin campus in Kentfield. In 1958, the station moved into new studios on the third floor of the Independent-Journal Building, quarters it still occupies. The transmitter was relocated to the Smith Brothers Ranch in 1960.

Looking back over the past 18 years ago this Wednesday, KTIM management and staff can feel that they have justified that forecast.

HUGH TURNER purchased the interest of Ernest L. Smith, who with San Rafael Independent-Journal publisher Roy A. Brown had founded the Marin radio station, in July of 1948, and plunged energetically into the management of KTIM, taking an active part in its broadcasting as well. Here he is seen in those early days checking press service copy in the station's newsroom.

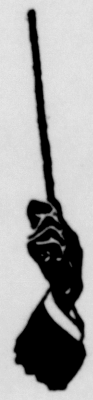
Stereo Hi-Fi

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer



OPEN HOUSE tomorrow, Sunday, April 25th, from 1:30 to 5:30 in the afternoon. Drop in and see our newly decorated Stereo Center. Our "PROGRESS IN SOUND" program will start at 2, 3, 4, and 5 p.m. and last about 20 minutes. Between shows, our staff will guide you around our large establishment.

Yes, our Stereo Sound, and Industrial Audio operation covers much more floor space than most of you have seen when you have been here. The operation consists of our Main Show Room, the Sound Room, our new Tape Recorder Room, (these three rooms are the ones generally seen by the public) our Service Department with it's own private entrance, an Engineering Laboratory, and a large Warehouse. On Sunday we would enjoy showing you around our plant. Come and be our guests.

The "Progress In Sound" program will begin with the playing of a 78 record on an early model RCA phonograph. The sound from this unit is mechanically reproduced without the benefit of tubes and amplifiers. This will be constrasted with modern stereo. The next portion will consist of excerpts of very early records compared with the same excerpts on the high fidelity long play records of about 10 years ago. Then a sampling of one of the early Long Play records, a 1938 vintage. The program swings to stereo with a full symphony orchestra, then each section of the same orchestra will play individually. The first violins will be heard on the left, the 2nd violins will be heard on the right, the cellos will be heard in the center, the violinchellos will be heard just to the left of center, the woodwind section will be heard from the rear and to the left, the brass section will be heard from the rear and to the right, the double bass will be heard from far right, and finally the timphony will be heard from the rear right. Then these individual sections will blend in, one section at a time, to demonstrate the full tonal balance of the symphony orchestra. And a grand finally with a comparison of monaural and stereophonic sound. BE OUR GUEST. Note, we will not be available for the sale of merchandise on this day.

AS THE FIRST STEP in one of his etchings, Max Pollak of Sausalito uses a steel needle to scratch impressions directly onto a copper plate. These lines are then deepened with acid while an asphalt layer protects undelineated areas.

THE FINAL STEP IN the production of a Max Pollak etching makes use of this 150-year-old printing press. The press, a gift from the Nahl family, has been used by artist Pollak to run off his prints for many years.

The Etcher Sees The World In Reverse

By JACQUELINE KUDLER

An admiring critic once asked Max Pollak what had inspired his celebrated etchings.

"It was just like spring," he replied. "It bubbled out, and you see what bubbled."

The public will indeed get a chance to see, when the Fifth Annual Art Show and Sale, a showcase for Sausalito artists, is held at the Sausalito Women's Club next weekend. An etcher of highest repute, Pollak, along with many other top professionals, will submit his work to be judged, aspiring to be a prize-winner once again as he has been for the past two years.

"AN ETCHER must see the world in reverse," says Max Pollak, explaining that the picture which he scratches directly onto the copper plate with a steel needle must be the exact mirror image of what he sees.

Once an anxious onlooker, watching him etch his now famous view from San Francisco's California Street in this manner, gingerly interjected, "Excuse me, sir, but aren't you standing on the wrong side of the street?"

The transcribed lines are then deepened with acid, a layer of asphalt protecting the undelineated areas.

Pollak, always an adventurer in technical innovation, has also worked in soft ground etching, drypoint and aquatint, frequently employing all three processes in the same work.

HIS PARTICULAR concern has been the development of the color etching, a process in which color is rubbed into the copper plate. He stands almost alone in the world today as a master of this rare technique.

His 150-year-old printing press which completes the process was given to him by the Nahl family, whose place as patrons of art has been established in the Bay Area for many generations. This cherished gift has run off his prints for many years, but even this last part of the process is no simple matter since each print requires a separate inking.

The venerable printing press is perhaps the focal point in the studio home in Sausalito where the 79-year-old Pollak lives with his wife, Friedyl. Here, one finds displayed not only the finest work of his own hands but also his prized collections of Guatemalan tapestries and antique Mexican locks, keys and hinges.

IT IS MAX Pollak's own face, however, which completes the picture, for on it is etched the story of 50 years devoted to art.

The story began 79 years ago in Prague, but shortly thereafter the Pollak family moved to Vienna where young Max showed early artistic promise.

As a young man, he studied at the Vienna Academy of Art for eight years, where his talent won him widespread recognition as well as many academy awards. At the end of his studies he received the "Prix de Rome," but many years later, in 1956, the title of "honorary professor" was conferred upon him by the president of the Republic of Austria.

HE TRAVELED throughout Europe for the next few years, producing some of his finest etchings and thereby clearly establishing his European reputation.

One of the master works of this period was a sensitive portrait of Sigmund Freud, with whom Max sustained a close friendship. It was Freud's nephew, Edward Bernays, who urged Pollak to bring his work to the New World, and so, in 1927, he and his wife sailed for America.

In the following year, he had his first very successful one man show at the Ferargil Galleries in New York. Theodore Dreiser was so impressed that he engaged Pollak to do eight etchings for his new book entitled "My City" a prose poem about New York. Word of Max Pollak's success spread, followed by invitations to exhibit in most of the other large cities in the United States.

IN 1930, HE was invited by Gump's to show his work in San Francisco and he returned 10 years later to make the area his permanent home.

His popular etchings have included numerous landscapes and street scenes of San Francisco, but, in addition, he is well known for his life-like portraits. He has etched such notable San Franciscans as Mortimer Fleishhacker, Albert Binder, Mrs. M. C. Sloss and Monroe Deutsch.

Among the many institutions which have acquired his work are the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, the Library of Congress in Washington and the British Museum in London. The California Society of Etchers has conferred honorary life membership upon him, and Californians may see his work at the Aschenbach Foundation of the Legion of Honor Museum in San Francisco, and the State Library in Sacramento.

THE POLLAKS have traveled extensively throughout Mexico and Guatemala, but have not returned to Europe since their last visit in 1937.

It was in 1938 that the Nazi government seized 400 original copper plates which they had left in Austria, using them for scrap metal to perpetuate the war effort. The loss is incalculable, but the Pollaks have slowly bought back many prints made from these early plates.

A critic said, "Many great artists have been fine printmakers, but not all printmakers are artists in the richest sense of the word. Max Pollak . . . is one of the rare combinations of artist and printmaker."

It is no small matter of pride to the Sausalito Women's Club that this "rare combination" of talents will be part of their show next Saturday and Sunday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

AN ARTILLERY UNIT of early-day Mt. Tamalpais Military Academy cadets was joined for this photo by Dr. Arthur Crosby, the Presbyterian minister who was one of the founders of the academy and its first headmaster. Dr. Crosby can be seen with beard behind the cannon. He headed the academy, founded in 1890, until his death in 1915 and was a much beloved resident of Marin. (Photos from the collection of Nathan H. The San Rafael Military Academy Story

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian

Special events at San Rafael Military Academy will celebrate the school's 75th anniversary next weekend.

Founded in 1890 as the Mt. Tamalpais Military Academy, it has been in continuous operation since that time. From three cadets, when the academy was organized, the student body has grown to 254 today. Of these, 186 are boarding students, many from countries outside the United States.

It was Dr. Arthur Crosby, a Presbyterian minister and a graduate of Rutgers, who inspired a small group of Bay Area men to organize the military academy.

DR. CROSBY, a native of New York, came to San Rafael in 1884 to become pastor of the Presbyterian Church which was then located on the east side of E Street, between Third and Fourth.

The charter for the academy was granted in 1890 in accordance with an act of the California State Legislature. Among the prominent Marin residents who made the charter application were Arthur W. Foster, William Babcock and Robert Trumbull.

First home of the academy was the Gilbert house (northeast corner of Fourth Street at E) where Miss Julia Gilbert had conducted a private school.

According to the San Rafael Independent, the first boys enrolled at the academy were William and Arthur Foster and Thomas Barr.

THE CHOICE OF the name for the academy is evident, as headmaster Dr. Crosby loved Mt. Tamalpais and enjoyed hiking and riding over its trails. Fishing and camping in the foothills, then virgin territory, were his favorite recreations.

After a year at the Gilbert house, the enrollment at the academy had climbed to 70 students. These included Newell F. Vanderbilt, who was graduated from the academy in 1894 and attended the University of California until the outbreak of the Spanish-American War in which he served.

After his graduation from U.C. in 1901, Vanderbilt, who had the rank of major, joined the academy faculty as professor of science and as a military instructor. He became commandant in 1909.

The directors of the academy decided more room was needed, so the O'Connor property on Fifth Avenue was given to the school by Arthur Foster, an organizer of the academy and a San Rafael philanthropist.

THE DIRECTORS bought adjacent property consisting of the Tamalpais Hotel and several small cottages. The cottages were soon razed to make way for more academy buildings.

The Tamalpais Hotel had been built in the 1860s. It was originally a two-story farm house. It was moved from its original site to make room for the O'Connor mansion, one of the showplaces of early days. After it was moved to the new location, it was raised one story and wings were added to both ends.

Tennis courts and an athletic field were built, while a ranch operated by the academy provided fresh fruit and vegetables.

The Marin Journal of 1899 said: "Aims of the academy are the training of the body, giving the student all the benefit possible to be derived from healthful exercise, military training which involves some of the physical but gives, in addition, an erect, manly carriage and trains the student to punctuality and attention to detail. The intellectual is, of course, the chief aim of the school. The student is prepared for college or taught practical methods to fit him to enter the business world.

"THE MILITARY discipline is based upon the regular Army of the United States, but it is less harsh and rigid. The students are required to drill at regular hours and given lectures, and required to pass examinations on military drill. Each cadet wears a gray uniform with facings of black.

"Careful attention is given to the student's instruction in religious literature, sectarian teaching, however, being no part of the program. The aim of this part of the work is to develop a manly Christian character and all its accompanying characteristics. Additional courses in languages, music, painting and drawing are provided. Two scholarships are awarded for the Fifth Form."

The article went on to say that the charge for a cadet, including board, tuition, laundry and church seat, was $500 a year. In the primary classes the charge was $100.

IN 1909 THE cadets made an expedition up the coast to Mendocino County and returned via Santa Rosa Valley. The next summer, 16 cadets who had stayed at the academy during vacation, left with complete cavalry and camping equipment for Yosemite Valley.

They took the boat at San Francisco for Stockton and from there marched to the valley. They made a permanent camp at Crocker's and from there groups went on combined maneuvers and fishing trips to Hetch Hetchy Valley. The cadets also made sightseeing trips during their four weeks at Yosemite.

The expedition was under the direction of Major Vanderbilt, member of a pioneer Marin family, who was also at the time captain of Marin's Company D of the National Guard, which had its armory in San Rafael where the Masonic Temple now stands.

ALL WAS NOT drill and study at the academy. Social life for the cadets was also very much in the picture.

Several times a year dances were held in the gym, usually preceded by dinner parties in Marin homes. The arrival of the cadets for Sunday church services was always exciting to young ladies in the congregation. At the academy dances and parties many romances began which culminated in marriage.

Friendly rivalry existed between Mt. Tamalpais and Hitchcock Military Academy, located on the east side of San Rafael. Hundreds of rooters cheered for their favorites at sports encounters.

IN 1914 DR. Guthrie of Calvary Church in San Francisco, who had attended the academy before he enrolled at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, was the principal speaker at the commencement. Miss Phoebe Mackenzie was the organist. A reception and luncheon at Foster Hall followed the exercises.

The commencement exercises, drills, receptions, luncheons and Alumni Day observances have become pleasant traditions on the campus.

In 1914 the swimming pool was reopened and summer camp was held at Alpine in Mendocino County with Major Vanderbilt in charge.

IN 1915, ON the opening day of the fall term at the academy, the staff, cadets and the entire community were shocked by the sudden death of Dr. Crosby. He had been a vital part of the academy, giving his entire attention to it after he resigned as pastor of the Presbyterian Church in 1892.

Many of the older residents of San Rafael remember Dr. Crosby as he rode along the streets and paths astride his pet horse or handling the reins of the four-horse carriage taking him and his passengers to the football games. And in Bolinas, where he died at his summer home, he had hiked over the shoreline and the mountain trails. His loss was felt deeply.

At the request of Mrs. Crosby, Major Vanderbilt took over the duties of headmaster until the close of the 1917 school year. Later he became president and manager of the academy.

TWO MARIN men, long-time members of the academy staff, one only recently deceased, the other still taking an active interest in the students and the progress of the institution, have made major contributions to the school. They are Harry Mobley of San Rafael, who passed away this year, and Maj. Peter Grote of San Anselmo.

Both worked with Dr. Crosby and his successors.

Harry Mobley came to the academy in 1911 as a student. After graduation, he attended the University of California. He came to the academy as baseball coach and teacher in 1915. The following year he left to take part in the Mexican border expedition. He returned to his academy duties, only to leave again for World War I service. He returned to the academy to resume his athletic work, retiring in 1960 as director of athletics.

HIS DEATH brought grief to hundreds of "old grads" of the academy.

Major Grote, a graduate of Spearfish College in South Dakota and the University of California, was commissioned at Fort Sill, Okla., in the field artillery. He was detailed by the War Department to the academy as professor of military science and tactics in 1915.

A veteran of World War I and World War II, he has served the academy as commandant and as assistant superintendent.

Through its years the academy has maintained a high safety standard.

The academy band was organized by Sabin Kane of San Rafael in September of 1921 and so good was the instruction of the bandmaster that the musicians were loudly applauded when they played in the Armistice Day parade that year.

KANE, MEMBER of a longtime Marin family, was band master for many years. After he left the academy, he was elected chief of police of San Rafael.

In the summer camp of 1921 about 20 cadets went to Olema. They hiked to the ocean through Bear Valley, to Bolinas, Inverness and the Marconi wireless station at Marshall.

That summer a group of 10 cadets camped at Yosemite.

In The Adjutant, the academy publication, the prize winning paper on "Kindness to Animals" was published. It was written by Walter Freitas, member of a pioneer Marin family, now a prominent lawyer.

THAT YEAR the academy provided the guard of honor for the May Queen at Marin County Day at Kentfield.

The Adjutant was filled with news of dances and "hops" as well as sports events. When the class of 1925 was graduated, the name of Mt. Tamalpais Military Academy was gone too.

As an aftermath of World War I, the enrollment had dropped and expenses increased. The board of directors decided to close the academy.

It was Captain Grote who persuaded A. L. Stewart to buy the academy. With Grote as a part-owner, the academy passed into the hands of Stewart and Grote.

AS THE directors of Mt. Tamalpais Military Academy retained the rights to the name, the academy became known as the San Rafael Military Academy. Stewart was the superintendent and Captain Grote the assistant superintendent.

Immediately, a program of improvement began at the academy. Four dormitories, which had been government housing, were brought by barge from Vallejo and assembled on the

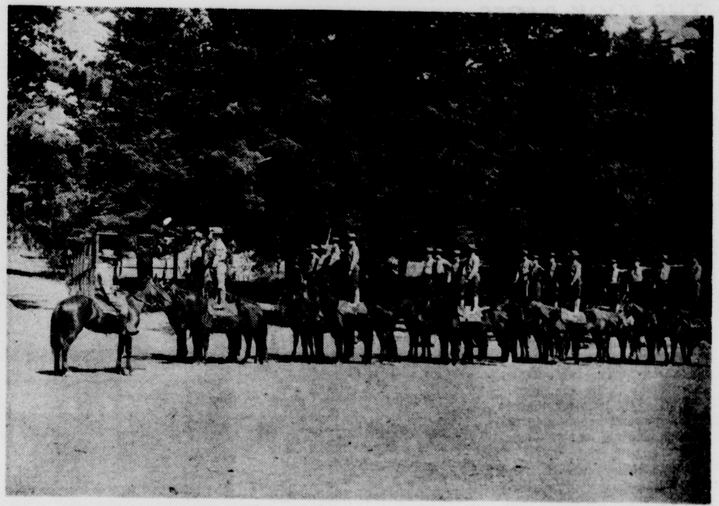
TO MARIN OLD-TIMERS, this landmark building was the Mt. Tamalpais Military Academy. It began as a farmhouse when it was constructed in the 1860s, then became the Tamalpais Hotel. It was acquired by directors of the academy when their school outgrew the Gilbert house in which classes originally began in 1890. This and the other photographs appearing on these pages are from the collection of Nathan H. Frank Jr., a graduate of the academy with the class of 1911. His brother, Lester Frank, graduated from the academy in 1906.



THEY CALLED THIS the "monkey drill," and the cadets of the military academy used to ride around their grounds, standing on their mounts as seen here. There was at one time a stable with horses on the academy grounds, and riding played an important part in academy life.

academy campus. A new administration building was constructed. Later another swimming pool was built.

In The Adjutant of 1926 Stewart wrote of the increased attendance at the academy (by 1929 it had grown to 167 cadets), the modern living quarters and plans for future improvements.

The Hitchcock Military Academy had gone out of existence. It was succeeded by the Tamalpais School and SRMA competed with it, San Rafael High School and other schools in the Bay Area.

The football field was planted in the spring of 1932 and in September of that year games were played on the new turf.

The Burns home, adjoining the tennis courts, was purchased and remodeled to provide rooms for 40 cadets.

The academy provided a junior college from 1927 to 1930. When the junior college was discontinued, the building became the senior dormitory. The enrollment climbed steadily. In 1945 an enrollment of 190 was reported.

A. L. STEWART, who had bought the Tamalpais School in 1941, decided to sell the academy so as to give all his attention to the other school. Major Grote had left for military service, so the academy was on the verge of being left without a superintendent or assistant superintendent.

On Nov. 1, 1945, a non-profit organization, composed primarily of parents of the cadets, took control of SRMA. Raymond Flood was president of the board of directors. Also on the board were Paul Ciampi, Don Corey, Alvin Schultz, Roy Ibach, Henry Pickard, George H. Steel, Albert G. Evans and Harry D. Grant.

THE ADJUTANT of 1953 published the pictures of "Officers' Sweethearts." Among these were Claire Caletti, Carmelita Bates Beverly Philipps, Kathleen Rodrigues, Lexy Cazassa and Ramona Flood.

The San Rafael Military Academy Mothers Club, organized in the fall of 1950, has become a valuable asset. The mothers assist at social affairs and give financial support to many projects.

THE BOARD of directors had negotiated with the Episcopal Diocese of California for sale of the academy. The sale took place and Bishop James A. Pike of the diocese took ownership of the SRMA Feb. 1, 1959.

SINCE THEN many improvements have been made and more are contemplated.

A quarter of a million dollar development has been started. Improvements include an auditorium-chapel seating 500, and a wing of the science building which will contain four laboratories. Because of the increased emphasis on science, lab and math programs have been accelerated.

Dr. Sumner Walters, who has Bachelor and Master degrees from Stanford University and has a Doctor's degree in philosophy from Oxford, England, is the present rector and headmaster at SRMA. The prime purposes of the academy remain the same as when it was first organized: "To teach good study habits, provide a sound curriculum and encourage scholastic excellence."

THE YEARBOOK proudly lists athletic facilities as including a large gymnasium and Olympic-length swimming pool, a football and track stadium, and a baseball diamond. There are also a recreation hall and a post exchange.

Where in the early years the cadets went for camps during vacations in nearby areas, now they are air-borne to distant places.

During the recent spring vacation, cadets traveled to Guatemala to visit the archaeological zone of Tikal. Tour leaders were Dr. and Mrs. Walters and Dr. Tiwen Tang, father of two cadets.

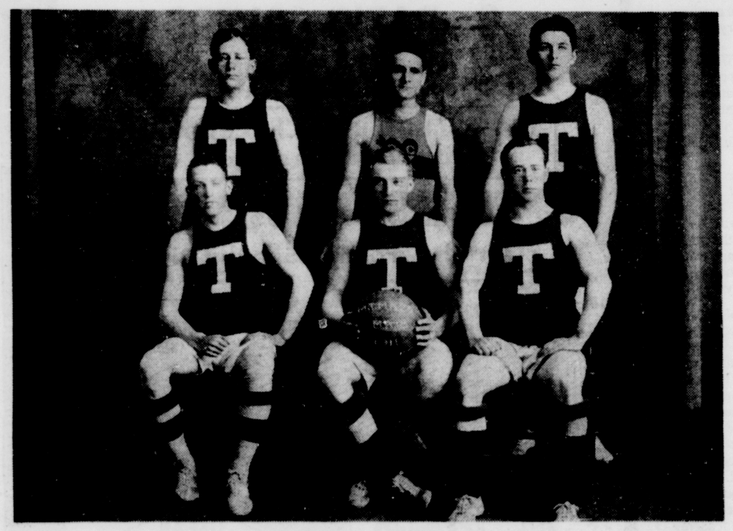
AS CHANGES have been made on and off campus, there has also come about a new appearance of the cadets.

Gone are the bluish gray uniforms, and the campaign hats the young men wore on the march have vanished. Now the dress uniforms are dark blue with caps of the same color, ornamented with gold braid, the academy's crest and initials. The fatigue uniform is olive drab with matching cap bearing the crest and academy's initials.

The academy's continuing observance of its Diamond Jubilee anniversary will be joined with the annual Alumni Day activities next weekend, and will be highlighted by a Diamond Jubilee dinner party next Saturday evening at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant, San Rafael, and by a Diamond Jubilee brunch at the same place, to be addressed by Bishop Pike, on Sunday, May 2.

Also scheduled for Sunday are the traditional band concert, drill competition and parade plus other events and tours of the school, with the public invited to attend the campus events.



ATHLETICS HAVE always been given keen attention at San Rafael Military Academy. And in the old days, when the school was known as Mt. Tamalpais Military Academy, its arch rival was the Hitchcock Military Academy, also of San Rafael. Here the Mt. Tam Academy basketball team of 1911 poses proudly, having vanquished Hitchcock 25 to 18.

SMARTLY ATTIRED IN their uniforms of the times, the cadets of the Mt. Tamalpais Military Academy stand stiffly at attention on the parade grounds. The year was about 1910. Cadet uniforms have changed greatly since those times. But the academy student is still a handsome figure in his dark dress blues.

HERE'S WHAT THE well-dressed and well-equipped football team of early 1900s looked like. The Mt. Tamalpais Military Academy teams of the times were noted for their prowess. And their games, particularly those with the Hitchcock Military Academy, drew huge crowds and were colorful events.

How Man Poisons His Environment

By DON KEOWN

CRISIS IN OUR CITIES by Lewis Herber, Prentice - Hall, 239 pages, $5.95.

ASSIGNMENT FOR A MERCENARY by Howard R. Simpson, Harper & Row, 245 pages, $4.95.

There is an overlapping of subject matter in Lewis Herber's "Crisis In Our Cities" and Howard R. Lewis' "With Every Breath You Take." But every American would be wise to read them both — and read them thoughtfully.

"Crisis In Our Cities" is a broad exposition on the manner in which we have managed to make our urban communities increasingly unfit for human habitation, by polluting the air and water and by creating unhealthy physical and emotional strains.

"With Every Breath You Take" is more specific, dealing with the single but highly complex problem of air pollution in great depth and detail.

The plain truth is that humanity has allowed its cities to deteriorate into filthy cesspools, loading the air with obnoxious and dangerous particles and gases, turning streams, seashores and domestic water supplies into disgusting sewers, and creating a condition of din, pressure, congestion and rush that is more than the human spirit can endure.

Nor are these wasteful practices confined strictly to the large cities, although it is there the damage has been greatest. More and more, these same conditions have been encroaching into our smaller towns and countryside until, indeed, it has become almost impossible to escape the destructive, costly and sometimes lethal consequences of man's abuse of his most precious resources.

The Lewis study, despite an unfortunate tendency for repetition, is an impressively comprehensive and eye-opening survey of a growing problem about which mankind has been indifferent all too long. Only in California, Lewis notes, has really effective anti-smog action been taken.

In most communities, the steps taken have been mere gestures. Or there have been no steps at all to curtail the stream of poisons that pour from industrial smokestacks, from the exhausts and crankcases of automobiles, from smoldering garbage dumps, etc. Generally, politicians have been more considerate of the financial well-being of manufacturers and the automobile industry than they have been of the physical and emotional health of the great body of their constituents. For which, the complacency of the general public is largely to blame.

But the public has been guilty of worse than complacency. Not only do Americans submit meekly to the befouling of their air, but they join in this madness by burning leaves and other debris, by using inefficient fuels, by driving automobiles whose mechanical condition aggravates their contribution to the smog.

Lewis spells out in chilling detail the costs in health and money of this insanity.

Herber proposes a long range solution to air pollution through a shift to different, cleaner sources of power—the wind, waves, tides and sun—than the smoky fuels in use today, along with mandatory controls of automobile fumes and a halt to such dimwitted practices as the burning of leaves and trash in the open or in inefficient incinerators. Lewis spells out more immediate steps that can be enforced upon industry to reduce emissions, many of which, incidentally, are already established practices in the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District. But like Herber, he too sees the need for more drastic and more permanent solutions.

Otherwise, both warn, mankind stands in danger at any time of reoccurences of the infamous Donora, Pa., and London disasters under certain weather conditions.

Herber is less specific in his program to combat water pollution, although the picture here is equally bleak. The best answer seems to lie in prevention, and in greater expenditures for treatment plants, etc.

As for man's urban pace in which he exists largely on nervous energy with all the resulting corrosion of mind and body, the best solution there seems to lie within the individual—in a refusal to be drawn too greatly into the rat race. There may be some financial cost from such a decision. But, Herber makes it clear, the ultimate rewards will be far greater.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF Los Angeles, before and after the settling of the smog, are among the illustrations from the book "With Every Breath You Take" by Howard R. Lewis. It is a comprehensive study of "The poisons in the air, what they are doing to our health, and what we can do about them."

AND STILL they continue to turn out novels of the international intrigue-spy thriller genre. But who is to complain, as long as so many of them turn out well?

American adventurer Michael Craig, disillusioned and embittered, accepts an assignment to stir up tribal trouble in an African state due soon for independence. The role for which he has been chosen in this game of power politics proves, however, more complicated and more dangerous than even he has imagined.

Simpson, an American Foreign Service career man now in Viet Nam, tells an exciting action story with a ring of authenticity. Not only the geography, but the whole feeling of the new, sometimes confused but determined Africa is presented with great skill and realism. The reader is convinced that Simpson writes with the knowledge of the professional "insider." And his book is one that fans of espionage fiction will not want to miss.

B'NAI B'RITH Vocational Service, 1640 Rhode Island Avenue, Northwest, Washington D.C., 20036, has announced the publication of "The College and Career Plans for Jewish High School Youth."

Available from the vocational service for $2, the softcover guide is the outcome of a 40-state study by a number of Jewish youth organizations that have compiled information to serve as a "blueprint" for those engaged in counseling and guidance in the Jewish youth field.

FAWCETT HAS published under its Premier label a paperback edition of S. I. Hayakawa's "The Use and Misuse of Language," selected essays from the journal "Etc: A Review of General Semantics." Harper & Row was the hardcover publisher.

Sleuths & Suspense

This is a new Judge Dee mystery of old, old China.

Van Gulik, an expert on Chinese history and times, paints a very believable picture of how the Chinese lived during a summer of plague centuries ago.

Judge Dee is provisional governor of the capital in this Chinese detective story. The heads of three leading families, according to gutter talk, are scheduled for extermination. Most everyone thinks this is superstition. But two of them die and the judge becomes suspicious.

In unraveling the mystery he must deal with black-hooded scavengers, a woman acrobat, and face the fact that the city's leading lights had rather perverted natures.

The story has a beautiful backdrop because of the author's knowledge of China and the Chinese, but not a great deal of depth. This reader found it interesting, but not compelling.

History With Pathos

A NARRATIVE OF THE DAYS OF THE DONS: BOLINAS by Marin W. Pepper, Vantage Press, 181 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Florence Donnelly.

This book is a thrilling blend of Marin County history and its drama.

Mrs. Pepper, born and reared in Bolinas where she still lives in the house where she was born, has as close friends descendants of the holders of two vast land grants, Rancho las Baulines and the adjoining Rancho Tomales y Baulines. From her friends she heard the stories of their forebearers. This is a narrative of courage, dangers overcome in a new land—and the pathos of separation from loved ones.

MARIN PEPPER
A book on Bolinas

Mrs. Pepper has not deviated from the historical, but has put into her book the threads of intrigue, love and murder.

The book begins with de Anza expedition from Mexico to California in 1776. Several of the men who were given land grants in Marin were members of the expedition, among them Don Marcus Briones of Castilian descent and members of the Garcia family.

The book abounds in graceful prose such as "Into the weaving of every life go many threads, bright, somber, sometimes purest gold." Mrs. Pepper uses a few Spanish words, just enough to give richness and flavor.

Don Gregorio Briones, who later received the grant to the Baulines rancho, was successful in defense of Mission San Rafael Arcangel when it was attacked by a band of renegade Indians. His courtship of Senorita Ramona Garcia is described beautifully. As was the custom of the Spanish, Don Gregorio's courtship was long and it was only after he had received the consent of Ramona's father that plans for the nuptials could be made. The wedding was a beautiful ceremony attended by the aristocracy of California.

The fiesta following the marriage was gay. Carietas, filled with delicious food, had trundled over the rough roads for the feast. After the bridal couple had received congratulations, there was a fandango.

Ramona's brother, Don Rafael Garcia, received the adjoining grant to Baulines, Rancho Tomales y Baulines so the two families were bound by loving ties and lands.

Blood curdling is the end of the "Days of the Dons" with the murders of one of the grantees and the widow of another.

Mrs. Pepper did years of research for material for her book which she has dedicated to Belle, Ynez and Rose, daughters of Pablo Briones.

The author is a graduate of Anna Head School and attended the University of California in Berkeley and the William Chase Art School in New York. She and her husband, Lewis Gundry Pepper, also a member of an old Bolinas family, reared nine children.

The Little Lady

HARRIET BEECHER STOWE: The Known and the Unknown, by Edward Wagenknecht, Oxford University Press, 220 pages, $6. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

To most of us, the name Harriet Beecher Stowe calls up a simple image, of a dedicated abolitionist lady writing "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in the purifying flame of righteous passion — nothing more.

There was a great deal more, as Edward Wagenknecht makes evident in "Harriet Beecher Stowe: the Known and the Unknown."

This is not a biography in the usual sense, although it opens with a brief biographical sketch. Wagenknecht calls it a "psychograph." He has done other such —on Edgar Allen Poe, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Washington Irving.

The chapters treat of Mrs. Stowe, not chronologically as she moved fhrough life from birth to death, but as "the daughter," "the wife," "the mother," "the aesthetic," etc. If this results in some overlapping, and in a great deal of chasing back and forth through the years, it results also in a picture of the many facets of a complicated human being that perhaps cannot be achieved by the traditional approach.

And Harriet Beecher Stowe was complicated. She was far from the simple, ingenious zealot with a flare for writing that is her character in the popular conception. She blended a strict religiosity—the Beecher family being preachers in generation after generation, and Calvin Stowe a preacher, too — with considerable sophistication.

And she was not the screaming zealot for abolition that she has been pictured. In fact, she intended "Uncle Tom's Cabin" as a pacificator!

First of all, she was a writer. Although remembered almost solely for "Uncle Tom," she wrote many other books and a whole host of magazine pieces. And the bits Wagenknecht quotes from them shows that she was indeed a professional.

Author Wagenknecht, professor of English at Boston University, has drawn on much previously unpublished correspondence to help round out his "psychograph" of the woman whom Abraham Lincoln only half-jokingly called "the little lady who started this big war." But through discerning choice of extracts, he has revealed her most through her own published writings. This would suit Harriet Beecher Stowe, for she said herself (or rather wrote, in Hearth and Home magazine) that "from 10, 12 or 13 years of age" she wrote "without praise and without encouragement."

As Wagenknecht comments, she "could no more avoid writing than she could have stopped breathing."

Irishman's Story

MICHAEL JOE by William Cotter Murray, Appleton-Century, 342 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

The author, a native of Ireland, tells the story of an Irishman's life that doesn't contain an ounce of blarney.

In contrast to the usual romantic tales of Irish charm, wit and leprechauns, he lays it on the line in realistic fashion.

The subtitle is "A Novel of Irish Life," and that is what Murray presents through the life of one man in a small town, his relationship with his mother, his love affair, his athletic and business achievements and his marriage.

Michael Joe McCarthy, the subject of the novel, at times heroic and at times tragic, comes across as a man's man and a product of Ireland, whatever his shortcomings.

His life unfolds against the small town backdrop of strong Catholicism, neighborhood gossip, petty snobbery, the dances and the pub.

Above all, the reader learns that life in the country is not always simple, and the "luck of the Irish," is sometimes bad.

Murray, now a teacher and writer at the University of Iowa, is an editor of "Contact," the literary magazine published in Sausalito. He received the Meredith-Iowa Writer's Award, established by Meredith Press, for this novel.

Treasure Quests

SHIPWRECKS, SKIN DIVERS AND SUNKEN GOLD by Dave Horner, Dodd, Mead & Co., 340 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Richard Lyttle.

Dave Horner offers here some practical directions for the novice treasure hunter. He suggests several places to begin a search for treasure and lists the diving equipment and other necessities for the adventure.

Unless one has the keen interest in the quest for lost gold, diving and other diversions, the book should not be tackled.

Books For Juniors—

Some reading for the juniors: Author Roberta Elliott of "Kirsti and the Bear" (Harcourt, Brace & World, $3) is a New Zealander, but the setting for her first book is in Finland. It is a fantasy of the little Finnish girl, Kirsti, who wanders into the forests of Lapland in search of the first spring flower and there encounters Ruski, the great bear, and his foxy housekeeper. Some sly wisdom for the small readers, about the 8 to 10 level, has been included.

An Eve Merriam book is always a treat for the little ones and her newest, "Small Fry," (Knopf, $3.25) must be her best. A large measure of credit, too, must go to illustrator Garry MacKenzie, who has provided some really charming pictures to match the author's text. It is an introduction for the preschooler through first grader to the youngsters of other species — the animals and birds — and the explanation of the name given to each particular kind of "small fry." A book of special merit.

Englishman William Mayne spins the story of David, the boy who has a secret in the wood, in his "Whistling Rufus" (Dutton, $3). Ellen is determined to find out just what it is. The book has a touch of fantasy, and yet it is peopled with children who are very real. It is aimed at the 8 to 11 age level.

THE BEEFEATER or Yoeman Warder retains his aplomb and ignores curious tourists in front of the Tower of London. The scene is from the Charles Forbes Taylor documentary film, "There Will Always Be an England," to be shown Thursday at 8 p.m. in Olney Hall, College of Marin, Kentfield, as part of the "World Around Us" series sponsored by the college's Associated Students and the Explorer's Club of San Francisco. Taylor will narrate.

The Stereo Scene With Sunier

By JOHN SUNIER
KBRG Program Manager

'S MAKE IT—Art Blakey and The Jazz Messengers—Limelight Stereo LS86001:

The Mercury-Philips people of Chicago have just launched a new jazz label, Limelight.

It seems to carry the recent trend toward more lavish packaging of jazz discs about as far as it can go—the albums are all double-fold construction, with different and unique artwork and booklets of liner notes with each album. The design is extremely eye-catching and fun, with a large amount of fold-out pages something in the vein of the old Flair.

Art Blakey's group has been around for some years now, providing their special brand of hard-driving modern jazz with a very funky beat at all times. This latest effort doesn't seem quite as brutally driving as some of the earlier ones, and I prefer it personally.

There are seven tracks including the title tune, a composition of the trumpeter in the group, Lee Morgan.

WE HAD A BALL — Art Blakey, Milt Jackson, Oscar Peterson, Dizzy Gillespie, Quincy Jones, Chet Baker — Limelight Stereo LS86002:

The notes booklet for this one is in the shape of a ball, naturally, with separate pages of photos and notes by each of the artists who contributed to the group effort. This is a great idea for jazz lp's which I would like to see more of.

It makes for variety and contrast by taking one idea, such as these tunes selected from the new Broadway musical "I Had A Ball," and allowing a number of different jazz groups to have at it.

The two tracks by Quincy Jones Big Band are the most fun, and Dizzy's selection—while the shortest—shows the most skill of all.

BABY BREEZE—Chet Baker —Limelight Stereo LS86003:

Five instrumentals and five vocals with the former trumpeter now playing fluegelhorn and singing in a somewhat less adolescent voice than formerly. I still don't like him.

BUTTERFLY WITH HICCUPS—Gerry Mulligan with Art Farmer, flugel horn; Jim Hall, guitar; Bob Brookmeyer, trombone; Dave Bailey, drums; Bill Crow, bass—Limelight Stereo LS86004:

This is the cream of the crop of the first Limelight batch as far as I'm concerned. From cover to cover, visually, musically, stereophonically, and literarily a complete success.

The artwork seems to portray a wildly broken-up view of some colorful daisies which might be seen by a butterfly with hiccups . . . The liner notes are an attempt of disc jockey Al Collins of Marin to encore Pop Art and Pop Jazz with Pop Liner Notes, and are a scream.

The eight tracks are half familiar, half not. Mulligan's ebullient sound is especially swinging on "Old Devil Moon," and "Line for Lyons." Art Farmer's added horn adds a considerable fullness to the previous Mulligan aggregation.

MARIN POETS' CORNER

AND THEY MARCHED

A blind man came from Omaha,
A peg-legged man from Wichita . . .

AND THEY MARCHED!
A white nun and a black nun
With a minister from Oregon . . .

AND THEY MARCHED!
A teacher came from Buffalo,
A lawyer came from Idaho . . .

AND THEY MARCHED!
Way back, Bible says, Moses marched;
Way back, history says, Sherman marched;
Down to the sea, both marched
To set their people free . . .

HOW THEY MARCHED!
Little girl, black child, up with the sun;
Oh, what a Glory, when we shall overcome,
Skipping along for freedom
From the trooper and his gun!

DANCE, Little One!
Old Man speaks, raising up the dust:
"I'm most ninety, but MARCH I must!"

Young Man speaks, eyes straight ahead:
"Without any learnin', might as well be dead,"
And the old man nodded, hearing what he said.

"Hey there, Mother, look beyond and see;
We got our bodies an' our feet,
And the will to make us free!"

KEEP ON MARCHING!
"Dark now, Brother, dark as can be,
But ain't that light through the chinaberry tree?"
"Don't see no light; dark miles around;
Why look for a light that can't be found?"

"HOLD IT, BROTHER!"
"Yes, there's a glimmer, right over there.
Hey, there's a glimmer . . . feel it in the air?
Mornin's most come! stars gettin' pale;
Open your eyes, the Lord won't fail!
Voices won't stop; ghosts will flow;
But blood's from the heart and the heart is strong,
And the pulse of the heart makes the Marching Song!
That's the truth, Brother!"

KEEP ON MARCHING!
A pastor came down from Nebraska,
And a doctor came clear from Alaska . . .

AND THEY MARCHED!
Students came from the mountain states,
And hundreds came from Wisconsin lakes . . .

AND THEY MARCHED!
Many from California came,
With flinty Yankees from the state of Maine . . .

AND THEY MARCHED!

ALL OF THEM MARCHED!

OH, MY GOD, HOW THEY MARCHED!

MILL VALLEY — DAN TOTHEROH

THE QUIET ONE

The moist and fertile oyster leads a non-aggressive life,
His spinelessness impedes him not at all;
With a minimum of overtures he gets himself a wife,
And the number of his progeny ain't small.

His menu in variety comes drifting with the tide,
His brain—where does he keep it?—doesn't whirl;
And should a passing fancy wave his blandishments aside,

SAN ANSELMO — GENEVIEVE DAHLIN

SOPRANO Gwen Curatilo of the San Francisco Opera will be heard in a recital with pianist Philip Ienni in Pennafort Hall on the Dominican College campus, San Rafael, Monday at 8 p.m. Her program will include songs by Mozart, Rachmaninoff, De Falla, Barber, Vaughn-Williams and others. Invite Into A Garden green shrubs.

The garden and patio areas on the upper levels have been featured in national magazines, including House and Garden, and were designed by Thomas Church and Associates.

On the lower levels, extensively developed by the Henshaws, both of whom are avid gardeners, huge boulders have been utilized as an integral part of the design, complemented by additional plantings of succulents, citrus and various groundcovers.

A group of antique bronze Oriental figurines on the terrace and a greenhouse, where many cuttings and seedlings are developed for future use in the garden are among the other interesting facets which the public will be able to inspect during next weekend's garden tour.

Tickets for the tour are available at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross, or can be purchased next Saturday at any of the nine gardens included on the tour itinerary.

The Gardening Pages

PARTICIPANTS IN the annual Garden Society of Marin garden tour next Saturday are certain to be impressed by the extensive azalea and rhododendron collections of the Edward Henshaws. Here you have a closeup view of Apricot Azaleas.

FERNS ARE YET another planting used with fine effect in the Henshaw garden. Here you see ferns and azaleas flourishing in cool serenity beneath the branches of a gnarled oak that provides them with their needed shade.

April Is The Month For Color In Your Garden

April is the month for making dull gardens sparkle and colorful gardens even more glamorous.

Its easy because there is so much blooming material available now, according to the California Assn. of Nurserymen. Here are a few samples to whet your appetite:

The dependable Marguerites have set flower buds, promising a long season of colorful blooms against finely-cut dark green foliage. You have a choice of white, yellow or pink blossoms, all in medium-sized daisy form.

YOU CAN ADD to the natural range of colors by plunging the cut blooms in a solution of ordinary vegetable dye to get pastel shades of red, blue and green, just like the florists do.

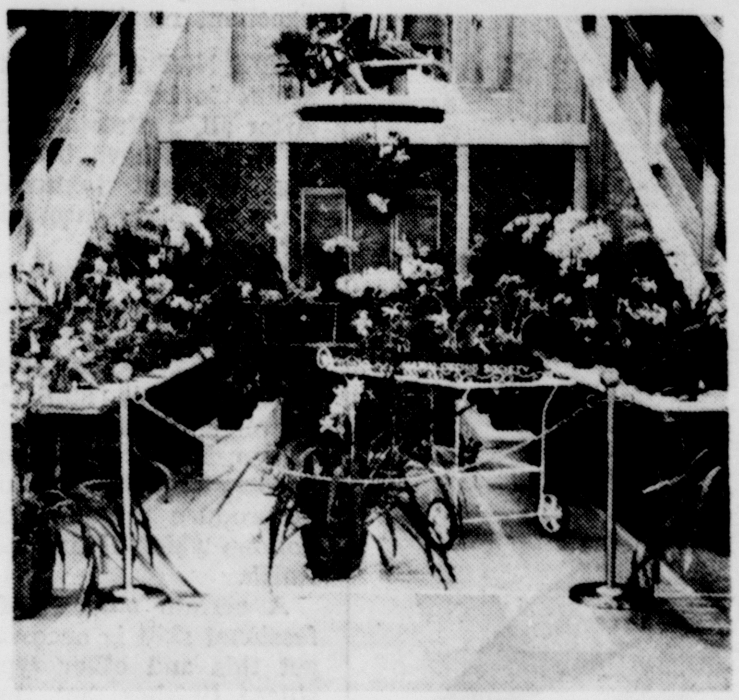
Then there are the Cape Marigolds (Dimorphotheca) with their daisy rays in shades of steel-blue and white, yellow and white and pure yellow. You can get the same flower in a good lavender-blue by asking for Wonder of Stafa (Aster frikartii). All have excellent foliage and a natural height and spread between two and three feet.

For pure white flowers in the garden or for cutting, nothing equals the Shasta Daisy hybrids. There is the tall single-flowered Majestic, the frilled Chiffon, the handsomely double Aglaya,, the tufted Esther Reed and others. Sturdy stems hold the flowers in the best possible position for maximum effect on the plants and in your arrangements.

CUT THE flowers in the evening, plunge in deep water overnight and they will last for days in the house.

Many nurserymen keep some of the potted geraniums and pelargoniums through the winter in larger, one gallon containers. These will be starting to show buds and blooms — will make nice clumps of color in any sunny location all summer.

Here's a growing hint: As soon as the flowers fade, give the plants of all these varieties a light trimming and feeding. They will respond with a new look in a very short time!



EIGHTY PLANTS of a number of orchid varieties were included in this Marin Orchid Society display recently at the Emporium in Marin's Northgate Shopping Center. The large center plant — a Staghorn Fern — is a rarity. The orchid society will be observing its fifth anniversary with a dinner tonight at the Dock Restaurant in Tiburon.

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

✔This is the ideal time to set out shrubs and trees from containers. For a difficult, shady spot, try the new Aucuba Japonica Picturata, whose showy leaves provide a stunning accent of golden yellow edged with glossy, rich green. Not fussy about soil.

✔Hydrangeas are available at your nursery now, and if you haven't tried the new French hybrids, you're in for a pleasant surprise. They provide mid-summer drama in scarlet, salmon, soft pink or white, and grow no higher than three or four feet. Give them a fast-draining, humousy soil and a spot in the shade.

✔For a healthy garden, spray roses, citrus, artichokes and other plants that are putting on new growth with the materials your nurseryman recommends. Make sure your spraying equipment is up to date for an easy job.

✔Plant oleander now in the warmest spot in the garden. It will even take reflected sun. Choose from rose red, yellow, salmon, pink or white flowers, and let this tough, sturdy shrub line a roadside or decorate a sunny patio. Once established, it couldn't care less about soil and water.

✔Set up a regular, deep watering schedule now. Fertilize lawns, shrubs and annuals regularly from now on for good growth.

Painting With A Feather Duster

Handyman's Page

Want a special decorative effect on a painted surface? Try using a feather duster! This is no harebrained gimmick that sounds interesting but won't work in practice. We've seen the results of the feather-duster technique and can testify to the novel and excellent results it produces.

IT'S NOT AS far out as it seems to be at first glance. After all, professional masonry workers have been creating different textured finishes for years through similar procedures.

The Italian Travertine texture often used on stucco is obtained by using an ordinary whisk broom. After the finish coat is applied and troweled smooth, the whisk broom, held at a slight angle, is run along the wet mixture to produce the hillocks and hollows which distinguish this finish.

A certain amount of professional skill is necessary to get this and other types of stucco finishes, but anybody who exercises a little care can get good results with paint and a feather duster. The first essential, unlike the stucco method, is that the base coat be thoroughly dry before applying any paint with a duster.

BESIDES THE duster and the paint, you'll need a fairly large flat, shallow pan of some kind.

One of the metal trays used when applying paint to a roller will do nicely, although a pan which keeps the paint level is preferable. There should not be more than an inch or so of paint in the pan or tray while doing the painting.

If there is any trick at all to using the duster, it is to do everything lightly. Dip the duster into the pan lightly, touch it lightly to a piece of scrap cardboard to remove any excess paint; then flick the duster lightly against the wall or other painted surface. Each touch of the duster will produce an unusual, interesting and effective design.

YOU CAN space the designs as close together or as far apart as you wish.

In order to get the hang of this—and to see whether the results will be satisfactory for the purpose you have in mind—try the procedure first on a scrap board or on some wall where a bit of experimenting is possible. This will enable you to determine whether you want a strong or a faint design, give you some idea of the proper spacing and otherwise acquaint you with the various effects that can be obtained.

TOP GRADE NOT ALWAYS RIGHT ONE

That's the advice of Western Wood Products, whose member sawmills market most of the lumber produced in the 12 western states.

Buy the right grade for the job you have in mind.

There's quite a difference in prices of the four basic grades, and oftentimes the low-cost Utility or Economy grades will be entirely adequate for your project.

A WONDERFUL step and work saver is this kitchen island, equipped with chop block top for pastry making and general food preparation. The island is wired for use of mixer, has bin-style drawers for pie tins and mixing bowls. Spices go in shelves in back, knives in top slot. Here Douglas fir lumber is the building material.

A MUSICAL COMBO that seems strangely uneven in its talent makes its debut on the "Andy Williams Show" Monday at 9 p. m. on KRON-TV. Joining host Williams, right, and trumpeter Al Hirt will be madcap comedienne Phyllis Diller.

WEEKEND SHOWS

It's Comedy Night For TV Movies

Prime time movies tonight are in the lighter vein.

KTVU carries the romantic comedy "The Tender Trap" with Frank Sinatra and Debbie Reynolds at 8 o'clock. KRON offers the Irving Berlin musical "Annie, Get Your Gun" starring Betty Hutton at 9. And Peter Sellers and Margaret Rutherford will be seen in the British-made "The Smallest Show On Earth" on KGO at 11:15.

KQED repeats at 10:15 its showing of last night of the 75-minute "Concert of Nations" with the Philharmonica Hungarica and other internationally-known artists. The education channel also completes its Oakland Symphony Young Artists Contest series with a recital by the winner at 8:30.

The "Hollywood Palace" line-up on KGO at 9:30 includes Pat Boone and Dorothy Collins.

ON SUNDAY, KPIX will premiere two new shows.

At 1 p.m., "KPIX Sports Spectacular" will show color films of the world's principal ski areas. At 3 p.m., "POW," based on the new pop art concept, will take up a bevy of subjects from unusual points of view.

Also on Channel 5, a CBS news special on the Orthodox Church, filmed in Greece, will be shown at 8 a.m. Authority Robert H. Scott will speak on atheism at 11:30 a.m.

The University of California campus revolt will be discussed on KRON at 12:30 p.m. and there will be a report on the Peace Corps on that channel at 5 p.m.

The excellent Alec Guinness spy comedy "Our Man in Havana" will be shown on KGO at 9 p.m. Other movies include two Gary Cooper pictures — "The Court-Martial of Billy Mitchell" on KTVU at 7 p.m., and "The Naked Edge" on KGO at 9 p.m.

The Television Log For The Week

A COLOR SET FOR EACH HOME

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—By 1971 there will be 40 million color TV sets in American homes (compared with today's three million) and by 1975 almost every TV home will be equipped with at least two sets (around 20 per cent of our homes are so equipped now).

These are the predictions of Rodney Erickson, vice president of American Research Bureau.

In 10 years, Erickson said, "the color set will become the family — or adult — set, and the other sets will be for the kids or in the bedrooms, kitchens and even in the back of the car."

If he has his projection sights accurately set, this means that within 10 years the American family will split to various rooms in the house — even the garage — to view the program of their individual choice.

By then, of course, virtually all, if not all, television programming will be offered in color. Color is already scheduled to make a big jump next season on all the networks and Bay Area stations.

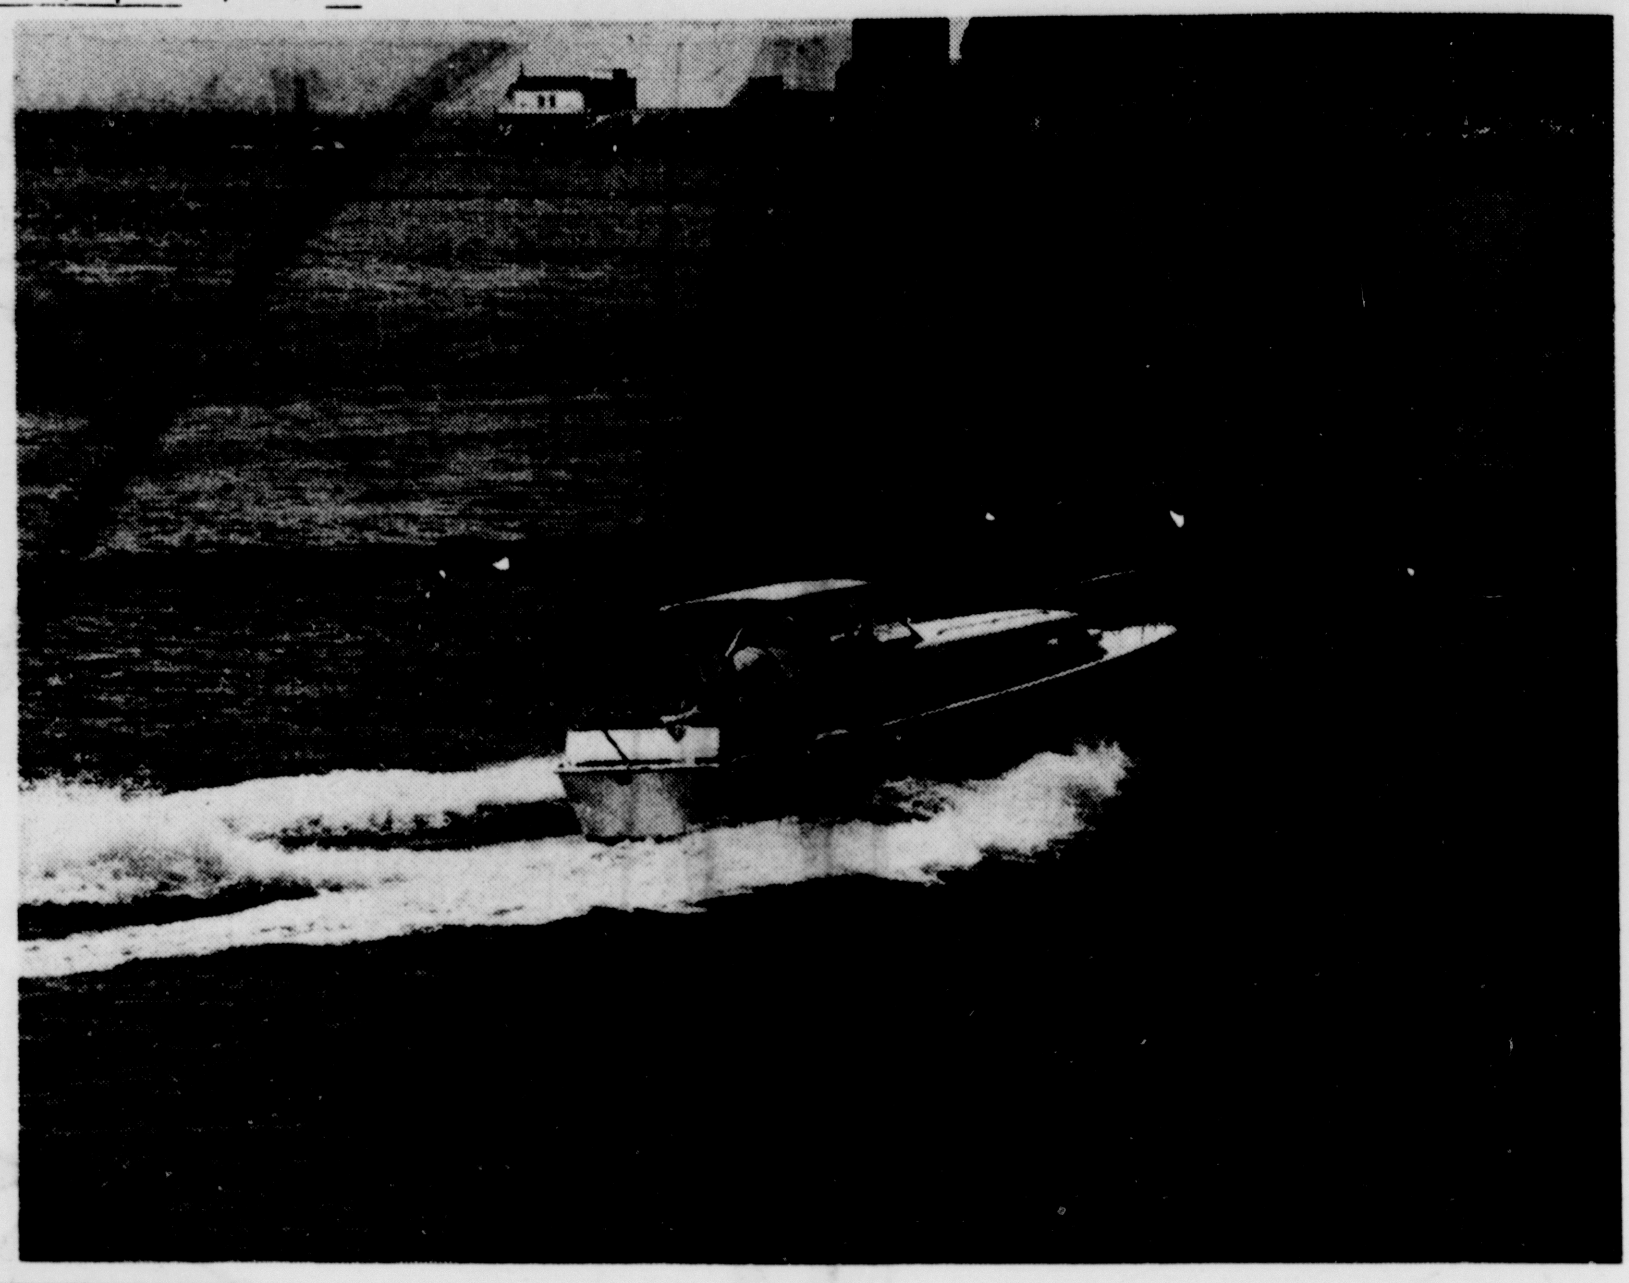
MARIN COUNTY BOATING SECTION

A SPECIAL SECTION OF THE MARIN MAGAZINE



ZIPPING over the waters of San Francisco Bay, with the Marin end of the Golden Gate Bridge in the upper right, is an all-fiberglass Pearson 28 with twin Chrysler 190 engine, out of the Tradewinds Yacht Harbor of San Rafael. Increased use of fiberglass for boats of all sizes is just one of the 1965 trends. You'll find them fully discussed, whatever the kind of boating that holds your interest, in the pages of this special section of the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine.

A Big Year For Boating

Impressive Gains Looming In All Watercraft Classes

For the third straight year the pleasure boating industry and sport chalked up impressive gains in almost every category during 1964.

According to the annual joint statistical report compiled by the Outboard Boating Club of America and the National Assn. of Engine and Boat Manufacturers, 38,500,000 persons took to the nation's waterways for fun and relaxation in 7,700,000 boats of every description, in 1964.

THEY INVESTED $2,605,000,000 at retail levels for new and used boats and motors, marine accessories and services, the report reveals.

The most impressive increases of the year were scored by the outboard segment of the industry. Sales of outboard motors reached 391,000 units in 1964, 29,000 more than in 1963. Outboard boat sales in 1964 totaled 270,000 units, compared with 257,000 units last year, according to the report.

Other significant data revealed by the report:

The 1964 sailboat fleet totaled 525,000 craft, an increase of 30,000 over 1963.

THE INBOARD boat fleet accounted for 550,000 vessels in the U.S. pleasure boat fleet, compared with 4,425,000 outboard boats and 2,200,000 miscellaneous craft (canoes, rowboats, etc.)

More than 6,560,000 outboard motors churned across the nation's waterways in 1964.

Fred B. Lifton, Outboard Boating Club executive director, described the 1964 report as "impressive proof that boating has definitely emerged from the slow-down period we experienced in the early 1960's." He predicted that the industry and sport would continue to enjoy "unspectacular but solid, steady growth" in 1965.

HE CITED a number of factors which have contributed to the new gains boating has enjoyed since 1961, including:

An unprecedented period of unbroken increases in general business activity; technological advances which are making available to the boat-buying public marine equipment that is easier to operate, more reliable, more attractive and generally lower in cost; the development of more and better facilities for launching, mooring and servicing small boats; and the nationwide growth in popularity of participant sports.

"There is every reason to expect that these important trends will continue through 1965," Lifton stated. "The entire boating industry is looking forward to the current year with greater optimism than it has in the past four years."

As an indication of the enthusiasm prevailing in the industry, Lifton pointed out that the 1965 Chicago National Boat Show broke all records in amount of space sold, number of exhibitors and total number of products and services displayed.

The New Outboards Cut Noise And Cost

Outboard motors for 1965 are quieter, some by as much as 50 percent, than predecessors and are now engineered for much lower oil requirements in the fuel mixture—one line now using a 100-to-1 gas-to-oil ratio—for greater operational pleasure and economy.

Mercury, West Bend and the foud-cycle Homelite all are stressing their new, improved sound silencing systems on 1965 models, with the Merc people claiming their four and six-cylinder motors are now "50 per cent quieter" than previously.

ALL McCulloch motors are now engineered for a 100-to-1 gas-to-oil ratio using a new oil developed by McCulloch racing engines. Johnson, Evinrude and West Bend are emphasizing that their motors require only a 50-to-1 gas-to-oil ratio.

The lower oil requirements in the fuel for the two-cycle motors means longer engine and spark-plug life, less chance for pre-ignition, and considerable savings in the fuel costs of operation.

Backing up its claim for "50 per cent quieter" motors, Mercury has incorporated a new sound-sliencing capsule around the powerhead with all fuel line and control connections made inside the capsule and the openings they pass through sealed with neoprene.

THE HORSEPOWER race appears to have leveled off and the refinements in engineering and performance features are the news for '65.

Several companies have substantially improved the resistance to salt water corrosion of their motors, which no longer require flushing after use in salt water. Another has developed outboard models with high-torque especially for work boats.

Inboards Pack More Power And Economy

A wider range of four, six and V-8 cylinder gasoline inboard engines are now available for use with the new outdrives, and standard inboard power plants have been refined for more power with greater economy for 1965.

Billed as "the most powerful gasoline marine engine" on the market is Chrysler's new 415 horsepower Golden Lion Super Ski, a special V-8 with 11/1 compression ratio that develops its power at 5,600 revolutions per minute.

Highest horsepower V-8 introduced this year for use with outdrives is the MerCruiser 310 horsepower with the company's MerCruiser II stern drive unit.

Dearborn, a division of Eaton Manufacturing, has developed two new high-torque "workhorse" engines at 260 and 300 horsepower and a new 165 horsepower lightweight, all V-8's, in its Interceptor line. It also is offering three new Eaton outdrive engines at 120, 140 and 165 horsepower and a new Volvo drive unit.

Pointing up its pioneering activities in outdrives, Outboard Marine Corporation displayed at 1965 shows a 1931 vintage inboard-outboard with most of the desirable features of modern units such as tilt-up action and simple two-bolt disconnection. In counterpoint to this 34-year-old I/O, however, the company also has three brand new outdrives at 90, 120 and 150 horsepower for today's boatmen.

THE WISE BOATER takes careful inventory of safety and convenience accessories as they go on board, just to make certain nothing essential has been forgotten. This young fan checks off such items as a boat hook, hand pump, thermos jug, buoyant cushions, flares, paddle, citizens band radio, lantern, fire extinguisher, anchor, extra line, tool it, first aid kit, extra gasoline tank, spare propeller and—just for fun—water skis.

Woman's Role In Selecting Boat

At a recent boat show, 592 male boat owners were interviewed on the subject and 305 of them—51.5 per cent—reported that in buying a boat they were influenced in their decision by the distaff side in their families.

There were, however, varying degrees of influence, according to the statisticians who broke it down this way: very great influence, 6.4 per cent; boat selected mutually, 31.6 per cent, and some influence, 13.5 per cent.

The survey also showed that a large number of the 592 boat owners—248 of them, or 41.9 per cent—took up boating in the first place because of the little woman's urging.

What are the principal interests of boat owners?

The same survey showed that 70.5 per cent had a general interest, covering cruising and racing; 2.7 per cent preferred skin diving; 20.6 per cent concentrated on fishing and hunting, and 5.8 per cent devoted their time to water skiing.

Fiberglass Continues Recreational Upsurge

More And More Boat Builders Join The Trend

The use of fiber glass in construction of recreational boats continues to grow and, according to a spokesman for the industry, last year reached a five-year high of 65 million pounds.

E. A. Johnson, chairman of the Fiber Glass Boat Promotion Committee, says the 1964 sales of fiber glass boats were the highest since the peak year of 1959 and second highest in the history of the industry.

And Johnson's committee, made up of the major raw materials suppliers, anticipates a further gain of at least 5 per cent in 1965, he said.

"Fiber glass reinforced plastic dominates the large heart area of recreational boating from 14 to 20 feet and has particular strength in sailboats, outboards and outdrives," Johnson said.

THIS LIGHTWEIGHT CRAFT of 120 pounds is made of fiberglass and has been dubbed by its manufacturer, Haines Products Inc., "The Flyin' Flivver." It is intended primarily for youngsters. Yet, it will transport two adults at speeds of more than 20 miles per hour with a 9.8-horsepower Mercury 110 on the transom. It is extremely safe and easily portable.

A RECENT magazine survey showed that almost half of the nearly 3,000 different models of stock recreational boats offered on the market today were constructed of fiber glass.

What is the reason for this popularity of fiber glass?

"The material does not dictate either the hull shape or size," Johnson pointed out. "Strength and thickness can be varied to meet requirements, unlike other materials which force designer and builder to work with sheets or planks of uniform thickness and set dimensions.

"Popularity of the fiber glass boat, however, goes beyond style to durability based on the strength and resilience of the material, to its imperviousness to rust, corrosion, rot and galvanic action and to its low maintenance."

ACTUALLY, Johnson said, producers of all three major hull materials—fiber glass, wood and aluminum — "have something to crow about."

"Wood still has the largest retail dollar volume because of its traditional strength in large, expensive inboard cruisers," he said. "And it's quite possible that aluminum sells the largest number of units since it is much used in small, inexpensive cartop and fishing boats."

Johnson reports that the U.S. Navy's fiber glass fleet at the end of the last fiscal year totalled 2,100, ranging in size from a 14-foot punt to a 52-foot, high-speed boat used to launch and recover frogmen. An additional 410 fiber glass boats are under construction for the Navy, he said.

The Coast Guard now has almost 400 fiber glass boats and is planning to add 75 during the current fiscal year, including a number of 40-foot twin screw utility boats, according to Johnson.

New Records Set For The Sale Of Sails

A Current Boating Trend Is To Go With The Wind

The swing away from power to sail in the small boat field was never more evident than it was last summer when sales of this type of pleasure craft probably reached a record high for a single season.

There are no exact figures on the number of sailing craft sold, but most industry sources agree that sales undoubtedly reached a record level.

ONE PRETTY good indication of the trend toward sail is contained in an announcement by a manufacturer of kit boats.

In a letter to prospective buyers of power boat models, the manufacturer wrote:

"Today we are experiencing a terrifically strong move in our pre-fab field toward sailboats. This is involving more and more of our factory floor space and frame erection area, and in fact an ever increasing percentage of our total available facilities. This trend is so great that . . . we can see that it is very quickly going to involve our total output at our present size and capacity.

"WE HAVE had some 'top level' policy meetings on this matter, and just plain hard business sense points toward a rather rapid elimination of all power boat models from our advertising and production and the conversion of this space and manufacturing ability to the rapidly growing sailboat influx."

The company went on to state that it had decided to accept no further power boat orders.

Other kit boat manufacturers have reported a similar trend. Reports of increased sales also have come from producers of one-design classes.

MORE AND MORE sailboaters are insuring themselves against calms by equipping their craft with auxiliary motors. These two pretty mariners have on board a three-horsepower Johnson, just in case the wind dies out and it is needed.

It's Time To Brush Up Again On Your Use Of Nautical Lingo

With the boating season here again, it might be a good idea to brush up on your knowledge of nautical terms. You never know when you will be swapping stories with an "old salt." So you will be able to speak his language, here is a list of "salty" terms.

Abaft — Toward the stern; behind.

Head—Boat's toilet.

Windward — The direction from which the wind is blowing. The windward or weather side of a boat is that toward the wind.

It's Fiberglass Hulls For '65 Sailboats

Wood Falls By Wayside For Wind-Driven Craft

From seven-foot dinghies to big 40-foot racing yawls, the new sailboats for 1965 are almost all constructed of reinforced fiberglass, and new designs in both day sailers and in modest-size cruising-racing boats are being developed to suit this new hull material.

A survey of the '65 sailboat fleet revealed only a few sailing craft built of wood offered to the boating public.

TWO MAJOR sailboat builders, Pearson and O'Day, both have introduced new 26-foot "minimum" cruising boats in fiberglass with accommodations for four and lines that bode good for racing performance. These boats fit right into the Midget Ocean Racing Club (MORC) category, perhaps the greatest area of growth in sail classes in the nation.

Development of new classes is also evident in the 14-foot range, with Ray Greene's new 14-foot Rascal, out this year, and the introduction of Solotaire, a Finn-type, "bendy-spar, unstayed mast" high performance dinghy —both in glass also.

Tidewater Boats has come up with what it calls a new wrinkle for safety and convenience, the 17-foot "keel-board" Mustang. It is said to be self-righting and bailing following the unlikely event of a capsize, yet its moveable keel can be easily retracted for bleaching or trailing.

THE SAILBOARD or "sailing surfboard" boat, long the domain of Alcort's Sailfish and Sunfish, is another fast-increasing area in the sail field, with numerous models in various construction methods.

Thev ery popular (8,800 now racing) Lightning class now is available in what two companies, Mobjack and Siddons and Sindle call "the first fiberglass Lightning truly competitive with wooden ones."

Less Weight Gives You More Speed

Weight of accessories adds up fast. For example, the battery and gasoline tank of a typical outboard rig together can total 100 pounds. An anchor, anchor line, fire extinguisher, seat cushions and paddle can add another 50.

Most of this is safety equipment and must go aboard. It's the unnecessary equipment that should be eliminated. It can weight down a boat to the point where performance suffers noticeably.

Another thing to check—if you want to avoid sluggish performance—is the propeller. Battered leading edges of propellers can ruin smooth water flow and greatly reduce thrust. Reconditioning or replacement of a bad prop can cost very little compared to the improvement in performance to be realized.

Incidentally, for outboarders, the Outboard Marine Corp. (OMC) has just issued a 20-page booklet, "From Horsepower to Waterpower: the Story of Propellers," which discusses in non-technical language the proper methods of selecting the right propeller for any outboard boat.

It explains in both words and pictures the importance of correct transom height, proper motor angle adjustment, loading the boat correctly, and what is meant by a "standard" propeller.

The booklet is available free at any Johnson or Evinrude dealer or can be obtained by writing OMC Accessories, Outboard Marine Corp., Galesburg, Ill., 61401.

Age Limit Lowered For Boat Racing

The American Power Boat Assn.'s Outboard Pleasure Craft Racing Commission has lowered the minimum age requirements for outboard pleasure craft racing.

The new minimum age for Classes A through F is 14 years. Participants in all other classes must be 16 years of age.

In marathon races, where a passenger is required, a minimum age of 14 years will be allowed if parent or guardian accompanies the minor.

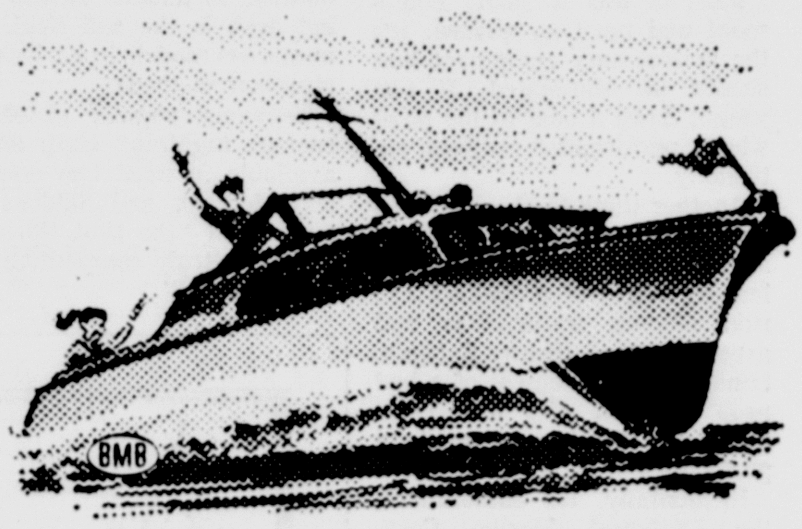
Trends In Cruisers—



A cruise through this year's boat shows point up the rapidly increasing trend toward the use of the modern inboard-outdrive power plants for runabouts and smaller cruisers and a strong devotion to wooden construction on the part of most larger power cruiser builders, with a few notable exceptions in fiberglass.

Most well-known, popular cruisers such as Owens, Century, Trojan, Matthews, Revel, Pembroke, Pacemaker and the many Jersey sea-skiff type craft are of wood, either carved or lapstrake-planked or sheet plywood.

Among the significant exceptions are three companies that came to life in the 1950's and started right in with fiberglass —Pearson, Hatteras and Bertram.

One builder of wood runabouts, now celebrating its 90th year in the boatbuilding business, Lyman, has now also branched into the cruiser field. One of the "plushest," most completely-equiped cruisers seen at the shows was the handsome 42-foot Canyon Commuter by Bayhead Skiffs, a Jersey skiff sport fisherman outfitted with every conceivable "extra" a yachtsman could want, both in operating equipment and in comforts, conveniences and decor.

The inboard-outdrive combining the best features of both inboard and outboard power has taken strong hold with builders of runabouts for 1965. One of the most interesting is Century's 17-foot Bronco, with all the appearances of a "fastback" auto, and powered with a 165-horsepower I/O.

Whereas wood appears the favorite among cruiser builders, reinforced fiberglass has gained a strong foothold among inboard and I/O runabouts, with horsepower and hulls refined for speed and satisfying seaworthy performance under most water conditions.

They're Making Diesels Lighter

The first low-priced diesel for inboard-outdrives, a new series of V-6 diesels and lighter, more compact engines to fit in smaller power and sail boats than heretofore possible are now available to boat owners.

The new MerCruiseRover "60" a 60 horsepower Rover diesel engine which gained its fame as the power plant for the Land Rover vehicle, is on the market and offers high thrust at low speeds, no radio interference, and all the other diesel advantages.

CRUSADER'S new V-6 diesels developed around the proven GM 478 cubic inch block in both normally aspirated and turbocharged models boast a special low profile that permits use in all but the smallest of inboard boats.

Smallest of all the new diesel engines is a tiny six horsepower model weighing only 121 pounds and measuring under 16 inches long, 15 inches wide and about 20 inches high. It is a Farymann diesel imported from Germany and being marketed in the U. S. for the first time by Kermath of Hawthorne, Calif.

Another notable small diesel power plant is the new Westbeke 15 horsepower engine for use as an auxiliary engine in cruising sailboats between 25 and 35 feet.

WEIGHING only 345 pounds, it is extremely compact and engineered with all the parts that need servicing at its front end. This means that diesel power can now be used in the popular fiberglass and wood sailboats up to 35 feet, installed beneath the cockpit sole and aft of the main companionway, yet easily serviced and maintained by a single person reaching through the bulkhead in the after part of the main cabin on a conventional layout craft.

A prominent diesel manufacturer, Perkins has reduced prices on all diesel models in its line through a series of manufacturing efficiencies and consequent increased output. That company also has just brought out a new 160 horsepowerpower diesel for cruisers in the 24 to 30 foot range that is only 22½ inches high and with an extremely low weight/horsepower ratio.

Other significant developments include Caterpillar's turbocharging and aftercooling on most models

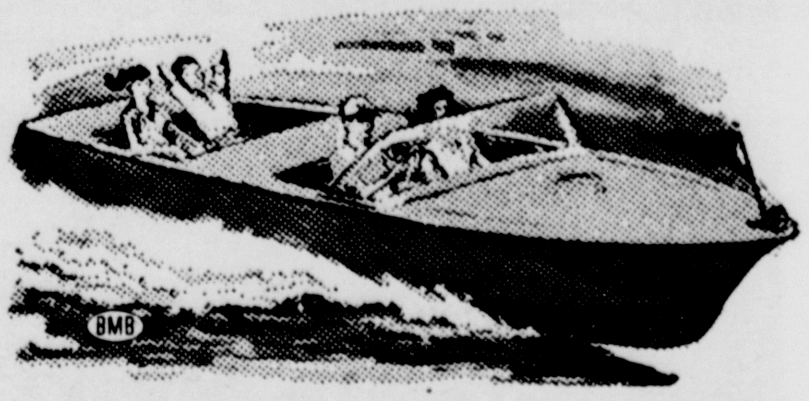
The New Runabouts



The deep vee, longitudinal-step and the cathedral form hull—two design ideas that have been gaining fast in popularity for their seaworthy, smooth-ride characteristics—appear to be approaching dominance in outboard runabout boats as does the use of fiberglass as the prime construction material.

The development of these two hull designs can both be laid to the ingenuity of naval architect C. Raymond Hunt, who originally gained renown as a designer of sailboats.

MANY OF the '65 outboard runabouts—and even a good proportion of the inboard boats—are now using variations and refinements of these two concepts which Hunt developed five or six years ago for two different boat builders.

In addition to the wide attention to hull-forms with more seaworthy, better riding characteristics, outboard boat builders are also paying greater homage this year to increased hull integrity, strenth and quality, meaning safer boating for the public.

One major outboard boat producer in both fiberglass and aluminum, MFG and its affiliate Crestliner, has double-riveted the seams of all their aluminum boats and replaced certain wooden structural members in their glass boats with reinforced fiberglass for greater integrity.

Outboard-powered pontoon boats and houseboats, too, seem to be on the rise in number of companies building them and in the extensive comforts and conveniencies being incorporated.

Rigs designed for fishing also continue to be very popular, boats suitable for ponds, for big lakes and for rugged, offshore coastal waters.

Poor Performance? It's Not Always Fault Of Motor

Many weekend skippers are too quick to blame the motor for sluggish performance, say the experts. Many times the boat is the hidden culprit.

While most owners take great pains to properly service their outboards, boats are often passed by. After all, what can happen to a boat?

Given enough seepage, the boat could actually be lugging extra weight equal to two or three passengers. That's enough to knock several miles per hour off top speed.

If you suspect this has happened to your boat, drive it aboard the scales at a weigh station. Check the actual weight against the weight of the trailer and boat as listed in your owners' manual. If the boat has picked up water, have it drained immediately.

A "HOOK" and a "rocker" are terms used to describe distortions in the hull. Although a hook may develop because the boat has been over-powered, improper storage is another cause. A rocker is also the result of improperly storing the boat during the winter months.

A trained eye can tell if either of these has occurred. Short of learning to live with this problem, or purchase a new rig, you can't do too much.

If the boat passes these tests, routine maintenance will put it shipshape.

EVERY BOAT—wood, aluminum or fiberglass—should receive a complete cleaning, inside and out. When cleaning the inside, remove the drain plug and tilt the bow up. Then hose down the cockpit using a mild detergent.

Boats moored in salt water have probably picked up marine growths on the bottom. By now they've hardened, and you'll have to scrape them off. To help prevent this during the current season, apply an anti-fouling paint.

AFTER THE boat is dry, polish it and all hardware and accessories. A qualified marine dealer can recommend the best polish.

Getting your boat back in top shape can be a family job, and it shouldn't take more than a few hours. Dad can handle the exterior, while mom and kids work on the interior.

A New Material Appears In Boat Building Business

By JACK WOLISTON
United Press International

MIAMI (UPI)—A new material has entered the boat building business. Its manufacturers claim it has the strength of wood and fiberglass but only half the weight.

It is called Plyfoam and its basis is a unicellular rigid vinyl plastic foam sheet called Cell-Tite. It was developed by B.F. Goodrich Co.

We came here at the invitation of the Goodrich people to inspect the first boat ever made of this new material. It is a 37-foot trimarin which was built by Potter Marine Products, Inc. of Plainview, N.Y.

JOHN T. Potter, a long-time yachtsman who heads the company which built the first model, has this to say of the boat, Touche III, which was designed by Britton Chance Jr., of Plainview:

"It's buoyant and rugged and it has the strength of marine plywood but only half the weight. And it won't waterlog, even when punctured or ruptured.

"Under ideal conditions the boat is capable of sailing faster than any of the 12-meter America's Cup yachts."

Touche III has three separate but interconnected hulls, weighs 5,000 pounds and carries a 1,200-pound fixed keel for stability. She is cat rigged and the single mainsail is 650 square feet on a 51-foot mast of extruded aluminum.

Touche III was built by only two men using simple tools, adhesives, fiberglass fabric and simple forms. The sheets of Plyfoam were shaped to wooden forms by using an electric blanket and infrared lamps. Epoxy resin was used on the joints and the entire hull was covered with fiberglass fabric and another coat of resin.

POTTER CLAIMED that working with Plyfoam was easier than working with wood.

Use of Plyfoam in building Touche III, according to Potter, has eliminated the weight penalty that would ordinarily accompany use of plywood or fiberglass on a boat the same size—37-foot. This allows the boat to carry a keel heavy enough for positive stability and a substantial sail area, Potter said.

IT'S BOATS, BOATS, BOATS—and more boats — as more and more Americans, and especially Californians, discover the fun, relaxation and thrills that can come from boating. As costs have gone down, boating has become less and less the prerogative of the wealthy, and more and more a source of enjoyment available to all.

There Are Nearly 3,000 Models From Which To Choose A Boat

So you're going to buy a boat!

If you haven't already made up your mind, it may be difficult to make a choice.

A recent survey shows there are at least 2,898 different models of stock recreational boats on the market ranging in size from 5-feet, 8-inches to 75 feet in length and in price from $24 to $260,000.

The survey, conducted by the editors of Popular Boating, shows that these boats are built and offered for sale by 381 different companies. They include inboards, stern drive, outboards, cruising and day sailboats, pontoon and house boats, and such "little boats" as rowboats, dinghies and canoes.

Most expensive of the 2,898 models—at an asking price of $260,000 is a 75-foot steel-hulled sedan cruiser with sleeping accommodations for 14 persons. Least expensive is a 9-foot wood and canvas kayak.

A breakdown of construction material shows that 47.1 per cent of the models are fiberglass, 15.8 per cent aluminum, 13.7 per cent plywood, 12.8 per cent solid wood planking, 3.8 per cent steel, 2.3 per cent a combination of wood and fiberglass, and 4.5 per cent in such materials as rubber, canvas, expanded polystyrene foam and a combination of aluminum and fiberglass.

ABOUT A third of the 2,898 boats have some form of sleeping accommodations, ranging from elaborate staterooms to convertible fold-down seats on small runabouts.

—Conventional inboards: range from 15 to 75 feet in length and from $1,995 to $260,000 in price.

—Stern drives: from 13-feet, 7-inches to 37-feet, 4-inches in length; from $525 to $33,000 in price.

—Outboards: 7-feet, 6-inches to 24 feet; $79 to $5,875.

—Cruising sailboats: 15 to 64 feet; $1,595 to $150,000.

—Day sailboats: 7-feet, 8-inches to 32-feet, 5-inches, $99 to $9,800.

—Houseboats and pontoon boats: 12 to 65 feet; $325 to $29,000.

—Rowboats, dinghies, canoes and specialty boats: 5-feet, 8-inches to 34-feet; $24 to $1,871.

Boating Claims Attention Of Our Federal Lawmakers

Of the 3,911 bills introduced in the House and 897 introduced in the Senate during the first month of the 89th Congress, 113 contained provisions which would have some effect on boating or water-oriented recreation.

One of these, a bill introduced by Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., at the request of the then Secretary of Treasury Douglas Dillon, proposes amendment of the Inlsna, Great Lakes and Western Rivers rules of the road.

The bill would change existing rules to provide that, in a narrow channel, a sailing vessel or a steam vessel under 65 feet in length shall not hamper the navigation of a larger vessel which can only navigate within the channel.

All motorboats within the size limitation would come under the new rule since they are considered steam vessels.

Dillon said the bill was drafted because of difficulties created in some cases where small vessels insist on their right of way over deep draft, oceaning ships or tugs with tows, especially in narrow channels going ships or tugs with tows, where maneuverability is limited.

FLAG ETIQUETTE

It's Basic As An Accessory, But Do You Fly It Properly?

Flags contribute so much to the color of boating that most boatmen think of them as basic accessories.

The Mercury outboard people suggest that you'll probably want to add a burgee and a yacht ensign to your boat, but that you should follow well established rules of flag etiquette so you don't look like a landlubber.

A BURGEE is a club or association member's flag and is usually tri-angular in shape, like a college pennant. If you don't belong to a club, you can substitute a "runabout flag," usually a red, white, or blue triangle with a contrasting star in the center.

The "yacht ensign" looks like the regular national flag, but instead of 50 stars, it has a circle of 12 stars around an anchor. It originated in 1848 as a special signal to be flown by licensed yachts to exempt them from going through customs formalities at each port of call. It has survived as the pleasure boatman's distinctive flag.

However, if you prefer, you can fly the 50-star national flag from the stern . . .it's perfectly correct.

The so-called "jack" which you've probably heard about is an all blue flag with 50 white stars. Often displayed in marine stores, it is correctly flown only at certain times on large yachts.

CHOOSE FLAGS that are the right size for your boat. If it's under 20 feet, buy a burgee about eight inches by 12 inches and an ensign about 12 inches by 18 inches.

It will pay you to buy a high quality flag which will resist fading and fraying in the wind and whose colors won't run.

Flagstaffs must fit tightly in their sockets, so that the vibration of the boat and the whipping of the wind don't shake them loose. And its not a bad idea to remove both staffs when docking or working with lines, so that you don't get tangled up or have them snap off with a sudden change in direction.

ONE OF THE NICEST things about boating is the bevy of beautiful girls that are attracted to the sport. These two young sun-bathers relax by an on an Evinrude Sport 16 boat.

Do Your Part To Avoid Congestion At Loading Ramp

The Evinrude News Service offers these trailering and launching tips. Follow these simple rules, and you won't be the object of sneers from impatient boatmen waiting in line.

Trailer manufacturers specify load capacities for each model. Stay within these limits, and your rig will be easier to tow, launch and load. Be sure to include the weight of the motor and assorted gear when you're adding up the grand total.

HAVE YOUR dealer correctly adjust the rollers to fit the contour of the hull. Besides protecting the boat from distortion, your rig will slide on and off the trailer easier.

Surprisingly, many boatmen struggle and cuss because they don't understand the correct operating procedures of trailer mechanisms. If you have any questions, don't hesitate to ask your dealer. In fact, it might pay to have him demonstrate the correct technique several times.

If you've never towed a trailer before, take a few practice runs. You'll notice that it will take longer to stop, and acceleration will be slower. Add a couple of inches when turning a corner so the trailer will clear without hitting the curb. An empty supermarket parking lot is a good practice field.

THERE'S ONLY one trick to trailering. When you back up, the trailer will go in the opposite direction that you turn. If you turn the wheel to the right, the trailer will swing to the left. Save yourself confusion and embarrassment. Practice this several times before actually trying it on the launching ramp.

Make sure your rig is ready to go when you're on the ramp. Assorted boating gear should be transferred into the boat while you're waiting, and make sure the drain plug is installed.

Launching is a two man job with one person acting as a guide for the driver. Line yourself up at a right angle from the water. Back up slowly and stop a few feet from the edge. Remove the tie-downs, tilt the outboard motor up and unlock the bow winch. Back up again until the trailer wheels are one or two inches into the water. Set the emergency brake and put the car in gear. Have your guide hold onto a lead line from the bow.

THIS WILL prevent the boat from drifting into open water when it slides off the trailer.

The loading procedure is just as simple. Line up the trailer and the boat. Connect the launching cable and let the winch do the work of retrailering. Pull out of the water and off the side before checking all fasteners, plugs and tie-downs.

WHEN LAUNCHING your boat, have some one else hold onto a bow line. This will prevent the boat from drifting into open water when it slides off the trailer. It is just one of the precautions you can take to avoid mishaps while putting your boat into the water. A foul-up at the launching ramp not only inconveniences you, but others waiting to use the ramp as well. And such hold-ups have spoiled many a pleasant Sunday for boaters.

How About Testing Your Boat Savvy?

It's a rather tough one to test your general boating knowledge. If you miss more than a couple of question, you could probably stand some brushing up on your boating basics. The correct answers appear at the end of the quiz.

1. When you swing a boat to the right, you swing to: (a) port, (b) stern, (c) starboard.

2. When pulling two water skiers, the tow lines should be: (a) the same length, (b) one should be longer, (c) one should be shorter.

3. The widest part of a boat is called the: (a) transom, (b) beam, (c) chock.

4. A power boat has the right-of-way over a sailboat: (a) always, (b) never, (c) under certain conditions.

5. When afloat, the amount of boat showing between the water and the gunwale is the: (a) freeboard, (b) draft, (c) plank.

6. A safe ratio for length of line to depth of water for an anchor line is: (a) 1:1, (b) 3:1, (c) 6:1.

7. The part of the boat on which the outboard motor is mounted is the: (a) bow, (b) transom, (c) cleat.

8. Your boat has the right-of-way when: (a) leaving a slip for open water, (b) overtaking another boat, (c) another boat is approaching your port side.

9. A useful knot in joining lines of different size is: (a) clove hitch, (b) bowline, (c) sheet bend.

10. Trimming a boat refers to: (a) proper placement of cargo, (b) proper painting, (c) tidying up.

11. Binding the ends of a line to keep it from unraveling is known as: (a) whipping, (b) knotting.

12. To free a propeller of weeds: (a) advance the throttle, (b) shift into reverse and accelerate briefly, (c) shift into neutral and accelerate briefly.

13. When filling an empty outboard fuel tank, put in: (a) oil, then gas, (b) some gas, oil, then the rest of the gas, (c) gas, then oil.

14. When boarding a small boat from a pier, step: (a) on the gunwale, (b) amidships, (c) on the transom.

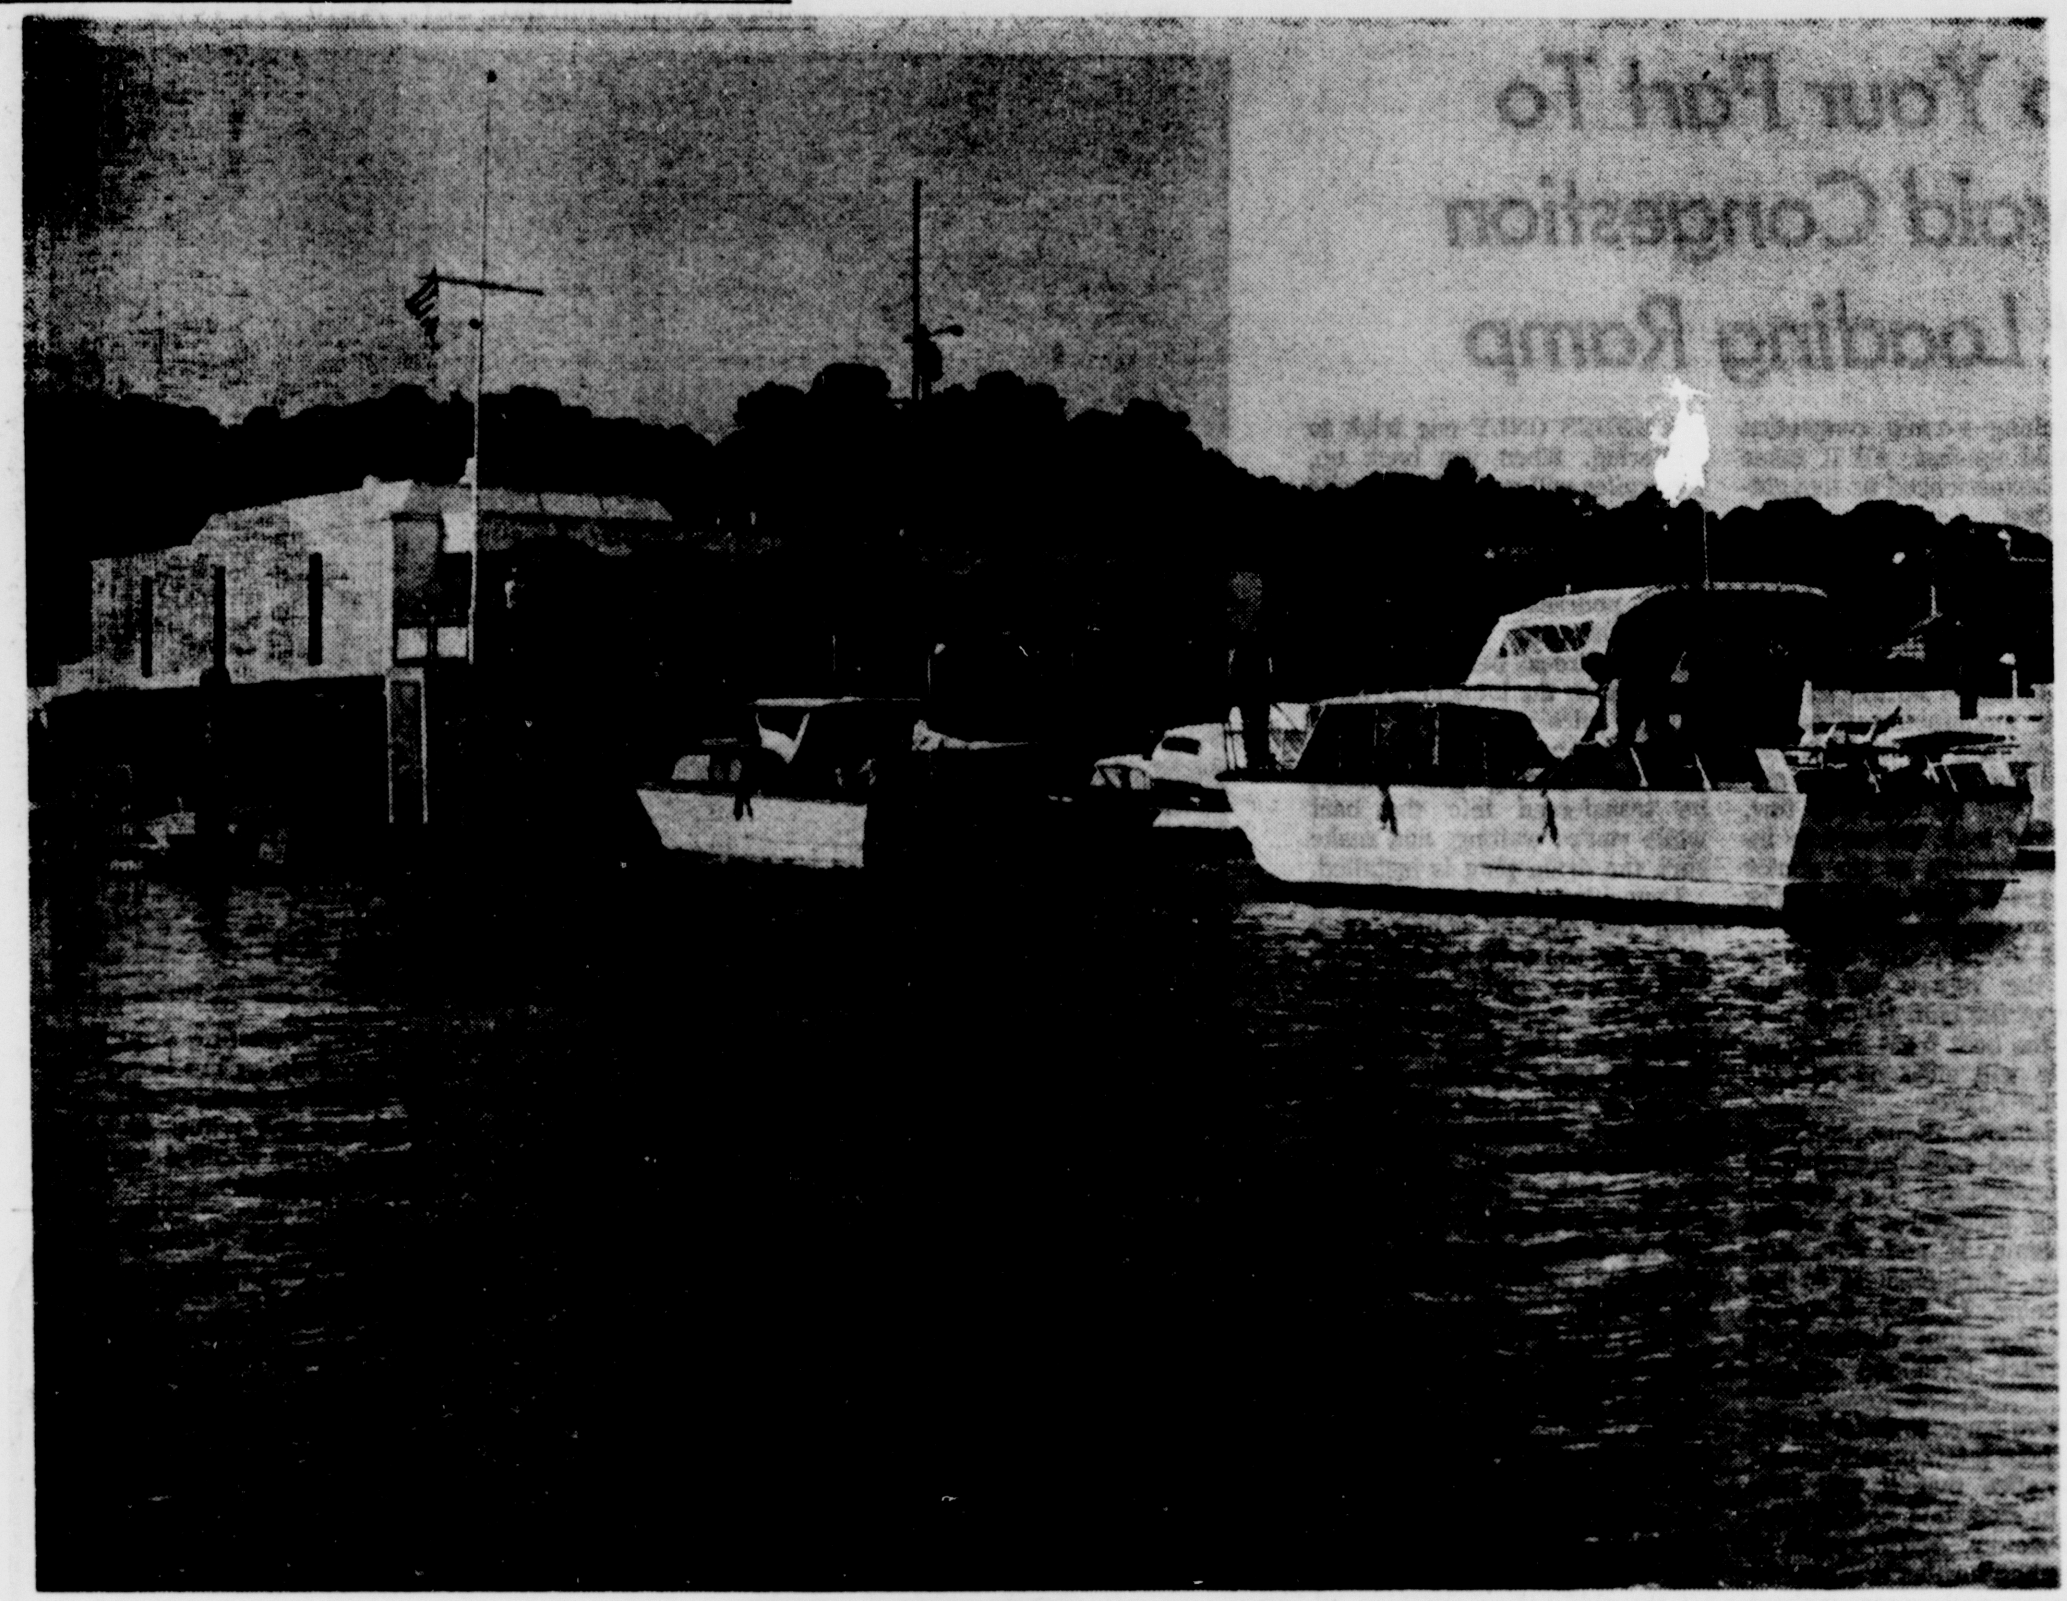
Correct answers are: 1. (c); 2. (a); 3. (b); 4. (c); 5. (a); 6. (c); 7. (b); 8. (c); 9. (c); 10. (a); 11. (a); 12. (b); 13. (b); 14. (b); 15. (a).



THE LOCH LOMOND YACHT CLUB originated in 1961 with 14 members. It now boasts 10 times that number and owns the $80,000 clubhouse shown above, which was opened last October. The building was designed by architect Jack Buchter and built by Larkins Construction Co. Dedication ceremonies and an open house for members and their guests are being held this weekend. Marinas Play An Essential Role In Development Of Waterways

Facilities They Furnish Are Vital To The Pleasure Of The Boaters

That's the opinion expressed by Joseph E. Choate, vice president of the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers.

"Marinas," Choate said, "are among the most important ways of attracting people to water areas opened for recreation purposes. They provide a magnet for boat owners who then — with other visitors—create a demand for business services connected with the waterways."

Choate said states and communities should avail themselves of Federal legislation, such as the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act, to develop marinas as part of the national effort to create and improve outdoor recreational facilities.

Another good word for marinas comes from Ron Stone, director of government relations of the Boating Industry Assn.

"Much of the credit for boating's record as one of the safest forms of outdoor recreation must go to boat clubs and marine dealers who have taken the lead in promoting safe boating," Stone told the annual meeting of the Southeastern Association of State Boating Law Administrators.

Many marina operators help check and report waterway hazards, clear and mark channels and set up and maintain storm warning system. They also distribute safe boating pamphlets, posters, booklets, films and similar materials.

A good many marinas permit the use of their facilities as "classrooms" for courses in small boat handling techniques conducted by the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary and U.S. Power Squadrons.

Pride In His Craft Trait Of The Expert In Boating

Boats should be kept clean inside and out and they should be kept dry. Remove water from the boat with a pump, bailing can or sponge, or open the drain cock when it is on a trailer.

A chamois aboard will come in handy in wiping moisture off deck hardware and fittings and is also a good article to use in wiping dew and water off seats and varnished surfaces. When a boat is used in dirty water, the film will have to be cleaned off the sides of the boat with a detergent or gentle abrasive cleanser after the boat is taken from the water.

Keep Your Trailer Out Of Repair Shop

A Check-Up Now Can Avoid Breakdowns In The Future

Your trailer can be the key to new boating adventures — provided it's not in the repair shop.

Here's a list of suggestions:

HEAT AND friction can burn up wheel bearings. Remove the wheel hub, grease the bearings and re-pack. It's smart to check this periodically during the season.

Tighten the wheel lugs. The small trailer wheels are subject to constant vibration on the road. The lugs can loosen up and set the stage for a serious mishap. Your marine dealer can tell you the correct tire pressure for the smoothest ride and best handling.

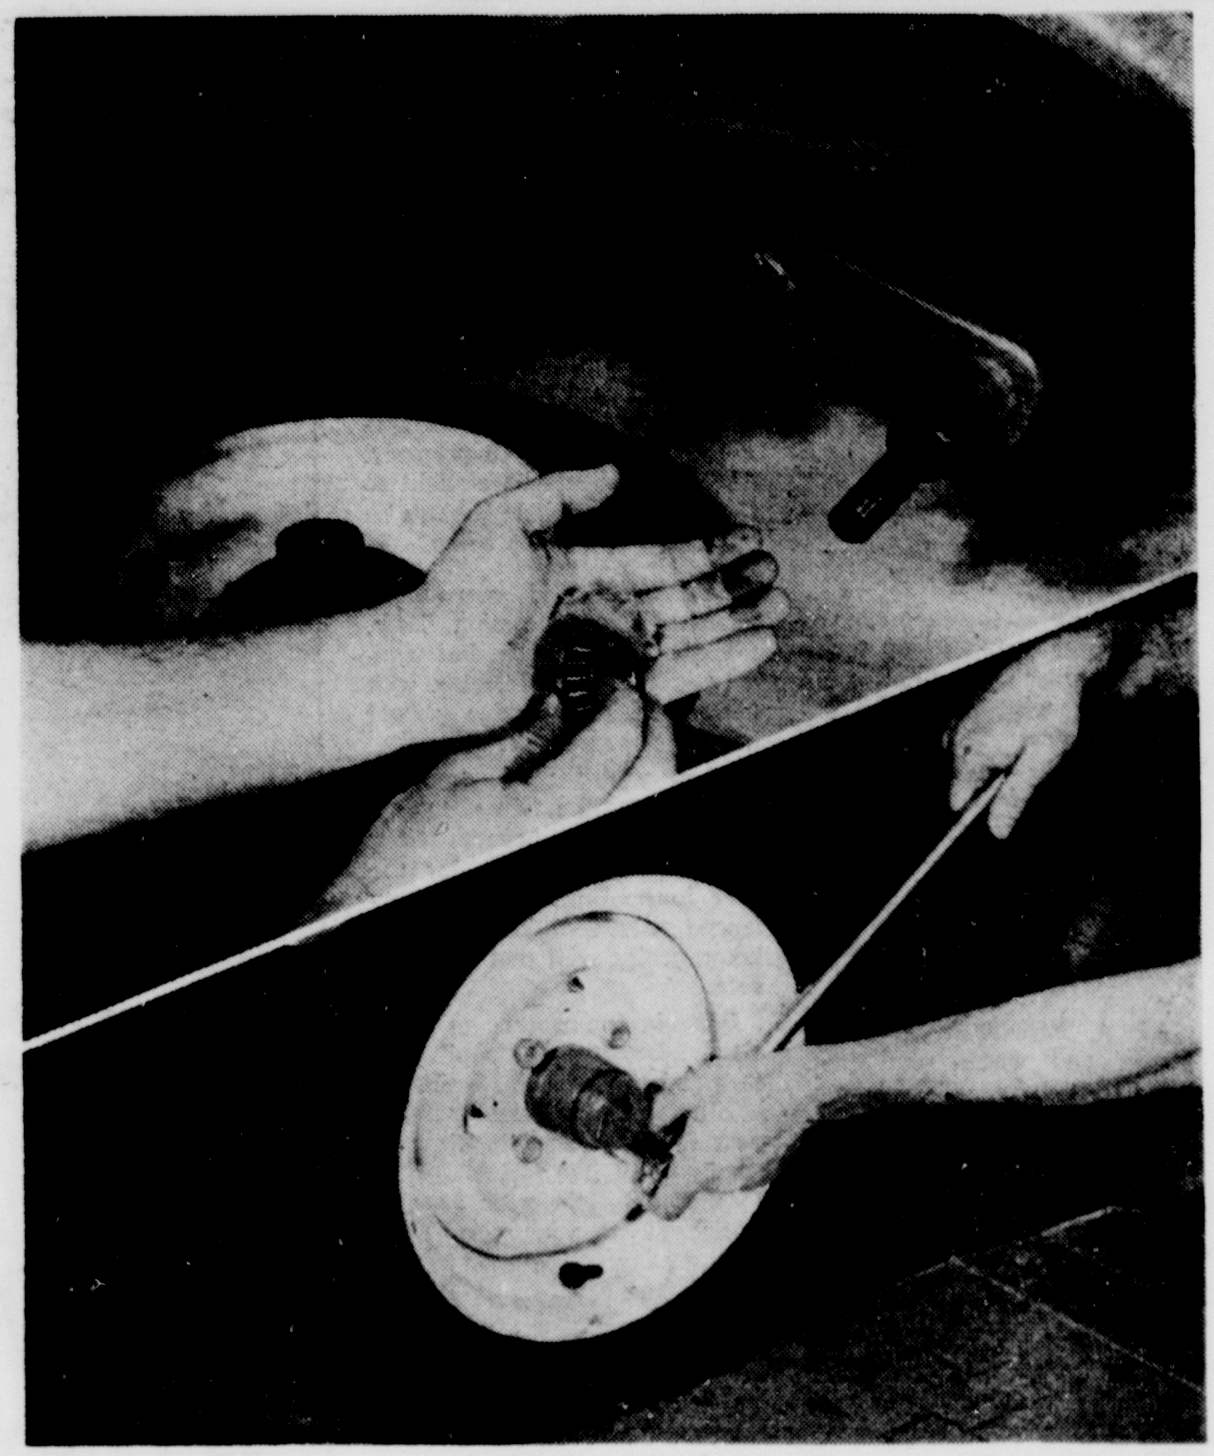
The trailer's rollers and cradle pads protect the boat hull from distortion and damage. Make sure the rollers are adjusted correctly, and that they really roll. Worn padding can be replaced with rug scraps.

Lubricate the coupler, tilt frame, rollers, winch and locking mechanisms. Check the winch lines and tie-downs for frayed or worn spots.

THE LIGHTING harness, connections and bulbs should be in working order. Be sure to carry a supply of spare bulbs for quick replacement.

Rust spots should receive immediate attention. Sand the area until it is clean, then repaint.

As a final check, make sure the coupler fits snugly on the towing ball, and the safety chain is connected correctly.



GREASE THE WHEEL bearings and tighten the wheel lugs — these are two important steps in your check-up for your boat trailer. You should continue to check the bearings and lugs periodically during the boating season ahead. Such prevention can avert headaches that can spoil a boating outing.

The World Of Accessories More Fascinating In '65

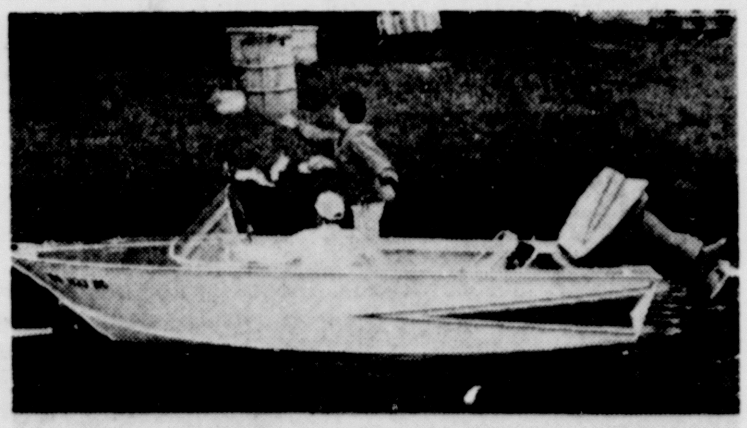
The wonderful, and often startling, world of accessories for boats is even more fascinating—and useful—in 1965.

Highly efficient radiotelephones and sonars have been brought out in the aid of safety and convenience; new and improved life jackets and foul weather gear are available; the use of new metals has made hardware better looking and easier to keep clean; new types of rope that make for stronger lines; sails that are newly designed; new concepts in anchors and anchor stowage; trailers which can take new boat designs; special paints for aluminum and fiberglass hulls — all are now on the market for the modern sailor.

Autopilots and radar, depth-finders and fish finders, boat levelers and engine coolers—all newly designed are available. Seabags for valuables — which also double as cushions have been introduced along with new winches and capstans.

Folding marine tables, with mahogany tops and solid brass hardware—to be tucked away into available space are ready; fishing chairs that can be installed on deck; blocks which are impervious to salt water and weather; innovations in marine air conditioning which can be installed in existing hulls.

All in all, it is a grand year for boat owners who wish to modernize, improve, beautify or make their craft more seaworthy and safe.



"EVERY LITTER bit hurts" — so the saying goes. This applies to our waterways. Good boating practice dictates that refuse be properly disposed of ashore and not strewn on shore lines and in the water. This couple, on second thought, has the right idea.

Skin, SCUBA Ranks Continue To Grow

Skin and SCUBA diving today rank among our most popular water sports. And their popularity is still climbing.

According to Dr. Harold T. Friermood, national YMCA phyical education director, more than 11 million Americans have literally taken the plunge into the spectacular underwater world opened by diving.

"Because of the facination of underwater exploration, thoussands of sport fans are attracted to diving each year," Dr. Friermood notes. "Unfortunately, many of them don't take the time to learn how to dive properly. They see somebody put on a mask and flippers and jump into the water and they think that's all there is to it. So, they try it and, too often, find themselves in trouble."

AS A PIONEER in water safety and water recreation, the YMCA has developed standards for skill and safety in diving, he said. These standards have been adopted at national aquatic conferences and are followed at all YMCA pools and camps where underwater diving is taught.

But before a person even begins to think about diving—or any other water sport for that matter—he should learn how to swim.

"Unless you're a good swimmer, diving is not for you," Dr. Friermood warns. "Even then, it may not be. Before you try it, get a medical checkup to find out if you can take underwater swimming. Not everyone can."

BECAUSE IT requires little equipment and training, skin diving is by far the more popular form of diving, Dr. Friermood points out. But it can be just as dangerous, he adds, if you don't know what you're doing.

"In a way sin diving is something of a misnomer," says Dr. Friermood. "A skin diver usually lowers himself into the water. He may sometimes jump in feet first, but he never dives while wearing mask and flippers. In fact, doing so can be dangerous."

Although only a face mask and flippers are needed for skin diving, both should fit properly. The mask should be airtight so that when you inhale it stays on your face by suction alone.

FLIPPERS add amazing speed to your swimming. They, too, should fit snugly, but without chafing or interfering with circulation. Ear plugs should never be worn in diving.

When you're ready to dive, Dr. Friermood advises, take a couple of deep breaths first, then an ordinary one for the dive itself. Until you're experienced only dive in water you know pretty well and which is safe.

Once in the water, go down slowly, Be sure to "pop" your ears as you descend. Do this by holding the mask tight against your face and snorting through your nose at five foot intervals. This should clear your ears. if it doesn't or your ears hurt, don't go any deeper than 30 feet at any time.

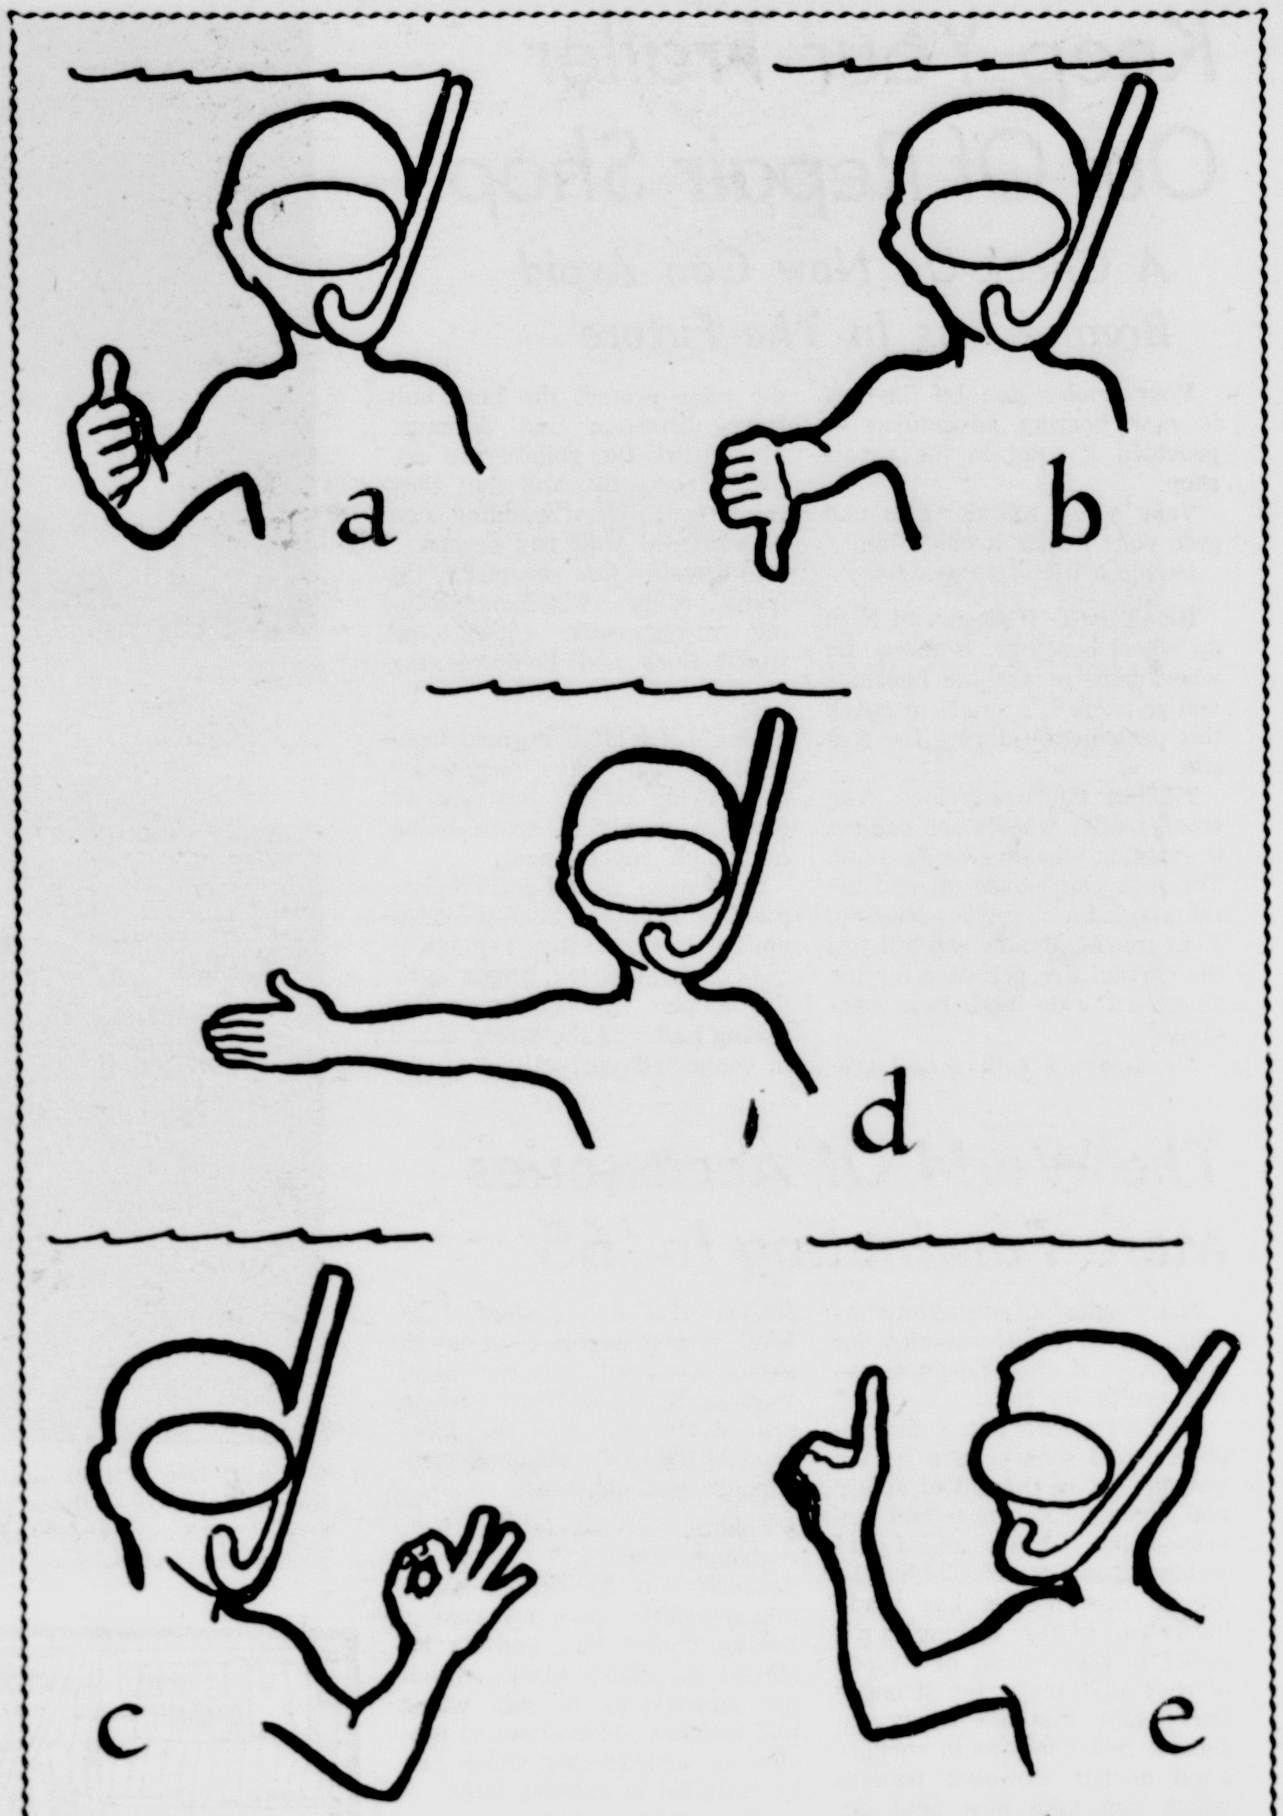
SCUBA (Self Contained Underwater Breathing Apparatus) diving calls for more elaborate equipment and a lot more training. Don't try it without expert instruction and supervised practice, Dr. Friermood cautions.

Basic SCUBA equipment consists of a tank of compressed air (not oxygen!) strapped to the back, an air hose, face mask and flippers. Experienced divers often wear rubber "wet suits" to help protect their bodies against extreme cold of deep water.

A SCUBA outfit can cost anywhere from $75 to $750.

ALWAYS USE the "buddy system" in diving, urges Dr. Friermood. Don't go down without a partner, and stay in sight of each other at all times, even in familiar water. Strong tides and rough water can be dangerous. Avoid them. And if you happen to cut yourself or are bleeding, get out of the water immediately.

"Skin and SCUBA diving can open up a whole new exciting underwater world of exploration and adventure," Dr. Friermood says. "But remember, to keep it fun you have to keep it safe."



HAND SIGNALS permit skin diving enthusiasts to "converse" underwater. The illustrations shown above are from the book, "The Complete Beginner's Guide to Skin Diving" by Shaney Frey, to be published in May by Doubleday and Co. The signals and what they mean: (a) thumbs up—"go up"; (b) thumbs down—"go down"; (c) thumb and first finger joined in a circle—"everything is okay" or "okay, I understand"; (d) arm straight out to the side, palm up—"I don't understand your signal; and (e) first finger of right hand pointed up, moving arm up and down rapidly—"danger overhead." The book will sell for $3.50.

Here Are Most Common Faults Of Boat Handlers

The Mercury outboard people point out that if you tilt the lower unit of your outboard motor out of the water by pushing down on the steering handle you are guilty of one of the six most common "handling errors" to which motors are subjected.

Equally bad, according to Mercury, are the following practices:

Leaning a motor against the side of a car for a moment while getting something else out of the trunk. The slightest movement against the car could topple the motor onto the ground.

Removing small outboards from boats and leaving them lying on the bench where sand can blow into the cowl.

You Can Begin To Learn Skiing With Your Feet On Dry Land

The fundamentals are quickly mastered by anyone with average coordination and athletic prowess. To make it even easier, beginning skiers, according to former national champ Tom Dorwin, should start with what he calls "dry land instruction."

THIS TYPE of preliminary instruction is intended to familiarize the student with basic fundamentals and to give an actual feel of what to expect when taking to the water for the real thing. The photos illustrate the step-by-step system.

Dorwin, who is now water ski adviser for Evinrude Motors, also offers a few words of advice on choosing equipment. Skis are made in various sizes and shapes. When making a selection, the weight of the skier and the speed and pulling power of the tow boat must be taken into consideration.

There is no one type of ski that will be ideal for everyone. It's a good idea to consult a marine dealer if there is any questtion as to which skis will do the best job.

IN ADDITION to the skis, a tow line and a life jacket or belt are needed. Standard length—75 foot tow lines—are available in a variety of materials.

GOOD NEWS FOR GALS PAST THE 30 MARK

Here's good news for gals over 30 years old:

You can learn to water ski faster than that pert teen-age chicken who lives next door . . . faster than your husband, too!

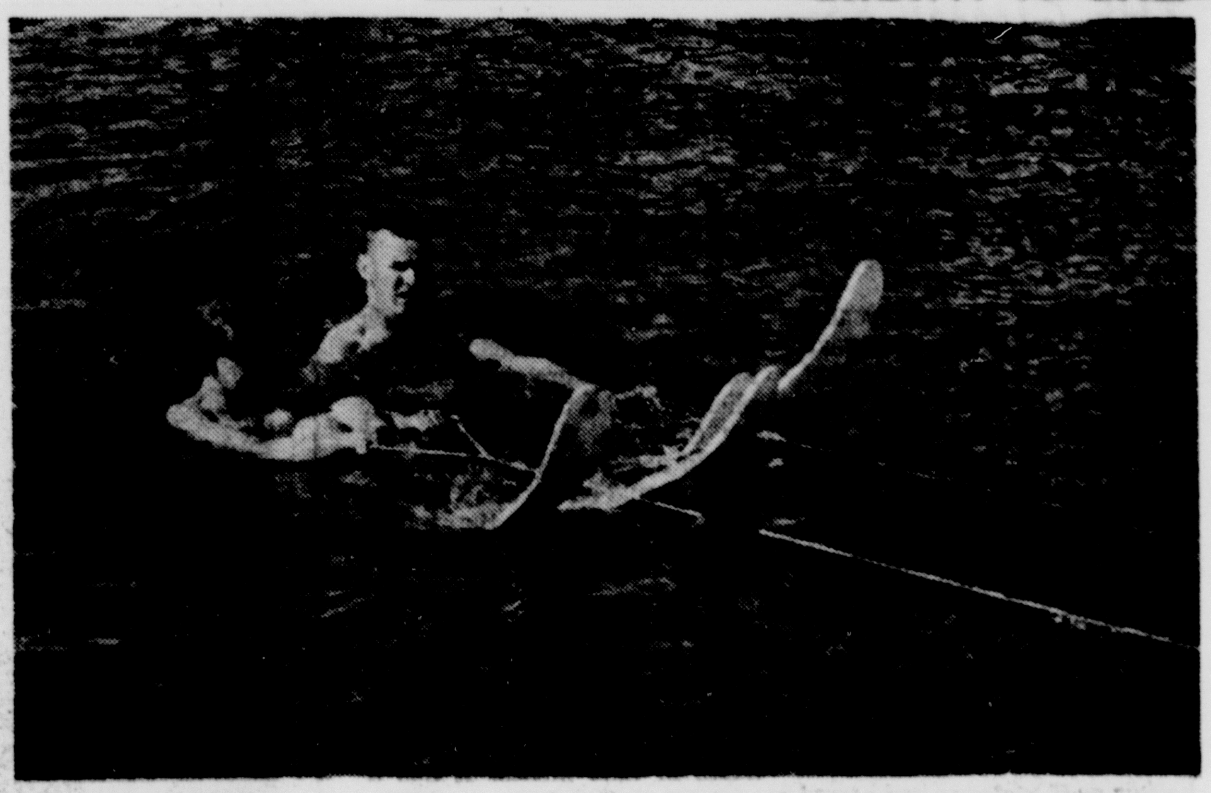
Stearns, who runs a water ski school, says, "Once a woman hits 30 she generally is a more enthusiastic beginner than her husband or a younger girl. Among the couples I have worked with, the gals learn faster, are more graceful, and have more endurance than the men.

"After age 55, however, the men rule the roost. A gent of 65 in my school can ski rings around a woman student of 57. He can ski 30 miles without stopping. After 15 minutes, my 57-year-old still has her enthusiasm, but her durability begins to ebb."

Stearns stated that young girls, ages 6-13, are easier to teach than boys of comparable age. At the early age they trust their instructors more than boys; they are more graceful and seem to have a greater power of concentration.

However, beyond 13, boys progress faster because they enter a competitive period of life. Teen-age girls, on the other hand, are often reluctant to get their hair wet or withstand inconvenience.

"Of course," Stearns says, "it is not difficult for anyone to learn to water ski. While it might take five minutes for a 'fast learner,' 15 minutes might be required for a 'slow learner.'



NOW READY FOR the water, the student dons life preserver at left. Above, with instructor, she wades into water at least hip deep, sits on skis and lets tips protrude from water. Boat driver takes up slack line. And at lower right, after a few practice runs, she's almost an expert with knees slightly flexed and arms straight. If she falls, she lets go of the handle immediately.

A Skilled Tow Boat Driver Can Be Great Help To Novice Skier

For a beginning water skier, a knowledgeable tow boat driver can be the difference between getting up on the first or second try or floundering for 15 minutes before a successful take-off.

The tow boat driver must, above all, have the "feel" of the rig he is driving. He must know how far forward to push the throttle for correct take-off speed, how it handles on a straight course and how it corners.

AN UNDERSTANDING of the driver-skier signals is vital for the boat driver. Of course, the beginning skier should learn these hand signals for "stop," "faster," "slower," etc., before his first try, and the observer in the boat must understand them, too.

The boat driver has the responsibility of selecting the course for the skier. He should know the rules of the water and be familiar with any local water skiing regulations. Above that, the driver is obligated to be courteous and use common sense.

Delivering the tow rope to a fallen skier is a driving maneuver easily mastered by boatmen and essential knowledge for the ski boat operator. The trick is to move around the skier in a half circle, then cut the boat straight. The rope will glide into the skier's hands.

HOLDING THE boat in position against a wind by shifting back and forth from neutral to forward while the skier sets himself for the deep water or dock take-off comes easy with practice.

The ski boat driver should always move ahead until all slack is out of the line before advancing the throttle for the take-off. He should wait, too, until the skier shouts or signals, "Hit it."

THE GIMMICKS

Boat Show Offers 'Far-Out' Ideas

Some of these far out ideas eventually turn out to be popular—and even practical. Others exist for a little while and then fade off the market.

ONE NEW idea introduced publicly at the National Motor Boat Show in New York was a craft call the Sea Dart.

It's an 82 inch long, 30 inch wide fiberglass boat with an inboard - outboard engine and looks as if it had been cut in half or as if someone had sawed off the transom.

The operator of this rather unorthodox craft lies in a prone position with the lower half of his body in the water at the stern of the boat, resting on a submerged planing board.

THERE ARE two levers forward, the one for the left hand providing ignition and the one for the right hand being the throttle. Once underway, the planing board can be depressed by the operator's legs to trim the boat.

The two operating levers are similar to the "dead man's throttle" on a railroad engine. Forward pressure must be applied to make them work so if, for example, the operator should accidentally slide off, all power would be cut off. The boat then, according to the manufacturer, would "stop on a dime."

THE INBOARD-outboard unit, built by Carniti of Italy, is mounted in the center of the boat and extends through the hull and into the water to a depth of nine inches. It has a protective shroud around the propeller.

The Sea Dart is labeled a "fun" item, although the manufacturer, Sea Dart, Inc., of Staten Island, N.Y., envisage possible commercial use for divers and its use in life saving operations. While it is pretty much a one man craft, two persons can ride tandem, and it is said to be suitable for towing skiers.

The boat comes in three models, all alike except for horsepower which ranges from 10 to 16 to 22.

THE MANUFACTURER'S brochure states that the engine compartment is water tight and the hull unsinkable, that anyone can learn to operate it in five minutes and that it "corners like a sport car."

It also states that it is "completely safe for anyone from "8 to 80."

A few other innovations at the 1965 boat shows:

CONTOUR molded life jackets of polyvinyl chloride foam specially engineered to turn the wearer face up to the proper flotation angle even if he is stunned or unconscious.

Pneumatic square vinyl boat bumpers particularly suited to docking situations where you don't want the bumper to roll.

THE RULES THEY BREAK

1. Excessive speed, especially in congested areas.
2. Overloading.
3. Improper loading.
4. Operating in a swimming area or posted dangerous water area.
5. Erratic operation.
6. Failure to carry required safety equipment.

THE INSTALLATION OF outdoor carpeting on the boat dock can be a big labor saver. It eliminates much upkeep, requiring only a hosing down for cleaning. And where the dock is adjacent to the home or terrace, the carpeting greatly enhances the eye-appeal of the mooring facilities.

A Speedometer For Sailboats

One of the most significant devices for sailboat racers introduced at the 1965 New York boat show was a speedometer that signals a speed change as slight as one one-hundredth of a knot.

The speedometer, to be produced shortly by the Raytheon Co., was a "secret weapon" aboard the 12-meter Constellation last summer in its successful defense of the America's Cup against a British challenger.

"IT WAS instrumental in determining the most effective sail to be set, its ideal trim, and even the positioning of crew members," Constellation skipper Eric Ridder said of the device, known as the "Raysail."

The speedometer has three scales—0 to 6 knots, 0 to 12 knots, and an adjustable scale of one knot expanded over the entire dial. The expanded one-knot scale can be put into play at any speed up to 12 knots to aid a skipper in detecting even the slightest speed change.

Ridder reported that he and his co-helmsman Bob Bavier were able to detect speed changes on the Constellation when the mainsheet lead was adjusted as little as two inches.

Most speedometers indicate speed by measuring the rotations of a finned "fish" towed astern of a vessel, measuring the surge of water pressure in a Pitot tube protruding through the hull, counting the revolutions of the propeller shaft, or counting the revolutions of a fan attached outside the hull.

The new electronic speedometer employs a 4½ inch sensor that resembles a brass swizzle stick. It extends through the hull and reacts to the force of the water moving past it. An electronic device called a strain transducer measures the force against the sensor. A transistorized circuit then amplifies the electronic signals and converts them into readings on the speed scale.

The company says the device is particularly rugged and is immune to fouling in seaweed or flotsam. And, it says, should the external sensor rod be damaged it can be replaced from inside the boat in seconds, even while racing.

Speed readings are shown on a water-tight console with a linear dial which has the same spacing at the low end of the scale as at the high end.

INSTALLATION is in the open cockpit, as it was in Constellation, so the helmsman can get continuous and instantaneous readings on the effectiveness of each change in course, set of sails or trim of the boat.

The Rules To Avert Accidents

Although recreational boating is governed by a minimum of written rules and regulations, every boatman should be thoroughly familiar with the unwritten or common sense rules of the sport.

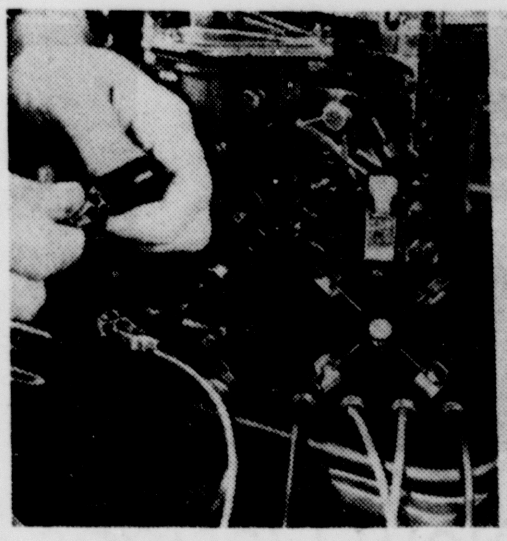
Here are a few which are especially important.

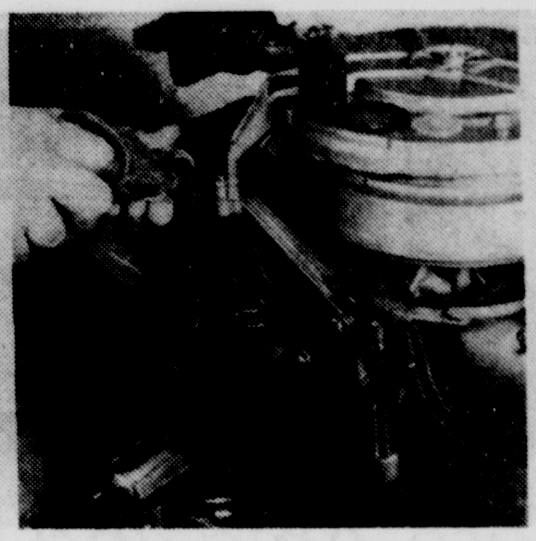
Never overload a boat. Especially a small craft, the seating space provided is not necessarily an indication of the number of passengers the boat will safely carry.

Be sure your boat is equipped with legally required items as well as others that may prove helpful in an emergency. Life preservers, of course, are a "must." But don't forget things like extra line, anchor, paddle or oars, basic spare parts and tools, and a first aid kit.

Take it easy when boating on unfamiliar waterways. Watch for shoals, submerged obstructions and signs. Try to get information in advance from someone who is familiar with the area.

Distribute the load evenly. Passengers should be seated so that the boat rides level. Proper placement of equipment will also help.





THREE POINTS THAT should be checked during any motor tune-up, spring or mid-season, are shown above. At left, the ignition system should be checked. An inexpensive spark checker will tell you if the breaker points, condenser and coil are working correctly. At center, the fuel bowl should be removed and thoroughly cleaned of gummy deposits. Use a flashlight to check fuel tank. Acetone or lacquer will remove harmful deposits. At right, minor nicks on a propeller can be corrected by grinding and checking of the pitch by a marine dealer. But a badly damaged one like this prop should be replaced.

Regular Care Of The Boat Is Best Insurance

Regular care of a boat and motor is the best insurance policy you can buy.

The premium is a check-up to assure a smooth running rig the remainder of the season. Here are a few tips from Bill Smale, chief engineer at Evinrude Motors.

Spark plugs are a vital part of the "go" system. They are easy to check, and, if fouled, inexpensive to replace. Some experienced home mechanics can recognize the sound of a bad plug, but if you're like most of us, your local marine dealer can check plugs quickly.

BOATS MOORED in either salt or fresh water for any length of time will pick up marine growths and scum. Boatowners who complain of a mid-season sluggishness in their rig may find that this scum is the culprit. Pull the boat out of the water and begin to clean it immediately.

If this marine life is allowed to dry and harden, your chore will be twice as hard.

A bent or nicked propeller can also be harmful to the general operation and speed of your outboard. Remove the prop and check for nicks.

Just to be sure the blades have the proper "pitch" it should be checked by your local marine dealer. If you have to buy a new one, don't throw the damaged one away. Keep it as a spare. It can be mighty handy in an emergency.

Check out your battery for any cracks or corrosion and be sure the cables are in good repair. If you've been regularly using an electric starting motor without a generator the battery is probably run down. Have it recharged so you're sure of starting power for the rest of the season.

YOUR OWNER'S manual is always a good guide for maintenance, especially for lubrication. It will point out parts and assemblies which need special attention. Don't forget the lower gear case. If you have to change or add oil, follow factory recommendations.

If the exterior of your engine has been nicked or scratched, a little re-touching will give it that brand new look. Most marine dealers carry pressurized cans of outboard marine paint. A good coat of wax will protect the finish.

Accessories and equipment are the final check point. Look for frayed steering cables, exposed wiring and signs of corrosion on the hardware. Make sure life preservers and lines are in good condition.

When Passing, Follow These Boating Rules

When passing another boat head-on, your boat should be kept to the right, the Johnson Motors News Bureau says, but if you are so far to the left of the approaching boat that it would be impractical to swing to the right, you should hold your course.

If you're really in doubt, slow down and stop.

When passing another boat from the rear you are allowed to pass on either side but you must give the boat ahead plenty of leeway. The boat in front has the right-of-way. Don't pass in "tight" situations.

When crossing at right angles, the boat on the right has the right-of-awy.

Sailboats have the right-of-way over powerboats, and it is against the law to block navigation channels.

WHY IS THE SHIP A SHE? NO ONE SEEMS TO KNOW

Why is a ship or boat usually referred to as "she"?

The question has been discussed and argued for years, but it's doubtful if anyone ever will come up with the correct answer.

One of the strongest arguments is that the "she" evolves from the feminine figureheads that graced the prows of early sailing vessels.

But an article in the house organ of the Farrell Lines contested this argument by saying the prows of Phoenician and Egyptian boats were decorated with male animals.

It went even further and recalled that during the 17th and 18th centuries vessels were called men-of-war, merchantmen, Indiamen, etc. And it reminded us that the word "ship" is masculine in French, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese, and is neuter in Teutonic tongues.

The Farrell Lines News article took no stand in the matter and humorously pointed out in favor of the "she" designation:

"A ship has a waist (amidship section), bonnets (engine cover on boat or added strip of canvas on sail), laces (rigging fastenings), stays (ropes), combings (edge of hatch), jewels (small blocks on signal yard) and earrings (short pieces of sail hope).

"It has also been noted that there is a great deal of 'bustle' around a ship and that in port she has an agent handling her business called a 'husband' . . .

"Another thought is that a merchant ship is called 'she' because on coming into port the first thing she does is go to the buoys."

On a more serious note, the article says that in older times, when sea voyages could take many years, the ship was the representation of feminine warmth and loves, such as given by a mother or wife. The seaman found in the vessel his home, his protection.

The correct answer may never be known, the article concluded, but added: "of this there is no doubt—nothing plays a more important role in the lives of men, than ships and women!"

Those Amazing New Designs For Boat Hulls

The "new look" may shock the traditionalist, but he's in for a pleasant surprise when he takes his first test ride.

Most of the new designs are take-offs on two basic hull principles, the deep-V and the catamaran. In fact, many are combinations of the two with special modifications.

LET'S BEGIN at the beginning.

Most hull designs are a compromise — comfort vs. speed. You can have one by sacrificing the other, but today's selective buyers want both. A displacement hull plows through (displaces) the water. It offers a slow, comfortable ride. A planing hull delivers speed. It's designed to skim across the surface riding on a cushion of air and spray. An extreme example is the three-point hydroplane. Running wide open, the only thing touching the water is the motor's lower unit. The sponsons or forward points touch only momentarily for balance.

It was obvious that the planing hull delivered the most efficient performance and fuel economy for outboard power. This led designers and builders to concentrate on improving this design.

TAKING A cue from larger, rough water boats, the designers incorporated the deep-V bow into smaller, runabout craft. The deep-V, among its other advantages, has a soft entry which takes the pounding out of rough water. Today, almost every major builder has the deep-V bow on its number one line of boats.

The catamaran, which copies the stability principle of the outrigger canoe, was another avenue of experimentation. By combining the catamaran and the deep-V bow, builders had the three-point cathedral hull.

From here the modifications become less noticeable, but still extremely important. Lines were shaped and sculptured to accent either the catamaran or deep-V principle. The results were hulls similar to Evinrude's "gull wing" design. This is a good example of special modifications incorporating the speed and performance of the planing hull with deep-V entry and catamaran stability.

BOAT BUILDERS have literally staked millions of dollars on the addition or subtraction of a few inches.
